CHS student-athletes honored at luncheon

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff Writer

A baker's dozen worth of Charlevoix High School students were recently honored at the annual Academic All-conference Luncheon and Awards Ceremony which took place on Wednesday, March 15 at the Peterman Auditorium in Elk Rapids.

Kenny Anderson, Shannon Dibble, Mike DiMartino, Kristin Dupuis, Joseph Graham, Sally Haselschwardt, Liz Jadwin, Chuck Mason, Elyse Michrina, Stephanie Muray, Stephen Parker, Ben Scheelk and Nate Sotuyo along with 80 other students from schools belonging to the Lake Michigan Conference, received a nod for their academic and athletic prowess.

Lawson said she placed the package on the table in the entryway, and that's when she heard Christa-Maria's cries.

"She hollered for help when she heard me calling. Apparently, from the sounds of it, she was waiting for me and knew she had a package coming," Lawson said.

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater awarded a certificate of recognition for being a good samaritan to Lawson at a ceremony on Thursday, March 16.

"One of the privileges of being county sheriff is, from time to time, being able to recognize individuals that have done something above and beyond the call of duty," he said. "Kathy went above and beyond the call of duty for a UPS driver and we're very proud for her to deliver packages throughout Charlevoix County."

He added, "Kathy entered, contacted 911, rendered assistance to Christa-Maria until the ambulance crew arrived and made her feel more comfortable."

Christa-Maria said, though it has been a long, painful recovery, she is thankful for Lawson's help.

"And I also want to thank UPS for giving her permission to go that extra step of opening my door and bringing my parcels inside, because that made all the difference," she said. "You know, some agencies might not allow something like that, but it saved my life."

Said Lawson, "I'm very honored for the recognition."

"We honor our top 12 academic kids using a formula of their GPA and their ACT or SAT testing scores," said Charlevoix High School principal, Garry Grundman. "Then the top 12 get honored from each of the eight schools in the conference."

He added, "We have 13 kids this year because there was a tie."

In addition to the luncheon, the winning students received a certificate and had their pictures taken by a photographer from a professional studio.

Grundman said this second annual event began when Grayling schools came into the Lake Michigan Conference.

"When they came in, they said it was something they participated in in their former league," he said. "And when they brought it up, it seemed like something we should look at."

Grundman said the administrators saw it as a worthwhile project and put it into action.

"It's something special. The kids feel very proud of what they've done academically and athletically," he said.

Eveline Township officials chastised

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

On Tuesday, March 21, Eveline Township supervisor, John Vrondran, put some township officials on notice that two financial discrepancies in the township's coffers must be reconciled.

Though the two incidents are unrelated, township trustee, Don Hayden, was admonished by Vrondran for failing to produce some receipts. And suspended treasurer, Debra Healey-Jason, was told to clear up oversights involving overpayments by several taxpayers.

"The numbers just don't add up and a lot of the work just wasn't being done," Vrondran said. "We're not short any money and everything is fine, we just couldn't account for some receipts and we owed people some money and had to pay them back."

He added, "We have nothing missing. But our accountant told us that we need to just clean up the mess."

According to Healey-Jason, an audit on her department revealed the books to be in order.

"We've had issues of some disbursements being sent out late in the past, but that was completely cleared up about a year ago," she said.

Healey-Jason said the issue of which Vrondran spoke, dealt with some overlapping deposits or tax bills which had been paid twice.

She also stressed that, while the two issues came up at the same meeting, they were not related.

"I had not caught some overpayments that had gone back to 2002, and had not been caught by any of the audits before," she said. "When it was brought to my attention three weeks ago by Vel Kammerman (township accountant), I went ahead and took care of those."

She added, "Actually, as of that meeting, that had been taken care of."

"As far as the receipts are concerned though, Mr. Vrondran has found that Don Hayden has not been able to produce receipts. That had nothing to do with me," she said. "I turned in all my receipts."

Healey-Jason said Vrondran's investigation began over Hayden's missing receipts, not the fact that several taxpayers had overpaid on their tax bills.

Vrondran also admonished the two for their inability to get along.

"I guess they don't like each other. I didn't notice there was that much friction, but the other night they got into an argument back and forth," Vrondran said. "Kammerman the accountant noticed the friction. I didn't even realize they had a problem with each other before that — I only see them at meetings."

"It's no hidden fact that Don and I aren't real crazy about each other and we don't seem to work well together," Healey-Jason said.

Vrondran said at the meeting that if the problems weren't fixed by the next meeting that he would take the issue to Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema.

"But again, the prosecutor thing has nothing to do with me, just for Don County commissioners aren't back to square one, but adoption of The Public Health Clean Air Act of 2005 for Charlevoix County remains uncertain.

Newly elected First District County Commissioner, Connie Saltonstall, who had hoped to vote on the regulation during the March 22 meeting of the board of commissioners, found the issue will be wrapped up for awhile in a procedural waiting game.

"It was discussed at the board of health meeting," she said. "It was announced at the last (board of commissioners) meeting when I announced that I would be submitting the resolution."

Saltonstall, who questioned why action couldn't be taken sooner, was told by Charlevoix County Prosecutor, John Jarema, that her

A sign of spring

Another sure sign of spring occurred last Thursday, March 23 when the Emerald Isle made its first voyage of the year to Charlevoix. Those aboard the ferry waved and shouted while motorists on the mainland gave salutations by honking their respective horns.

Hayden and the missing receipts," Healey-Jason said. "The receipts that I have given to Don Hayden have nothing to do with his missing receipts."

Healey-Jason said her books already balance with the bank's books and, "I'm more than willing and in the process of balancing the books with Mr. Hayden."

Vrondran gave the two until the April meeting to get everything in order.

He said he thinks Hayden may have misplaced the documents when he moved.

"I believe he has the receipts," Vrondran said. "He (Hayden) just needs to find them."

"We just want to get the books cleaned up right now," he said. "We're going to get it fixed one way or the other. It has to be repaired."

Currently, Hayden stores all the receipts of which he is in charge at his personal office and Vrondran hopes moving the storage of such important papers to a township facility will help prevent similar mishaps in the future.

"We're trying to move the books back to the township hall to make it much easier," Vrondran said.

Hayden said he isn't sure how many receipts are missing or exactly what they are for.

But, he said, "I admit and I have admitted before that I have one month of files that I cannot find and that is the only portion I do not have and I am still searching for that."

Hayden said, while everyone agrees no money is missing, all the numbers must still be accounted for.

"By law, the clerk's books and the treasurer's books are supposed to balance out," he said. "I am unable to balance with the treasurer's books due to lack of receipts."

He added, "The books are not up to date, and something needs to be done about it."

He said he thinks Hayden may have misplaced the documents when he moved.

"I believe he has the receipts," Vrondran said. "He (Hayden) just needs to find them."

"We just want to get the books cleaned up right now," he said. "We're going to get it fixed one way or the other. It has to be repaired."

Currently, Hayden stores all the receipts of which he is in charge at his personal office and Vrondran hopes moving the storage of such important papers to a township facility will help prevent similar mishaps in the future.

"We're trying to move the books back to the township hall to make it much easier," Vrondran said.

Hayden said he isn't sure how many receipts are missing or exactly what they are for.

But, he said, "I admit and I have admitted before that I have one month of files that I cannot find and that is the only portion I do not have and I am still searching for that."

A fond farewell to Courier publisher

Julie Witthoef
'Just a thought'

I can count the number of people on one hand who I call mentors.

These people have positively influenced my character and my career, acting as life-long guides.

I have been fortunate enough for six years to have one of these people, Courier publisher Ken Winter, oversee me professionally.

Starting out as a cub reporter in 2000, I found Winter to be a quiet ally. He commended my positive work ethic and quietly steered misguided efforts.

He is a steady teacher, with concrete answers to any newspaper question I can come up with.

Over the years he also became a friend. One I shed a few tears on when the stress of the job was overwhelming or when I started to reel in the face of life's occasional tumultuous storm.

At review time, he would ask me what my professional goals were. I responded regularly that the Courier editor's seat is where I wanted to be. He continued to quietly groom me and in May 2005 offered me the seat.

As he prepares to take the next step in his career, the ideals he has instilled in me and the confidence he has in me will continue to act as my map.

Early this week, in talking with Elsa Schaller-DeWitt, president of Northern Michigan Review Inc., the Courier's parent company, she said it best, saying farewell to Winter on Friday, March 31 will be "bitter sweet."

Winter, 55, started with the company on March 1, 1972 after graduating from Michigan State University with a degree in journalism. That was the same day the Schaller family welcomed their daughter, Gretchen Schaller-Arnold into the world.

He moved north from the Lansing area to accept a position with the Petoskey News-Review, covering Charlevoix County. Just out of college the self-made media man was already a seasoned journalism vet. His career began at age 14 when he was a teen writer for the Lansing State Journal's Sunday youth page.

At Northern Michigan Review Inc. he filled the editor's shoes at the Courier from 1974-1976 and at the Petoskey News-Review from 1982 to the present. One of his greatest accomplishments came in 2001 when he added publisher's duties to his responsibilities as News-Review editor following the death of his friend and long-time boss, Kirk Schaller.

The transition was seamless.

Now, as I prepare to say good-bye I had to ask the question that will hopefully some day make me the success in the newspaper industry that Winter is today — what kept your passion alive all these years? He said he loves the diversity of the work and the people. He said his staff and the daily interaction with community members will be what he misses most.

His next step is fitting and I envy college and high school students who will have the opportunity to call him teacher.

In early April, as Petoskey High School students return to classes following spring break they will be welcomed by Winter's smile. He plans to complete his student teaching requirements in Matt Tamm's government class.

In the fall, he will direct his energy toward teaching local and U.S. government at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey where he currently teaches a journalism class.

I am sure in a few years, some of his students will be sitting in a political seat somewhere locally or in Washington D.C., and like me, will be looking down at their mentor counting hand thinking about Winter's role in their lives.

Thank you Ken and good luck.

Ownership of Northern Michigan Review Inc., parent company of publications including the Charlevoix Courier, the Petoskey News-Review, The Gaylord Herald Times, The Graphic, Super Shopper, PhoneGuide and Saturday, is expected to change hands from the Schaller family to Schurz Communications Inc. on March 31. Doug Caldwell will serve as the newspaper's new publisher.

Daylight-saving time and other April observances

Benjamin Gohs
'Just a thought'

The beginning of Daylight Saving Time (DST) will be observed on Sunday, April 2 this year.

Some debate the necessity and usefulness of DST. And, why not, since Benjamin Franklin first proposed it in a column he wrote in a French newspaper — as a joke.

Now, more than 300 million American's a year are affected by what began as a jest. And it got me wondering how many other observances and pseudo holidays there are floating around the calendar.

That was when things began to go south. Not only were there already more observances lined up for April than I could write about in one sitting, some of them were downright strange, even by my standards.

Here is a sampling of the many observances for the upcoming month.

For those of you longing to learn how to perform CPR on Fido, April is Pet First Aid Awareness month and Alcohol Awareness month. I mean really, if you're going to be practicing mouth to mouth on your Basset Hound, you want to be three sheets to the wind.

What goes better with doggy breath anyhow, red or white wine?

April is Workplace Conflict Awareness month. My boss told me not to include this one — I told her to go suck an egg.

Sorry Charlie Day and Anti-Circumcision Day both fall on April 1. Not the two most uplifting observances I've seen. And you only have one day to get over it because Reconciliation Day is April 2 — Sorry Charlie.

In case you feel the need to let everyone know how much they get on your nerves, Hate Week is seven days long (April 4-10).

Bar goers may be dismayed during the Alcohol-Free Weekend (April 7-9) when they find out that, she isn't that attractive and he isn't that funny.

Explore Your Career Options Week is April 10-14. And after the egg sucking comment, this'll be a must for me, I'm sure.

Is it a coincidence that Tax Day, Take a Wild Guess Day, That Sucks Day and Husband Appreciation Day all fall on April 15? Probably not. Get revenge on whoever has been stealing your pudding packs at work from April 17-23. That's no skunk in your lunch box, it's egg salad week.

April 18 combines Tax Freedom, Stress Awareness and Wear Your Pajamas to Work days. So, you have the convenience of getting nailed for tax evasion, losing your mind and arriving at work in your bathrobe and slippers — don't say I didn't warn you.

Pet Owners' Independence Day is April 18. Apparently you get to stay home and sleep while your pet goes to work. I'm thinking this day is celebrated by the same people you see on pet psychic programs asking some self-appointed doctor of tomfoolery whether Fluffy has post traumatic stress disorder after being separated from the rest of the litter.

Those of you who need to trim the extra weight you gained enjoying National Jelly Bean Day on April 22, will have a chance at a good cardiovascular workout while reminding the kids who's boss on Spank Out Day April 30.

Both Playground Safety Week and Scoop the Poop Week, kickoff on April 24. The answer as to why seemed obvious at first, but now I'm not quite so sure how they tie in.

Call me a traditionalist, but I think observances should be kept to the big holidays and memorials. You know, the things that really matter, like April 28, Hairball Awareness Day.

To see a year's worth of observances, check out www.brown-iclocks.com.

Don't give up library building

Editor:
In 1996 when the attorney outlined the transfer agreement of the Charlevoix District Library, she wrote, "Real property is conveyed by quit claim deed with school district retaining right of reverter if district library ceases to operate public library." The library is not ceasing to operate and selling it. Using the money to pay down the debt is a continuing use of that asset.

The Charlevoix Board of Education believes that by preventing the library from selling its current building when they move to the new facility, they will be saving taxpayers money. The building is appraised at $595,000 and the revenue from the sale can be used to pay down the library debt, saving the taxpayers approximately $600,000. The property could then go on the tax rolls and generate tax dollars for the community. This could amount to approximately another $600,000 over 40 years. That's $1.2 million.

Also, the school would probably spend at least $200,000 to upgrade the building. That's $1.4 million — hardly a money-saving strategy.

School funding is a problem with the legislature. They have changed the rules that the voters approved with Proposal A. Now the per pupil base is $6,700. However, according to Kristie Bach's article in the Traverse City Record Eagle's Sunday, March 19 edition, Grosse Pointe Public Schools received more than $28 million over and above the per pupil amount. Bloomfield Hills received over $31 million more. Birmingham and Farmington each received over $41 million more. Southfield and Ann Arbor each received over $42 million more. This is hardly the equitable funding voters were promised.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools) Dr. (John) Sturrock and the board of education should concentrate their efforts on fixing the funding problem with the Michigan Legislature and not trying to take funding from other community sources. The school has plenty of property and a sinking fund to build administrative offices. They received $635,000 for the old middle school property. They should not try to take downtown library property and taxable assets for their offices. And the library board should not trade a $600,000 property for a $120,000 property.

Why should taxpayers give up $1.4 million for school offices in downtown Charlevoix?

Bid process letter response

Editor:

After reading the letter to the editor (regarding the City of Charlevoix's skate park materials bid process) printed (on page 5) in the March 22 edition of the Courier I talked with (letter writer Dale Newman) Mr. Newman. We had a lengthy and informative discussion. I told him he should have called before having his letter go to print. He was fairly new to the situation, the original salesman we had worked with was no longer at Alden and we had been working with another one of his salesman. I explained the roles of Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc., Stebe Construction, and the City of Charlevoix and their joint efforts for this project. I will do so here as I feel it needs to be clarified. Scott Stebe is the construction advisor on the Charlevoix Community Skatepark

Inc. board. Current board members are: Vickie Daman, Scott and Laura Stebe, Michelle Witthoef and John McLean. Suburbanrails is the skatepark design group. It was Scott's and the fund-raising board's responsibility to get material quotes for our budgeting needs. After Katrina we were a bit spooked to say the least. This I explained to Mr. Newman, was why there had been numerous requests over the course of the last year. No bids were solicited by Stebe Construction on behalf of the city. Material estimates were requested and reworked for budget. We all worked in conjunction together.

On March 6, (Charlevoix city manager Mike Wiesner) Mr. Wiesner informed Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc. just prior to the city council meeting that there was no bid from Alden Lumber. We were absolutely stunned and dismayed. I had a copy of it. There had been a lot of time and effort put into working with this company who wanted to be part of this project, who was civic minded, and was under the impression a bid they submitted was good for the closed bid session from the first bid request. There were two. Apparently, it was never received at the city end or overlooked in the second bid request that was put out due to a minor change. No one knows what exactly happened, but I believe the power of doing business by fax impeded this somehow. OK, so that is water under the bridge. There are more details but why rehash it in a public forum? It would serve no purpose. Our goal is to move forward.

What needs to be stated is that the closed bids requested by the city were done correctly. I told Mr. Newman that his letter to the editor made it look like Stebe Construction undermined the process and I wanted it corrected. Anyone who knows us knows we don't operate like that and we have poured our heart into this project and we would not jeopardize it for any reason. Charlevoix Community

Skatepark Inc. has always been responsible with the funds entrusted to us by soliciting donations to underwrite the project. Alden Lumber's bid included a $2,500 donation. Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc. had even proposed to Mr. Wiesner that we buy the lumber and "donate" it to the city. We are all wishing we had taken that to city council. Mr. Newman had no knowledge of all the different entities working on this project and the roles in which they were working together. Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc. had no control over the bid process, we had just asked for Alden Lumber to be included. Mr. Wiesner obliged. He knew they had been working with the fund-raising group. I personally think by accident it was sent to our fax number not the city's. That is the only explanation. We are truly sorry for the confusion, the negative comments and having community relations strained. All of us are a bit to blame and need to acknowledge that. We have all learned a lesson.

Additionally, we as a board have learned many lessons in this venture. We have run this non-profit like a business, being professional, courteous and fiscally responsible with donated funds. Sometimes at an emotional price. We have swallowed our pride many times. We are giving a huge $160,000 gift to the City of Charlevoix, to the children of the area and to visitors. We have been patient beyond belief, doing everything asked of us to meet the criteria set by the city in this joint effort. It has gotten complex and frustrating at times. We think like fund-raisers, Mr. Wiesner thinks like a city manager, always with the best interest of the city as his foremost concern. I am sure he has never encountered two more passionate mothers than Vickie and I. We have all been asked why we are doing this numerous times. The answer is simple — because the end result will benefit many children. If it brings joy to just one then it was worth it. It's that simple.

Construction is scheduled to start April 3, weather permitting. Stop by and see the progress. Thank you to all who have supported this project. Most of all a special thank you to Vickie Daman, you are awesome and an inspiration to all. Zeke should be very proud of your efforts.

Sexual Assault Awareness

Editor:

April is Sexual Assault Awareness month, and the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan is dedicated to increasing awareness about this important issue. Sexual assault is something we hear in the news that happens to "other people." Contrary to that belief, sexual assault happens everywhere, including northern Michigan. Increasing awareness is the first step in creating social change.

It is clear that sexual assault is everyone's problem. However, there is something we can do as a community. We need to respond to this issue, not just acknowledge the problem. Every time a man's voice joins those of women in speaking out against rape, the world becomes safer for all of us. We can increase awareness by abolishing myths that place blame on the survivor, rid our society of gender role stereotypes and speak up when sexist remarks are made. We also need to encourage parents to 'Thank you' Irish Festival supporters

Editor:
I would like to thank the Charlevoix community for their tremendous support of music and the arts in our schools. During this past week more than 500 people of all ages participated together performing various forms of instrumental music, dance, vocal music and acting. Students and adults showcased beautiful works of art such as illumination, calligraphy, sculpture, quilting and set design plus integrated displays of history. I am of course referring to the fabulous concerts that were performed by the Charlevoix middle and high school band department's during the Irish Folk Festival and the elementary school's musical. We have also had the opportunity to enjoy wonderful productions by the performing arts department and will enjoy the upcoming Art Show on May 18.

Music is a gift that we all possess and is something that we can enjoy and share for our entire lives. Thank you for encouraging our young students to continue learning and perfecting their craft and for doing everything that they can to stay in the program and keep music in their lives. CDs of the Irish Folk Festival are available by calling the Charlevoix Middle School band room at (231) 547-3234.

Historical look at weapons supply

Editor:

The United States supplied weapons to Iran when the shah ruled Iran. The United States supplied weapons to Afghanistan when Afghan fighters fought the Soviet Union. The United States supplied weapons to Iraq when Saddam Hussein fought Iran. Now the United States supplies weapons to Saudi Arabia.

President Bush declares that the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks against the United States were responsible for his war with Afghanistan and Iraq. Fifteen of the 19 terrorist sky jacks responsible for the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks against the United States were from Saudi Arabia not Afghanistan or Iraq.

The fourth freedom of the four freedoms that the "greatest generation" fought for in World War II was, "The freedom from fear which, translated into world terms, means a worldwide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor-anywhere in the world."

Kudos to Irish Fest performers

Editor:

Kudos to Charlevoix High School and middle school plus all the parents who attended the program Wednesday, March 22 in the high school gymnasium.

The program, "Irish Folk Festival: Traveling Down an Irish Road," was very well done. Jayne Bennett, band teacher and conductor was impressive in leading the group. They were good.

It was standing room only and you could hardly find a parking spot. So, if you wondered where everyone was Wednesday night, it was concert night. The songs, music and dances all had an Irish flavor and we were all Irish on March 22.

David Rosenthal, 80, went into the loving arms of his heavenly Father on March 19 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

David was born in Josephine, Poland on July 25, 1925. He was preceded in death by Rosa (Friske) his wife of 37 years.

He is survived by his wife Elsa (Friske) and four children; Klaus (Ross) Rosenthal and his wife Ever of Petoskey, Rita Williams and her husband Aron of East Jordan, Ralph Rosenthal and his wife Laurie of Charlevoix and Walter Rosenthal and his wife Michelle of Charlevoix. He is also survived by his seven granddaughters, four grandsons and great-granddaughters.

David had a deep and abiding love for the word of God which he read daily. He was known by family members as a man who loved to pray and was extremely devoted to his heavenly Father. His other loves included gardening and fishing. He was the owner of Rosenthal Orchards in Charlevoix for 28 years before retiring in 1987.

A funeral service took place on Friday, March 24 at the Community Church of God.

Gastric bypass surgery support group formed

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

A support group for gastric bypass surgery patients and those considering the surgery, has been formed at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Louise Hilligan, a 62-year-old Charlevoix resident who underwent the surgery two years ago Hurley Medical Center in Flint, led the effort to form the group.

Gastric bypass surgery is not currently offered at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The surgery reduces the amount of food the stomach will hold and the digestive tract will absorb. A common approach is for a doctor to cut the small intestine and attach it to a tinier stomach they create. This bypasses about 30 percent of the intestines and reduces the amount of calories digested.

Hilligan's incentive to act stemmed from her psychological needs following the surgery. She said the support she needed just wasn't available.

"I don't think the psychological side of having gastric bypass surgery is dealt with properly. It's an unbelievable psychological adjustment," she said.

And, she said she isn't alone.

"I'm certain I'm not the only one dealing with its psychological impact. There are about 15 people in Charlevoix who have had the surgery and we all have some of the same problems," she said. "It's a huge life change. We need to be there for each other."

The group will meet twice a month at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesdays starting April 4, in conference room B at Charlevoix Area Hospital, located off Lakeshore Drive.

Guest speakers will be featured at meetings. And Hilligan will lead the discussion with topics to include breaking old habits and maintaining a healthy diet. She said her goal is to help herself and others avoid becoming a statistic.

"Seventy to 80 percent of people who have the surgery gain the weight back," she said. "I was a success but I'm only two years out."

Hilligan, who was 60 years old when she underwent the surgery, went from weighing 265 pounds to 145 pounds. She said in the beginning she lost a pound a day.

She said the benefits are tremendous. Hilligan is no longer diabetic and is more active. However, she said maintaining her weight is a challenge she and others in the area who have had gastric bypass surgery, face daily.

"No matter how dedicated and determined you are, there's a little voice inside you that's bigger than you are," Hilligan said.

For more information about the gastric bypass surgery support group call Hilligan at (231) 547-2851.

Northwestern Bank to build new branch office

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Northwestern Bank plans to move its Charlevoix branch office from its current location near the intersection of U.S. 31 and M-66, to the corner of 1455 Bridge and 1228 State streets.

"The new facility will be much more convenient for our customers and a friendlier place to bank," said Richard Jackson, executive vice-president for Northwestern Bank.

Jackson said the existing facility, which Northwestern Bank acquired in 2002 after taking over Standard Federal's six northern Michigan offices, is outdated and the location impedes visibility.

"Facilities are very important to the bank. And it's awkward to get to at the intersection there," he said. "The new facility will upgrade customer service with better drive-in banking, a nicer lobby and more privacy."

According to information provided in Northwestern Bank's development plan review application, the new site will combine two lots

— the Capri Motel property at 1455 Bridge Street, owned by Jerry and Kim Wades, and the 1228 State Street property, which is the former residence of the late Leona Bartlett.

The Wades' motel operation has been in the family since 1952. Jerry Wades said they opened recently and will continue to operate until the deal with Northwestern Bank has been finalized.

Jackson said the goal is to start construction this summer. He said the project will likely take about six months to complete.

The site plan calls for demolition of the existing house and motel and construction of a one-story bank building to be located on the 45,971 square feet combined two parcels. Three drive-through windows are proposed on the north side of the site.

Jackson said at the new facility the bank will offer the same services that it currently provides. And the new office may add two new full-time positions to the staff of six full-time employees.

Commission reviewed the bank's development plan on Monday night, March 27 and unanimously recommended it be approved by Charlevoix

City Council. Council will consider the plan at its meeting scheduled to take place at 7 p.m. on Monday, April 3.

Neighboring berm

Crews at St. Marys Cement Inc. work on what will soon be a 25-foot berm surrounding the property after Charlevoix Township passed a mining ordinance requiring some type of 25-foot barrier around the property if mining activity approaches 200 feet of the perimeter. Officials at St. Marys chose to create an aesthetically pleasing earthen hill which will be covered with grass and trees over a fence, in spite of the higher cost.

Audicare hearing specialist attends Baby Boomer hearing loss conference

Dr. Marlene Bevan of Audicare Hearing Centers in Charlevoix recently joined leading hearing care professionals from across the United States at a conference on Baby Boomers and hearing loss in Copenhagen, Denmark.

The conference explored attitudes and issues surrounding hearing loss among this new generation and looked at the newest high tech hearing solutions designed with technologically savvy, style-conscious Baby Boomers in mind.

Dr. Marlene Bevan

According to a survey conducted by the Better Hearing Institute, as many as one in two Americans over the age of 50 has a hearing problem. A six-year study by the House Ear Institute found that Baby Boomers in particular may be contributing to an increase in early hearing loss due to their excessive exposure to loud rock music.

"Many adults will begin to see the first noticeable changes in hearing acuity as they reach their 50s," Dr. Bevan said. "In fact, every second person over age 50 experiences a decrease in speech understanding in noisy listening situations."

ations like business meetings, social gatherings and restaurants."

According to Dr. Bevan, many people in the 50-plus generation resist addressing hearing loss, often waiting until the hearing loss is seriously affecting their quality of life.

For Baby Boomers, who expect to continue working or plan to stay socially active, untreated hearing loss negatively impacts work situations and relationships and can drastically affect future employment prospects.

In Denmark, Dr. Bevan was among the first hearing care professionals to learn about Oticon Delta, a revolutionary new design in personal hearing devices which she said looks more like a high tech fashion accessory than a hearing instrument.

"This is definitely not your grandfather's hearing aid," Dr. Bevan said. "Oticon Delta doesn't look at all like a hearing aid. It has a fashionable, high tech appearance and a streamlined triangular shape and it's so tiny that it's virtually invisible when being worn."

Best of all, this trendy hearing device contains some of the most sophisticated computer sound processing technology available so that it can give a significant improvement in speech understanding in noisy listening situations."

For more information about hearing loss contact Dr. Bevan by phone at (231) 547-3100 or by e-mail at bevan@audicare.com.

Results are in from the survey distributed by the City of Charlevoix's planning department.

About 100 people responded to the survey which was printed in the Nov. 2, 2005 edition of the Charlevoix Courier.

These responses will be used to shape the city's new master plan. The master plan is a guide for development over the next five to 10 years which details residents' goals and objectives for growth in the city. These goals and objectives are then implemented using the city's zoning ordinance.

"Attitudes change over time. It's important to look at what is going on in the community and to find out what people's attitudes are toward them," Charlevoix city planner, Gerry Harsch said.

About 3,200 surveys were distributed through the newspaper. The surveys were created during city planning commission brainstorming sessions. The survey was a 12-page form with specific community development questions that participants responded to by agreeing or disagreeing.

Of those who submitted the completed survey, 40 are city residents, 25 live in outlying townships, seven reside outside the planning area and 25 did not give their place of residence.

The primary focus for responses to be included in the master plan overhaul will be on those residents who live in the city.

PUBLIC NOTICE

If it's not in the newspaper, how will the public notice?

Zoning changes. Tax increases. Legislative proposals. These are just a few topics where government actions can affect your life and community. Imagine if government no longer had the legal obligation to publish this information in your newspaper. How would public notices get noticed? In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. It should not be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, when to look or even to know what you're looking for to be informed. It is government's responsibility to publish and deliver public notice information as it becomes available. So take notice. Your right to know is being served... right here in your newspaper.

Survey says: Architectural controls not top priority

those surveyed said contributes to the city's beauty, is its waterfront. The second, was city beaches and the third, was city parks. Lower ranking items were the petunias and remodeled city hall.

However, petunias were listed as the number two item contributing to the city's uniqueness. Recreation offerings like the ski hill, marina, baseball park and skate park ranked first for their contributions to unique character.

The number one threat to the city's beauty, according to those surveyed, is vacant downtown buildings. Unsightly development came in a close second while sprawl ranked low on this list.

Big box stores ranked first in terms of growth respondents said adversely effect the city's small-town character and architectural design was a low ranking element.

Harsch said he was surprised to see respondents are not concerned with architectural controls.

"Character maintenance is on the low end of the scale of what people are thinking about," he said.

This was also evidenced by responses to questions about the priority of creating a pattern book to guide redevelopment of existing housing and new building projects in the city.

"It wasn't a priority," Harsch said.

He explained that the city is within less than 25 acres of being totally built out. That acreage is concentrated along May Street, south of the new apartment complex, a piece behind the Wojan Window and Door Corporation plant, about eight acres by Irish Boat Storage off Carpenter Avenue and Pete Phillips' piece off Petoskey Avenue on Charlevoix's north side.

Harsch said the majority of this property is zoned residential.

"That's about it," he said of available development place. "Over time redevelopment will take place. It's always dynamic. It's not that we're built out and it stops."

Harsch said the city's land use plan, which is also being updated, is locked in by the space constraints.

The future of residential uses will likely be addressed in the revamped master plan. Harsch said the master plan will likely more realistically address densities and lot sizes in the residential district. Currently, he said 60 percent of homes in the R-1 residential district are non-conforming when it comes to lot size.

"The plan will bring that in line with reality," he said.

To maintain the beauty and character of the city those surveyed said the number one priority should be controls on the height and scale of structures.

Top ranking items to persevere city neighborhoods and streetscapes are listed as sidewalk maintenance and continuing of the city's Shade Tree Commission's street-side tree planting effort.

Provisions for affordable housing outside the development of apartment complexes were to allow construction of mother-in-law quarters above garages and creation of a housing conservancy.

Economic priorities and initiatives supported by those surveyed for furthering business and industry include providing utility services where needed and facilitating expansion of existing businesses. Those surveyed also support establishment of spring, fall and winter events to support year-round service at retail stores.

With the survey complete, the Charlevoix Planning Commission is working on policies steered by goals and objectives for the master plan.

This will include a direction on transportation, utilities and historic districts.

One piece that is not yet ready which is needed to complete the master plan is the infrastructure plan being worked on by engineers with Performance Engineering. The downtown development authority's plan is being updated by a consultant and a plan for the Mt. McSaubu property has been proposed.

Master plan revamping has been going on for about a year. Other work that has been completed includes infrastructure mapping and aerial photography.

Harsch said the goal is to have the plan complete by June 1. Public hearings will take place prior to city council's adoption of the plan.

Once the master plan has been adopted, the planning commission will work with city council to support the plan's goals through zoning and a capital improvement plan.

Lighthouse fund-raisers kick off with sticker sale

On April 1, the Harsha House Museum store will be offering lighthouse bumper stickers for a donation of $5.

All proceeds from the sale of these stickers will be allocated to the Charlevoix South Pier Light restoration project. The sticker depicts an image of the town's trademark lighthouse along with the letters CVX, the Federal Aviation Administration's three-letter airport code for the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

"We believe that using the airport code, along with the image of the lighthouse, is the best way to promote the lighthouse restoration project as well as the City of Charlevoix's pending ownership. The code is easy to read from a distance allowing us to keep the sticker compact," said chairperson of the Charlevoix Lighthouse Keepers Committee, Mary Adams.

The Charlevoix Lighthouse Keepers Committee has met several times to discuss fund-raising campaign plans. Annually, for the next five years, the committee will apply to the State Historic Preservation Office for lighthouse grants.

"We hope to be awarded their maximum annual grant of $40,000, which will require us to raise matching funds totaling $20,000 each year. Thanks to a generous challenge grant from a loyal historical society member who has pledged to support this project by donating $10,000 per year for five years, we are confident that we can raise the money necessary to complete the restoration within that period of time," Adams said.

Throughout the spring and summer, the lighthouse fund-raising group will announce additional offerings to raise money for the historic project.

This fund-raising effort has been initiated as a result of the United States Coast Guard's plan to excess its inventory of lighthouses. The City of Charlevoix has applied for ownership of the Charlevoix South Pier Light. Once the transfer of title takes place, there will be a partnership between the city, as owners and the Charlevoix Historical Society, as stewards. The Coast Guard will continue to operate the light as an aide to navigation and the Army Corps of Engineers will continue to maintain the pier.

"The city, along with the Charlevoix Historical Society, have applied to enter into a Historic Lease with the Coast Guard. That lease will give us standing to qualify for state and federal grants to help fund the restoration. Though we anticipate that it may take up to two years to have title transferred, with the lease in hand, we can begin restoration," Adams explained.

The Charlevoix Lighthouse Keepers Committee has created a "Keeper of the Light Club" with giving categories ranging from $1 to over $5,000. The society will maintain a list of club members that will be displayed in the Harsha House Museum for the duration of the restoration project and then stored in the historical society's archives as a permanent record of the community's broad based support.

For more information or a complete list of giving opportunities, contact David Miles or Steve Goslee at (231) 547-0373.

A spring ritual Parsons harvest maple sap for Harwood Heritage Gold syrup

The Parsons' family sugar bush which includes four acres of maple trees shouldering Harwood Lake in the heart of Norwood Township has been harvested since the 1920s. (Above) The new collection system installed by Dave Parsons this winter is expected to double the spring sap yield this year. Parsons is expecting to bring in over 200 gallons of his signature Harwood Heritage Gold syrup. Warm temperatures, like those seen this week, increase the sap flow. (Below) Parsons checks the status of the sap, boiling in the wood fired evaporator system which he also upgraded this year. More information about Harwood Heritage Gold syrup is available on-line at www.harwoodgold.com or by visiting the farm at 00061 Parsons Road.

Hospice foundation offers pain management teleconference

Each year the Hospice Foundation of America presents a nationally recognized distance learning program, live via satellite, to more than 125,000 people in 2,000 communities.

For more than a decade, this annual educational program has been instrumental in educating health care professionals and families on issues affecting end-of-life care.

It also provides an opportunity for a wide variety of professionals — including doctors, nurses, ethicists, educators, social workers and bereavement counselors — to share and exchange ideas and obtain continuing education credits.

This year, the Hospice

Foundation of America's 13th Annual National Bereavement Teleconference focuses on "Pain Management at the End of Life."

The teleconference will examine the gap between knowledge and application of effective pain control in the person with a terminal condition, including pharmaceutical, psycho-social, spiritual and complementary aspects of pain management.

The teleconference will be moderated by Frank Sesno, professor of public policy and communication at George Mason University and special correspondent with CNN. The program will be broadcast from 1 to 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 5 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

A distinguished panel of local experts will examine ways in which health care workers and the general public can work together to improve approaches to pain management.

For more information, call Linda Parsons, at (231) 547-8569.

Early registration is recommended as space is limited.

This program is offered free-of-charge. Continuing education credits are available for a fee.

New Rayder varsity softball coach hired

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Rayder High School athletics department lost two familiar faces from its softball program, and managed to gain one highly experienced coach in the process.

Two resignations were entered for the 2006 softball season by coaches Liz Grunch and Dean Spenceley.

Charlevoix High School principal, Gary Grundman, said Grunch, the program's former varsity coach, needed a decrease in her hectic schedule. Grunch coaches three sports in addition to teaching full-time. Former junior varsity softball coach, Spenceley, resigned because he is a member of the school board. It is school board policy that board members cannot serve as coaches.

Grundman said he is confident the new coach, Tony Zimmerman, will be a positive addition to the athletic department.

"I feel real good about it. We had four applications for the position and he was the best candidate," Grundman said. "He understood and knew the most about softball, and he did the best job in the interview at convincing me that he understood how to coach girls and how to get them to do what he wants them to do in softball."

Zimmerman, a 12-year softball coaching veteran, took over as the Rayder varsity softball coach after the two former coaches resigned.

As a graduate of Phoenix Tech,

Tony Zimmerman

Zimmerman is an architectural designer by trade, husband of Robin and father of daughters Madison, 16 and Haley, 8.

Zimmerman said the Charlevoix community has made him feel welcome.

"I'm very proud to be a part of the community. The overall enjoyment of being accepted in town has been great," he said. "I'm looking forward to serving the youth program."

Zimmerman was the varsity softball coach for three years and the assistant varsity coach for two years at Millington High School.

"And then I spent one year as varsity assistant at Charlevoix high and before that I had 10 years of coaching in summer programs throughout the state," he said.

For a decade, Zimmerman coached kids 18 and under.

"I'm extremely excited and very glad to be here," he said. "I am very proud of all the kids at this point. I'm looking forward to having a very successful year."

Zimmerman said he has always enjoyed working with kids in sports, especially when he was coaching his children.

"I played throughout my high school career and college," he said. "I got into the coaching end of it with my daughter."

He added, "I actually get more enjoyment out of coaching than I did out of playing."

Zimmerman said the most important thing the kids could get out of this season is to have a team attitude and to be the best they can.

"It gives me lots of satisfaction when the kids achieve a goal they set out to do," he said. "The satisfaction is in teaching the kids and giving them opportunities I've had and teaching them how to play as a team and how it affects you throughout your life."

Zimmerman said he goes into each season looking, not at how well the team can do win-wise, but how much the individuals can grow.

"Whatever team I'm coaching, my goal is for each individual athlete to get at least five things out of it," he said. "I want them to learn five new things or improve on five things they are already trying to accomplish."

CHS track and field club compete at championship

A group of Charlevoix High School students preparing for the upcoming track and field season have formed a competitive pre-season training club.

Brandon Stevens, Jacob Wimmer, Nate Sotuyo and Scott Plude competed on Saturday, March 18 in the Michigan All-Division State Indoor Track and Field Championships at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

At the recent championship, they broke their club and school record by 11 seconds, finishing with a time of 8 minutes, 24 seconds in the 3200 meter relay.

The boys were state medalists in the 3200 meter relay in 2005, finishing fourth.

Sotuyo missed being a state medalist in the 800 meter by four one-hundredths of a second. He finished ninth with a time of 2:04.45 minutes.

Youth wrestlers place at meet March 18 in Gaylord

Charlevoix elementary and middle school wrestlers hit the mats on March 18 in Gaylord.

The competition was tough, but over half of the Charlevoix team placed in first, second or third places.

According to coach Craig Golovich, the wrestlers were up to the challenge and were able to use the mat time to practice their skills in the round robin style tournament.

Third place finishers were Kody Gould, Collin Turkelson, Trevor Van Norman, Spencer Bruce, Avery Penfold, Eric Trippelhorn, Alex Waha, Jordan Farmer, Ryan Penfold, Steven Belfy and Jacob Roach.

Many Rayder wrestlers were awarded "Pin pins" which are given to those who were able to pin opponents.

First place finishers were Jared McLean, Mick Hinkle, Justin Perkins, Sammy Hovie, Eli Daman, Brad Rizzo, Casey Swadling, Hunter Turner, Chris Levens and Zach Smith.

Second place finishers were Tabetha Penfold, Oliver DeYoung, Jamey Eakes, Jake Novotny and Matt Levens.

Northstar's take St. Patrick's Day tourney

Boyer Area Hockey's Northstar Group Midget team posted a sweep, winning the St. Patrick's Day Tournament Championship March 17-18 at the Summit in Lansing.

With dogged determination and tremendous team play, the team scored 25 goals and gave up only six in four games. Goalie Nick Ferree earned two shutouts.

In the first game, Boyne shutout Big Rapids 4-0. Ryan Pardee put Boyne on the board less than two minutes into the game. Will Brown scored a power play goal, assisted by Nick Dunwoody and Pardee. Russell Williams drove in two goals with assists from Brown and John Miller.

In next draw, Boyne manhandled Bellbrook, Ohio winning the game 9-1. Justin Stolt and Nick Dunwoody each scored twice, and Russell Williams, Chad Newson, John Miller, Matt Mills, Ryan Pardee and Keegan David each scored once. Dunwoody and Evan Keller were both play makers with three assists. Miller gave two, and Britt King, Will Brown, Stolt, David and Williams tallied one each.

High energy and two way hockey ruled the 5-0 win against Chelsea. Russell Williams netted the opener, and Nick Dunwoody and John Miller each hit the twine twice. Will Brown gave two assists, Scott Sutliff, Josh Aown, Justin Stolt and Duane Aulger gave one a piece.

The championship game was a rematch with Big Rapids. By the end of the first period, Russell Williams and Ryan Pardee scored twice each, and Matt Mills scored once. Big Rapids clawed their way back to a 5-6 score by halfway through the third period, but Boyne put one more on the board and went into defensive mode and earned the 7-5 win. Nick Dunwoody and Evan

Conservation issues to be topic of April 6 political forum

Marvin Roberson, a nationally known Sierra Club forestry specialist, will be the featured speaker in an open forum to take place at 7 p.m. April 6 at the Boyne City Hall, located at 319 North Lake Street in Boyne City.

Roberson will lead a discussion focused on why voters should consider conservation issues before casting votes, at the non-partisan forum sponsored by the Charlevoix County Democratic Party.

"Most Americans consider themselves environmentalists, and yet environmental issues are normally quite low on voters' priority lists when choosing candidates," Roberson said. "Yet, these issues are really economic, health, and national security issues. Conservation issues should be a high priority in election night decision making."

An Upper Peninsula native, Roberson holds a master's of science degree in forest ecology from the University of Michigan. Prior to becoming the Sierra Club's Michigan Chapter forest policy specialist, he was the National Director of Lands and Habitat Programs for the Sierra Club, headquartered in Washington, D.C.

The April 6th forum, while hosted by the Charlevoix County Democrats, is open to everyone regardless of political affiliation.

"Our goal is to stimulate discussion on issues important to all the citizens of Charlevoix County," said Charlevoix County Democratic Party chair, Bill Lovett. "We welcome debate and all points of view and hope to see a good turnout for this important forum."

ISD seeks millage renewal May 2

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Mark Eckhardt

The Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District has a millage renewal proposal on the ballot for the May 2 election.

"If this millage doesn't pass, and the schools choose to continue to operate these (vocational) education programs, the money would have to come out of their general fund."

Mark Eckhardt,
Superintendent
Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District

tion.

"If this millage doesn't pass, and the schools choose to continue to operate these (vocational) programs, the money would have to come out of their general fund," said superintendent of the Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District, Mark Eckhardt. "And, with all the cuts by the state to the general fund and operating funds, my guess is the programs will not be operating."

Of the 3,400 students in the Intermediate School District, 2,700 are enrolled in some type of approved vocational-technical educational program.

The 39 programs include business, hospitality, foodservice, building trades, technology, marketing and computer aided drafting.

"They (students) wouldn't be in them if they weren't high-quality programs," Eckhardt said. "These are for all kids, whether they are college bound students or not."

He added, "These programs cover the whole array of students."

Eckhardt said the importance of these vocational-technical programs is paramount. And, he emphasized that this is simply a renewal of a millage which originally passed in 1996.

"In 1996, there were 11 classes being offered. Now, there are 39," Eckhardt said. "I believe very strongly in these programs for students to meet the needs of the workforce out there. If the millage does not pass, then you are probably looking at 2,700 students enrolled in high school who will not be able to participate in these programs or exposure will be very limited."

He added, "These high-quality programs are for all kids."

The road to the Mrs. Michigan title

Former Miss Charlevoix competes for the state title

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

One of Charlevoix's newest married women and a former Miss Charlevoix will compete for the title of Mrs. Michigan America.

Pageant veteran Tanya Umulis, 22, will compete April 15 in Owosso in the Mrs. Michigan America pageant.

The articulate Umulis married Charlevoix city patrolman Matt Umulis on Jan. 7.

"It's been a while since I've had the itch (to compete in a pageant). I never thought I would compete once I got married. I thought I would put that behind me," she said.

But she said after her jaunt down the aisle her competitive spirit didn't change. And a week before her wedding, when her mother-in-law mentioned she would soon be eligible for a new pageant circuit, the Mrs. league, Umulis thought to herself, "That's not such a bad idea."

Charlevoix resident Tanya (Wyniawskij) Umulis was crowned Miss Charlevoix in 2000. After getting married in January, she registered to compete in the Mrs. Michigan America pageant.

When her supportive husband caught wind of the idea he smiled and said, "I could be married to Mrs. Michigan."

"I knew I had to do it," she said. With her mind set on competing, Umulis hit the streets in search of sponsors to fund the $595 entry fee as well as to pay for two pages of advertisements in the event program.

"I never could have done it without them," she said.

While Umulis is aiming to place in the top five out of the over 20 women currently registered in the competition, her track record and home office dripping in tiaras, are evidence that she hasn't had to settle for a runner-up finish often.

Umulis started her pageant career in 1998 when she was 14. After spending a season singing in between segments at the Miss Teen Northwest pageant in East Jordan, watching each of the contestants, she knew she could compete.

"I won it the next year at 14," she said.

The following year, in 1999, she went on to win Miss Northwest.

"Then I had the tick. By nature, I am an extremely competitive person," she said. "Once I did the two pageants and won both, I felt invincible."

Summer 2000 marked her favorite win, being crowned Miss Charlevoix during the Venetian Festival.

"It was the best feeling in the world next to my wedding day," she said.

grams are truly an indispensable opportunity for these students."

Eckhardt said, while too numerous to mention them all, a benefit of vocational-technical education includes the hands-on learning experience.

"These programs provide quality experience in the area of vocational education learning programs," he said. "The students learn a trade and they learn how to be productive citizens."

He added, "They're doing great things in these programs. These students are just phenomenal in what they're doing."

Some of the students of the Intermediate School District's video production course were invited to compete against large corporations such as Ford Motor Company and IBM in a marketing campaign contest and the students won first place.

"The kids that are leaving here are able to get a job right out of high school, or they can continue their education and get a leg up on everybody — that's our goal," Eckhardt said.

If anyone is skeptical about voting for this millage, Eckhardt said, "What they need to do is visit their high school and the kids and see how important this is for the students to get great, high-quality educational programs."

One of 57 intermediate school districts in the state, Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District attends to 11,450 students in 11 public school districts with six private schools and three public academies.

PAGEANT

Tanya Umulis

In 2002, she competed in the Miss Michigan pageant where she didn't place, but said she learned valuable life lessons.

"It taught me more about the direction I want to take in life. To want to be in the community and help out wherever I can. To know at the end of the day, you've made someone else's life easier," Umulis said.

In 2003, she was crowned Miss Lake Michigan USA, a preliminary to Miss Michigan USA. She competed twice at the state level for this title, finishing in the top 10 one year and earning third runner-up the second year.

Since then, Umulis has taken a break from the glam pageant world, volunteering at area schools — acting as a mentor and tutoring students — and working toward her teaching degree at Spring Arbor University. Her goal is to teach sixth grade.

She said coming off a three-year break in the rat race, her strength continues to be the interview portion of the competition.

"I'm always myself. I don't put on an act," she said. "Once you've figured out what makes you happy, you automatically feel comfortable enough to nail any question they throw at you in an interview."

Her ability to be genuine in the cut throat pageant world she said stems from her mobile childhood. Her father, a civil engineer, moved regularly for work and Umulis said there she learned to be resilient and carved her competitive edge.

Her training for the upcoming event has included a regular exercise regimen as well as studying current events.

She said the one obstacle she will have to overcome is that she has no children at this time.

"This is uncharted waters for me. Being in competition with people my exact age is second nature. I'm uneasy knowing someone may score higher on the basis that they've accomplished more based on their age," she said. "I can't compete with a PTA mom, but maybe their (the judges) not looking for a PTA mom."

The prize package to be awarded to the woman crowned Mrs. Michigan America includes $13,000 in prizes and a two-week trip to Tucson, Ariz. for the Mrs. Michigan pageant to take place in August.

A mix of heavy snow and rain fell Monday morning and early afternoon creating dangerous driving conditions and throwing thoughts of spring back into hibernation. OPINIONS

Direct sign funding to a more worthy project

In March, wooden and steel posts began popping up all over town in close proximity to existing signs. According to representatives of the Michigan Department of Transportation, this project will replace all signs along U.S. 31 and M-66 in Charlevoix and Antrim counties. The total project cost, $500,000, is being funded by the federal government.

The same type of sign overhaul is underway in areas of southern Michigan as well.

We've been taking a close look at the signs scheduled for replacement and don't see the point of replacing most of them. The posts are in good shape and the signs are readable and aesthetically acceptable.

There are efficiencies that can be realized in replacing all the signs at once. But when you have a plumbing problem at home do you have the plumber service each loo in the house or just the one with the issue?

Fixing something that isn't broken is a waste of money. And we argue this sign replacement project follows that logic. Instead, the state can take those funds allocated by the feds and contract with local county road commissions annually to have defunct signs replaced as needed. Other funds could be earmarked for needed road improvements such as Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

It's nice to see job creation come of the sign project. But this small amount of work does little for the high economic picture in Michigan.

Our country's deficit is at an all-time high, and education, which we feel is the key to future economic prosperity, is in peril.

Why are we throwing money away to replace perfectly good signs. In Michigan, $500,000 could be used to increase per pupil funding or for specialized job training.

Incompetence emerges as the new political buzzword

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

Incompetence is the new political buzzword.

Conservatives say the liberals are incapable of governing and keeping us safe and are too incompetent to understand what must be done. Liberals say that conservatives hire their friends, regardless of competence. One thing is clear in all this, incompetence is a bipartisan problem. It may even be a society-wide problem. It's not just an individual problem of a few incompetent bad apples. Widespread incompetence appears to be a social disease. We can only hope it isn't contagious.

The problem with incompetence is that it is apparently compatible with a large number of desirable characteristics. It's possible to be intelligent and incompetent. Take note of the Enron scandal where the perpetrators were identified in a recent book as the "smartest guys in the room." They may have been smart, but if they were really competent, they would have avoided bankruptcy and never have been caught.

It's possible to be capable and incompetent. I note that while my tax returns done by H and R Block are capably completed, the parent company is under investigation in New York state for improper tax filing. Somebody is doing something incompetent at H and R Block's headquarters. All the corporations that have recently been forced to revise their annual statements of profit and loss suggest that for many accountants, capability and incompetence go hand in hand. If accounting is precision work, then preciseness and incompetence are also compatible.

It's possible to be clever and incompetent, sincere and incompetent and, most troublesome, decisive and incompetent. The decisive incompetent person is a potential national or international disaster just waiting to happen. After watching daily newspapers for only a few days, examples abound. The Educational Testing Services making grading errors, FEMA making all possible errors, federal lawyers coaching witnesses (something known to be wrong by first-year law students.) The FBI has been trying since before the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks to develop a new computer system to keep track of their information and have had to abandon more than one new system because they didn't work. NASA lost a Mars probe because someone didn't comprehend the difference between centimeters and inches. I have not even mentioned Iraq, and still the list is long enough to be discouraging. It seems to include all political, social and educational groups.

Most often when something involving computers goes wrong, it is described as a computer glitch, which suggests that the computer is somehow incompetent. Computers cannot be incompetent. There is always a person who programmed them incompetently, even though we almost never know who it was.

If we begin to fail as a nation it will not be because of moral rot or a decaying family structure, it will be because of incompetence. Nations with an abundance of competent citizens will thrive.

Certainly people make mistakes. The clue to avoiding serious problems is to find the mistakes before they result in any action. The old carpenter's rule "measure twice, cut once," is a better solution to incompetence than a Harvard education. The problem is not just being incompetent, but acting out the incompetence. The source of real competence is most simply caring about the outcome of your actions.

When hiring or voting, look for evidence of competence, not for evidence of intelligence, cleverness, capability, sincerity or decisiveness. Those last mentioned are all fine and potentially valuable things, but none of them is worth a fig without competence. I hope that we can teach people competence, or that they can learn it on their own.

Watchful eye on PA
Editor:
For those of you who are involved, support, and are alumni of the Charlevoix performing arts program at Charlevoix High School, it's time to take some action. With the retirement of Connie Ford there is the distinct possibility that our program may cease to exist or be seriously damaged. Budget considerations by the superintendent's office, the school board, and the high school administration make the performing arts program a likely target for elimination. Irony, since we were asked to fund an exceptional high school auditorium.

I ask that all future and former students, parents, and the community at large contact the central office and the school board and demand they explore all the options available to them before taking action towards a program that has benefited hundreds of students over the years. The valuable skills that students for years have taken away with them from our program at Charlevoix High School have been applied in every occupation and profession. The elimination of this program would be a serious blow to the quality of our students' education.

If you wish to voice your support for retaining the performing arts in Charlevoix High School please contact our school board members, the superintendent, and the high school now. A quality education is what our young people need, expect and deserve.

Donations accepted

Since the article pertaining to the future of the Charlevoix Rainbow Shoppe was published in the paper, people have asked if we are continuing to accept contributions. The answer is a definite, "yes." We will continue to carry on business as usual. We are pursuing all avenues, whether it be constructing, or purchasing a building or staying at our present location.

We did receive a monetary donation toward our future plans and have set up a separate account at the Charlevoix State Bank under the "Rainbow Shoppe Building Fund." Donations may be made to this fund, but we are still praying for a generous angel for our non-profit organization.

Deer herd management

Editor:
I write to you as president of Afton Deer Management, a growing group of concerned citizens in this area whose purpose is the cultivation and maintenance of a healthy and well-managed deer herd. This year, our group tilled approximately 60 acres of public lands for deer feed, plus private lands, and members prune trees on state land, and plant fruit trees for feed each year. Our group has established routes for regular surveillance of deer to aid the Department of Natural Resources in obtaining an accurate deer count and we are working on a winter feeding program.

Members regularly attend meetings of the Natural Resources Commission. A study of surveys and revenues for the Department of Natural Resources shows that there has been a decline for the last five years at the rate of about 4 percent per year. We are concerned that our area is losing considerable revenues over the years due to our decreasing deer population. The number of licenses issued is decreasing also.

We have written to our senators and representatives requesting that they transfer control and give full charge of management of the deer herd to the Natural Resources Commission.

Right now, there is a separation in that control over licensing and legal size of the deer taken is legislative. Currently, the Natural Resources Commission can only control the number of doe permits issued.

I would request that every interested person recognize the importance of this issue and write to your local representatives to request a bill that will give the Natural Resources Commission this power. It is a working tool they can't do without in their efforts to manage Michigan's deer herd.

NWA students place at State Solo and Ensemble

The Northwest Academy Advanced Band members attended the State Solo and Ensemble Festival on Saturday, March 25 in Manistee.

Of the eight events the group participated in, five performances received first division ratings and three received second division ratings.

Three students qualified with high proficiency scores and received a first division rating. They are Devin Toton who scored a 92 percent, Gary Toton who scored an 88 percent and Anna Kroon who scored a 87 percent. Two ensemble events also received first division ratings. They were Kellie Young and Devin Toton with a tenor sax and trumpet duet and Kellie Young, Allana Leslie and Anna Kroon with a saxophone trio. Receiving a second division rating were Anna Kroon, Kellie Brethauer and Emma Maynard with a clarinet trio and Gary Toton and Allana Leslie with a tenor sax duet. Allana Leslie received a 60 percent on her Proficiency I tenor sax solo.

This is the eighth consecutive year that a large percentage of Northwest Academy band students have scored high ratings at the State Solo and Ensemble Festival.

"I am very proud of the results that these students have been able to accomplish year in and year out," said Gary Stutzman, director of bands for Northwest Academy.

County-wide highway sign project underway

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Wooden posts being installed near existing directional signs along U.S. 31 and M-66 in Charlevoix and Antrim counties are part of a $500,000 overhaul of signs in both counties.

According to Rise Rasch, the Traverse City transportation service manager for the Michigan Department of Transportation, the project, which started in March, is a routine procedure being undertaken by the department of transportation. The project is being funded by the federal government.

Rasch said the signs have not been replaced for over 10 years. And added that the life expectancy of the signs is over 15 years.

Some of the signs are made of plywood, others are aluminum. The material is dependent on the location and function of the sign. The poles are either steel or wood.

The project is expected to be complete in early May. Rasch said the project shouldn't require lane closures along either U.S. 31 or M-66 as most of the work is in the shoulder off the road.

The department of transportation is not undertaking any major road improvements in Charlevoix this summer.

Wooden posts like those shown above, located off U.S. 31 near Martin Road on Charlevoix's north side, are being installed near existing directional signs along U.S. 31 and M-66 in Charlevoix and Antrim counties.

SANE 2005 report: 34 drug related arrests in county

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Drug enforcement officers had an eventful year in northern Michigan in 2005.

Despite levels higher than they'd like to see, the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement (SANE) team's recently released 2005 annual report reflects a leveling off of certain types of drug prevalence in the area.

Two of the drugs which seem to be most prevalent, said Det. Lt. Ken Mills, Unit Commander for SANE, are cocaine and prescription drugs.

"Counts for cocaine have doubled. We've seen it and heard about it on the street," he said. "When it comes to prescription medication, it's still high, but it seems to be more leveled off."

He added, "That problem is not going to go away, because those folks that are addicted need help. It's hard to get off them. We may arrest some folks. They may be convicted and go to jail, but they come back out and a lot of times it's not long before they're right back out there."

"Prescription drugs continue to be a problem with overdose deaths. And the amount of cases we're working is still high," Mills said. "But, marijuana is still the most popular."

There were 226 drug related arrests made in 2005 in the nine-county area SANE covers. From that, 608 counts were levied against those individuals. Drugs were seized with a street value of $345,874. In Charlevoix County, 34 arrests were made.

The net income received by SANE from asset forfeitures totaled $101,554.

To put Charlevoix County's arrest rate of 34 in perspective, Antrim County had no arrests, while Chippewa County had 50.

Mills said SANE's goals are more associated with focusing on taking drug traffickers off the streets than simply worrying about the amount of drugs they seize.

"Getting someone out of commission that is constantly doing business, we feel, has the biggest impact, so they're not bringing (drugs) into our communities," he said.

Mills said, due to factors such as affluence and lesser degrees of crime, prescription drugs are easier to attain in northern Michigan.

"If they're properly prescribed and properly taken, they're a wonderful thing," Mills said. "People who have chronic pain need these drugs to get by. But, there's a small group of individuals who know they can make money by selling it and know they can get high from taking it."

He added, "We've tried to get the word out on the dangers of prescription drugs, but a lot of people think that, since they're prescribed by doctors and made by a pharmaceutical company, they're safer than heroin, and that's not the case."

Mills said his team prioritizes as they see trends in arrests, treatments and trafficking shift.

"We identify the trends we feel are the most dangerous and try to have an impact on those," he said. "We noticed that methamphetamine in treatment records is up significantly from 2004-2005. In 2004, they only had a couple admit to using it in our four northern lower counties."

He added, "In 2005, 13 admitted to methamphetamine being their primary drug of use. That's a significant jump. We want to keep our eyes on those things as they move north."

Mills said he is satisfied with the work SANE performs in northern Michigan.

"We feel pretty good about what we're doing. A lot of what we do in our small rural communities has great impact," he said. "Arresting someone with a little cocaine might not seem big, but he may be dealing to other communities, so the impact that has in our small community is big."

Mills added, "In a bigger city, as soon as you arrest someone for crack, there is someone else on that street corner, but it doesn't happen that quickly (in this area)."

Methamphetamine production is on the rise throughout the country, and while Mills said it hasn't been the most popular drug in the area, it is out there.

"Everybody is affected by methamphetamine, whether it's someone dumping their biohazards or waste from the cooking process or someone driving with this in their system," Mills said.

"The recovery rate (with methamphetamine) is pretty dismal. At 6 percent, meth has the lowest recovery rate of all addictive drugs."

He added, "And not only that, the chemicals in the labs themselves are pretty toxic and explosive in nature."

Despite SANE's successes throughout the years, Mills said, his team is not immune to the fiscal chopping block.

"Our board is dealing with a budget situation — everybody is feeling that," he said. "Our grants are being cut drastically, and coming up next year, we're taking another hit to our funding."

This stash of assorted drugs and cash resulted from one of the many seizures performed by the Straits Area Narcotics Enforcement (SANE) team in northern Michigan. The 226 arrests made by SANE in its many jurisdictions ranged from absconding and delivery of cocaine, to maintaining a drug house and possessing burglary tools.

He added, "We feel the impact that we have is something that people don't notice since we're covert in nature and our investigations are ongoing. Some of the best stuff we do never gets into the paper."

For more information or to report concerns you may have about illegal activities involving drugs, call SANE toll free at (800) 621-8651.

"Those that feel someone in their community may be dealing drugs can call us," Mills said. "A lot of times people think we know everything. We know a lot, but we don't know everything."

Health department proposes sanitary code

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

A unified sanitary code has been proposed for the four counties under jurisdiction of the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

With sanitary codes written on dates ranging from 1968 to 2001, the codes of Emmet, Otsego, Antrim and Charlevoix counties have at least a few variances from each other.

"This is a proposed code," said director of environmental health, Scott Kendzierski. "Where we're at right now is, we're trying to incorporate the final revisions to the code. We've had input from commissioners, installers, real-estate (agents) and pumpers. We've had really diverse groups giving input on this."

Kendzierski said he hopes to see the proposed regulation go to public hearings by as early as May or June.

"Depending on how things go, we could potentially have a new code adopted by fall, but it's a long process and I think it needs to be done in a thoughtful way with input from everyone," he said. "We're certainly not trying to rush this process."

He added, "We started over two years ago. I think when Emmet (County) went through their revision, it took them three years, and I don't expect we'll have it done before the three-year mark."

The main changes in the proposed Unified Sanitary Code, Kendzierski said, include an expansion of definitions to allow for clearer meanings, changes in construction standards which will allow for septic tank risers for easier location of septic tanks in the field and the ability to install an effluent filter to extend the life of septic systems.

Kendzierski said another of the proposed changes includes advanced treatment systems which use innovative technologies to pretreat wastewater before it goes to disposal and more oversight to ensure proper maintenance of systems.

The board of health will look at the proposed regulation. If approved, the proposal will be taken to the four counties for public hearings.

"I think there will be some issues. It will create some small costs to the system," Kendzierski said. "An effluent filter can cost anywhere from $40 to $120, but it is a great benefit to reducing solids going out into the field and it extends the life of the system."

The proposed regulation also provides some language to deal with the event that someone is granted an easement from their neighbor for a pump back system when one person's land isn't suit-

both parties," he said.

Kendzierski said the main reason for the proposed regulation able, but their neighbor's is.

"Even though we've been doing this for a number of years, we're providing the right legal language that protects is to get people to maintain their septic systems before the systems fail.

"If it doesn't pass, I think some of the benefits in the code won't be implemented, and as time moves on and this area becomes more densely populated, we need to address issues of how we manage septic systems," he said. "Also, we have revised the appeals section of the code, creating a five-member appeals board."

He added, "Having a board of health review over the appeals that are granted will maintain consistency over the counties on how appeals are granted or not granted."

Kendzierski said, if the proposal passes, an on-site maintenance monitoring system will be established to create a registry to track permitted, on-site septic systems, which will help ensure maintenance is done in a timely manner.

"And once on the registry, anytime a tank is pumped, we'll get a statement. If it hasn't been pumped in five years, we'll send a notice to the homeowners."

To see the entire proposed regulation, visit www.nwhealth.org.

Lions Club plans April 15 disc sporting event

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

You might not catch Tiger Woods out on the course from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., April 15, but citizens of all ages will have the chance to enjoy a disc golf and disc horseshoe clinic sponsored by the Lions that day at Ferry Beach Park.

"We're asking all of our Lions to show up to learn how to play these games to see if it's feasible to go ahead with a fund-raiser," said Bern Cannan of the Lions Club of Charlevoix. "This is strictly a learning experience. We're also going to invite anyone from the public to come down and join in."

Dave Fuller, head of the Northern Michigan Disc Sports Organization, will bring a team of experts to demonstrate some of the many disc oriented games available.

"We'll be featuring disc horseshoes, which is quite a fun game, and some disc golf," Cannan said. "We'll actually be setting up some targets for people to shoot at."

Disc golf has been an organized sport since the 1970s. It can be played for a low cost, discs range in cost from as low as $7 or $8 and the sport can be played just about anywhere with some open space.

"Put two of these targets 40-feet apart and you have a disc horseshoe course," Cannan said. "Or, put 18 of them around a field and you have a (disc) golf course."

While a golf ball is hit into a hole in the ground, disc golf is won by getting the disc into the target, which consists of a canvas and metal basket, in the fewest throws.

"The one that's the easiest and most fun to teach people is disc horseshoes," Cannan said. "You get to throw a lot of times, it's a short distance and it doesn't take much space."

The Lions first conceived of the possibility of holding a disc sports fund-raiser after learning Fuller's group raised more than $5,000 in a single event.

"The one on April 15 is free-of-charge. We may have people sign up for events, but right now, it's more or less a clinic," he said. "If there are some events we can do where we'll get some competition, we'll take it from there."

Cannan added, "We're very good at putting on golf outings — this is the 13th year we're putting on a golf outing, and we've attracted over 125 golfers. We know how to do that and would apply some of the same things as we do for golf."

The Charlevoix Lions Club has approximately 25 different beneficiaries. "And we're looking at adding some more," Cannan said. "Disc sports can be played any time of the year. The only thing that can stop it is a blizzard or thunder and lightning."

The Professional Disc Golf Association (PDGA) has more than 16,000 members, and the game is played throughout the world. Possibly the most popular disc sport is the disc golf, although disc horseshoes and the other varieties of disc games are becoming more popular.

Cannan said the Lions Club is in the early stages of deciding whether to hold a cold weather disc sport fund-raiser.

"This is just a feasibility study to see if we can attract enough attention to put on a major event next year sometime between January and April," Cannan said. "We hope it would be something to do in the off-season for the Lions and the community and any visitors that we can attract."

If the Lions decide to go ahead with the fund-raisers, they will be planned during times the golf courses are unused.

"We have people who don't like to go downhill on skis in the wintertime," he said. "All ages can play disc sports. Even the youngest can throw a disc into a basket."

He added, "I'm 86. So, if I can throw it, anyone can throw it. And, it's good exercise. Just the activity of walking and throwing is enough to get your blood moving."

The Charlevoix Lions Club has been around for 43 years and is part of Lions International, a large volunteer organization founded in 1917.

PARENTING

Combatting sleep struggles, creating healthy snoozers

Sharon Smorch
'Kids' corner'

Most common infant and children's sleep problems are bedtime struggles—having trouble going to bed and falling asleep and nighttime awakenings that are usually the result of being unable to return to sleep by self-soothing. These problems may be far reaching.

Sleep disruptions will affect a child's mood and behavior causing daytime sleepiness, decreased attention span, restlessness, excessive physical activity (hyperactivity), irritability, impulsiveness, distractibility, decreased memory, excessive crying and temper tantrums. Research shows that sleep disorders experienced in infancy may persist into the toddler years and later childhood, it may even predict further sleep and behavior management problems.

A child's sleep problems also affect parents, causing them to lose sleep, affecting their mood and behavior and impacting their interaction with their children. Parents can help prevent sleep problems before intervention is required by understanding their child's natural sleep patterns and creating an environment that encourages developing good sleep practices.

Every baby has a distinctive pattern of sleep and waking. As time passes, you'll see that these follow a natural and consistent rhythm throughout the 24-hour day. Usually this will emerge by 6 weeks, with clear individual awakenings. A daily sleep schedule can be learned by 3 to 4 months.

Doing business without promoting is like working in the dark — nobody knows how to find you when they need you.

Call 547-6558

Charlevoix Courier

112 Mason St. • Charlevoix

By 3 to 6 months, baby's nighttime sleep becomes more consolidated with being physically able to sleep for longer periods of time. All babies have normal brief awakenings throughout the night (usually four to six times), lasting between one to five minutes every 90 to 120 minutes. Following a nighttime arousal, infants may alert their parents by crying, or may soothe themselves back to sleep without disrupting parents.

Not being able to self-soothe is usually related to development of negative sleep associations. Meaning the conditions that are present at the time the infant falls asleep must be present again for baby to fall asleep (rocking, nursing, etc.)

Sleep patterns affect baby's behavior throughout the day as well as baby's health and development. Sleep disturbances in children are associated with daytime behavior problems. Sleep deprivation increases the chance of accidental injuries and may affect the heart, immune system and digestive system of the baby.

Babies and children thrive on routine. A consistent and positive bedtime routine will reduce bedtime struggles and influence sleep.

Allowing themselves an opportunity to fall asleep by himself by putting baby to bed drowsy, but awake will help prevent these struggles.

By 18 months, most children will discontinue morning naps.

Before bed

Don't

Exercise hard Play video games
Fight with siblings

Do

Read a story
Take a bath
Sing a song

Usually between 3 and 5 years, most children stop napping altogether. At this time, their nighttime sleep will probably increase.

Snoring, noisy breathing and breathing pauses are symptoms of Obstructive Sleep Apnea or Upper Airway Resistance Syndrome. Parasomnias are common in young children. These are usually nighttime arousal or partial arousal such as sleep walking, sleep talking, sleep terrors as well as nightmares. This is normal development.

However, persistently too scared to fall asleep and frequent awakenings with severe nightmares may signal an anxiety disorder or serious emotional stress.

Prevention of poor sleep habits is the key to a good night's sleep. When sleep disorders are diagnosed and treated you will see a remarkable improvement in mood, behavior and attention.

The center is located within the hospital at 14700 Lake Shore Drive in Charlevoix. She can be contacted by calling (231) 547-8900.

Maintaining healthy sleep habits in teens

The following is a list of six tips for maintaining healthy sleep habits in teens.

1. Sleep is food for the brain. Lack of sleep can make you look tired and feel depressed, irritable and angry. Even mild sleepiness can hurt your performance from taking school exams to playing sports or video games. Learn how much sleep you need to function at your best. Most adolescents need between 8.5 and 9.25 hours of sleep each night to awaken refreshed, not tired.

2. Keep a regular bedtime and wake time schedule, and maintain this schedule during weekends and school, even during vacations.

3. Get into bright light as soon as possible in the morning, but avoid it in the evening. This light helps to signal the brain when it should wake up and when it should prepare to sleep.

4. Understand your circadian rhythms. Then you can try to maximize your schedule throughout the day according to your internal clock. For example, to compensate for your "slump (sleepy) times," participate in stimulating activities or classes that are interactive. Try to avoid lecture classes and potentially unsafe activities, including driving.

5. After lunch (or in the afternoon), avoid caffeine, which is a stimulant. Also avoid alcohol, it disrupts sleep.

6. Relax before going to bed. Avoid heavy reading, studying and computer games within an hour of going to bed. Don't fall asleep with the television on — flickering light and stimulating content can prevent restful sleep.

Lee Bennett Hopkins,
"Got Geography."

Ages 5-9

Sixteen authors have brought us a beautiful tour of the world through poetry.

P.J. party

On Thursday morning, March 30, first-grade students at Charlevoix Elementary School enjoyed their annual pajama party during which principal Dick Swenor read a bedtime story to them.

Literacy celebration to take place on April 13 at elementary school

Literacy will be celebrated during fun activities for families with children age birth to five beginning at 5:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 13, at Charlevoix Elementary School.

On tap for the evening will be several interactive literacy events. Special guest readers will read books to children. Chris Hauke, Charlevoix Library Youth Services Supervisor, is working with Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District staff to provide the fun activities for parents and children birth to five. Older siblings are welcome to attend with their family.

A light dinner will be provided from 5:30 to 6 p.m., with all the activities following.

"While interacting with their children, parents will learn new activities and strategies to expand their child's learning," said Leslie VanDeCar, a family school liaison with the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

The evening is sponsored by Charlevoix Elementary School and Stepping Stones to School. Stepping Stones to School is a network of free services open to all families with children, ages birth through five. Stepping Stones to School is designed to help families walk their child toward school readiness starting at birth. Studies show that the potential success of a child depends on the level of parental and adult involvement beginning at birth.

Besides learning about events, families that enroll in Stepping Stones to School receive invitations to play groups to meet other families with young children; newsletters with information on health, nutrition and fun activities to try at home; birthday packets from the local elementary school until the child reaches kindergarten; access to an event line listing area activities; and home visits from a registered nurse.

For more information about Stepping Stones to School or the location and date of activities at your local elementary school, call (231) 547-6217.

DNR anticipates active wildfire season

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources, which is responsible for wildland fire protection of 20 million acres of state and private land, is anticipating an active spring wildfire season.

"The outlook for 2006 calls for a fairly active spring which will likely include at least one large wildfire," said Scott Heather, Department of Natural Resources state wildfire supervisor.

Statistics kept by the Forest, Minerals and Fire Management (FMFM) Division show that the Department of Natural Resources already has responded to more fires burning more acres in 2006 than it did by the time in the early spring 2005.

According to representatives of the Forest, Minerals and Fire Management (FMFM) Division, 2005 was considered a very active year for wildland fire.

Heather explained that while most of the state received a higher than normal amount of rain during the winter, many parts of the state didn't receive a lot of snow.

"This means that fine fuels, such as tall grasses and weeds, did not get compacted," Heather said. "These materials will dry out and carry fire rather quickly."

Heather added that the drought conditions seen in some parts of the state in the summer and fall 2005 have been fully mitigated and the summer and fall wildfire seasons in 2006 should see moderate activity with fires not burning as deep into the organic layer.

Most of Michigan's wildfires occur in April, May and June, with minor occurrences in the summer and fall. In 2005, Department of Natural Resources fire officers responded to 535 fires that burned 4,342 acres.

"The majority of wildfires in our state are caused by citizens burning yard debris in the spring," Heather said. "Simply put, the best sources of fire prevention out there are our citizens."

Heather offered these tips to help prevent wildfires:

- Always obtain a burning permit, which is free, before doing any outdoor burning. Information on how to obtain a permit is available on the Department of Natural Resources Web site at www.michigan.gov/dnr.
- Never leave a fire unattended.
- It is safer to burn debris in the evening, when the temperatures are cooler and there is usually less wind.
- Always use water to extinguish a fire. Keep adding water and stirring the ashes until the fire is completely out. Merely covering a fire with dirt often does not completely extinguish it.
- Avoid burning yard waste if possible, and compost it instead. Information on how to recycle or compost yard waste is available on the Department of Environmental Quality's Web site at www.michigan.gov/deq or from any Michigan State University Extension Service office.

- Maintain a "ring of safety" around your home to protect it from wildfires. Keep tall grasses mowed within 30-feet of all buildings. Thin out trees within 30-feet of all buildings so their crowns do not touch, and trim the bottom branches off all evergreens to 6-feet above the ground.

County man sentenced for violating environmental laws

A Charlevoix County man was recently sentenced for violating a court order and environmental laws.

Last week, Ingham County Judge Paula J. Manderfield of the 30th Circuit Court, ordered Steven G. Smith, President of C.H. Smith Company, Inc., to serve 30 days in the Ingham County Jail for contempt of court as a result of deliberately violating the court's permanent injunction that was issued on May 5, 2004, and prohibited the company from operating its gravel crushing plants.

"Disregard for Michigan's environmental laws can have serious consequences for the health of our environment," said Department of Environmental Quality director Steven E. Chester. "The DEQ is obligated to enforce orders and judgments issued by the courts and will continue to investigate and prosecute those who choose to violate our environmental protection laws."

Department of Environmental Quality staff first observed workers at the C.H. Smith Company operating prohibited crushing plants at the "Smith Pit" in Charlevoix County in September 2004 and documented additional evidence suggested ongoing activities at the site in early 2005.

Additionally, through further investigation by Department of Environmental Quality staff, it was discovered that Smith reactivated a dormant corporation, Undine Excavating Inc., with close relatives identified as the officers, for the purpose of avoiding enforcement of the permanent injunction against C.H. Smith Company.

"Harming Michigan's treasured environment is simply not permissible," said Attorney General Michael Cox. "My office will continue to prosecute anyone who acts with disregard toward our natural resources."

Gravel crushing plants can contribute to particulate matter levels less than 10 micrometers in diameter (PM10). PM10 is readily inhaled into the respiratory system where it can accumulate and lead to various health concerns. The unregulated operation of gravel crushing plants likely results in excessive emissions of PM10 due to the lack of pollution reducing controls.

The permanent injunction ordered by the court in this case stems from C.H. Smith Company's failure to comply with federal and state air quality rules and regulations and an administrative consent order requiring, in part, the permitting and testing of the crushing equipment and the payment of penalties.

Planned Parenthood preps parents and teens for prom

Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan is once again offering free Prom Kits, which can be picked up at the health center at 1003 Spring St. in Petoskey.

Prom Kits are provided as a tool for parents in helping their teens have fun during prom without engaging in risky behaviors, such as using alcohol or drugs, or putting themselves at risk for sexually transmitted infections or pregnancy.

"We encourage both parents and high school students to come in and pick up a Prom Kit," said Lori O'Neill, Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan director of education. "The information and materials will foster discussions about responsible decision-making and dealing with pressure in sometimes difficult situations."

The Prom Kits, which were first offered in 1994, continue to be a popular resource. They include brochures on communicating about sexuality, drinking and driving, date rape drugs, abstinence and other important topics.

"Planned Parenthood's Prom Kits can help begin conversations between parents and teens to help ensure that teens have a fun and safe evening," said O'Neill. "The Prom Kits contain important information for teens to understand, such as how drug or alcohol use can reduce inhibitions, increasing the risk of irresponsible sexual activity."

Free Prom Kits are available at the Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan Health Center at 1003 Spring St. in Petoskey. For more information call (231) 347-9692.

Skate park construction kicks off

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Construction of Charlevoix's skate park is underway.

Scott Stebe of Stebe Construction was at the Carpenter Avenue site of the new Charlevoix Community Skatepark last week turning lumber into a half-pipe, quarter-pipes, roll-ins, a pyramid, fun boxes and grind rails.

"Everything should be in place by Memorial Day weekend," said Laura Stebe, a member of Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc., the fundraising group that worked to create the city owned and operated park.

Skateboarding made its first appearance on the American extreme sports scene in the 1950s followed by in-line skating in the 1980s.

Since then, both sports have grown to become highly competitive recognized forms of fun and for some, even professions.

Charlevoix residents and visitors who call these extreme sports their gaming choice have spent decades searching for venues in which to practice and compete. Often finding themselves street skating — grinding on handrails, curbs, benches and other elements of Charlevoix's suburban landscape. All the while attempting to evade law enforcement, in hot pursuit.

According to Charlevoix City Police Chief Gerard Doan, city sidewalks, steps and handrails are prohibited for riding bicycles, skateboards and in-line skates. And with the popularity of these sports at an all-time

These are the plans for the Charlevoix Community Skate Park, located off Carpenter Avenue. Construction at the site started last week and the park is expected to open Memorial weekend.

Congress backs retention of local Coast Guard cutter

House and Senate majority support needed to seal the deal

Staff writer

"When it becomes a law, basically Charlevoix can expect a continued presence of a vessel in Charlevoix."

Bart Stupak
U.S. Congressman

Charlevoix is now only two steps away from retaining a Coast Guard cutter presence.

According to U.S. Congressman, Bart Stupak (D-Menominee), the United States Coast Guard has signed off on language in a bill which would retain the cutter Acacia, or if decommissioned, would replace it with another ice breaking asset.

"Everybody, the Coast Guard subcommittee of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee, has approved this language," Stupak said. "A bill will be taken up as soon as we go back the week of the (April) 24."

He added, "It's for the next year at least that they're going to keep ice breaking assets, as they call it, in the Great Lakes — in the report language they refer to Charlevoix specifically. If they decommission the Acacia, they would have another asset there (Charlevoix)."

Stupak said there are several reasons for the Coast Guard's decision, including Canada's decommissioning of one of their main ice breaking ships.

And, he said, "Admiral Papp, the district commander in Ohio, will now be chief of staff of the new commandant of the Coast Guard. He came by three to four weeks ago and we had long discussion about the Acacia and the need for ice breaking assets."

The bill must be passed through the House and Senate before the president can sign it into law.

Skate park to open Memorial weekend high, he said it has been a challenge to enforce those laws.

Skateboarding and in-line skating are prohibited on Bridge Street and on sidewalks from Hurlbut Street to the bridge as well as in Bridge, East and Hoffman parks.

"It's a problem every summer. It puts pedestrians at risk of injury and damages curbs and handrails," he said.

Those cited are fined $50 for the first offense, $75 for the second offense and $100 for third or subsequent offenses.

A cease fire in the war between skaters and the police came in November 2003, when Zeke Daman, a local teen skater with a vision of creating a legal venue in which to, Iakie, McTwist and tailslide, wrote a letter to local newspapers outlining his plan. Daman proposed creation of a park where he and fellow skaters could legally pursue their passion.

His letter sparked the interest of a motivated group of parents, including Vicki and Kirk Daman, John and Patsy Ramsey, Vicki Hankins, Michelle Witthoef, Cynthia Parker and Scott and Laura Stebe.

This group became Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc. The troop tackled a massive financial undertaking raising funds through coordination of events, sticker and sweatshirt sales and grant writing. They also went toe-to-toe with city council to iron out the staffing and insurance issues. After years of blood, sweat and tears, plans were formed for the $160,000 project and Daman's idea will soon come to fruition.

On Tuesday, April 11, representatives from Suburbanrails, skate park design and construction gurus, were in Charlevoix from their home base in Cincinnati, Ohio, to work on the park's fun box and quarter pipe.

Stebe credits the community for the success of this project.

"Having parents and a core group of students at the foundation of this plan made it work," she said. "There is a group of boys who are on a student advisory for the park, they are Zeke Daman, Burke Ramsey, Brennan Stebe, Taylor Witthoef, Conner Klooster, Shaun Couture, Stephen Parker, Mick Papp, Cameron Attee, Sean Thomas, Spencer Hankins, Colin Campbell, Ty Jones, Jed Daman and John Curtis. These kids have been the drive behind the force that makes this group work, they have great ideas, they are involved, and they helped design their park. They knew what they wanted and didn't want in their park."

Stebe anticipates part-time employees, possibly hired by the city, will staff the park during its seasonal operating time. Each of these employees will be trained in First Aid and CPR. Helmets are required for entry and will be available to rent.

"Anyone who skates or rides a bike is at heart a free spirit. They live to ride. With that always at the heart of what we do as a group, we wanted to make this a safe place, a place kids want to go to, a challenging park with elements for every age level," Stebe said.

Life lesson testimonials leave lasting impact

Julie Witthoeft

Just before prom my senior year in high school, teachers and students gathered in the gym for a drinking and driving lecture.

I had heard these in health class before. I yawned and prepared myself for another, "Don't throw away your future," declamation.

A huge video screen was set up at half-court. The lights dimmed and I thought to my cocky self, ahhh, nap time.

Then, an in-your-face, graphic video about actual people who ruined their lives at a young age partying and driving, came on. It ended about 30 minutes later. As I caught my breath from the gore that I just witnessed, the lights came on and a pretty girl confined to a wheelchair made her way into the gym.

She proceeded to tell her story — popular girl goes to the prom with popular boy but never makes the dance. An alcohol-related car accident left her paralyzed from the waist down.

I don't remember her name or whether she was driving at the time of the accident, but I do remember that chair.

That first hand account showed me just because you're cool, doesn't mean you're invincible. I and others, were able to relate to her story, to put ourselves in her shoes and ultimately her chair.

I was reminded of this moment last week when I met John Curtis, a 20-year-old Charlevoix resident with a lengthy rap sheet and a phenomenal story of recovery to tell.

Curtis was laid up on the couch at his mother Jill Moore's home off See Road recovering from a knee surgery. No the injury wasn't sustained in an alcohol-related accident. It, and a host of others, stem from a rough and tumble life of snowboarding and skateboarding. The injuries started when he was 12 and came with a host of pain killers that his addictive personality grabbed onto with a grip only jail time could break.

I was tipped off by zealous Charlevoix Community Skate Park advocate Laura Siebe that Curtis might be a great interview.

The name rang a bell, I remembered he was affiliated with a group of students who were busted for smoking pot during school about three years ago.

Curtis said this was one of many incidents that started when he was about 16 and ended in 2004 when he got caught dealing marijuana and was sentenced to live months in Charlevoix County Jail and rehabilitation. It was during this time that he said the fog from his abuse of drugs and alcohol began to lift and the reality of the path he followed into his late teens began to surface.

Now, two years into a sober lifestyle, Curtis has a strong story to tell. His choices have made finding a job a challenge in Charlevoix, a community where wounds from his escapades are still healing. His friends have dropped out of sight, he never graduated from high school and the host of high court misdemeanors came with hefty fines and costs.

His story is about losing some of the best years of his life to poor choices. Now, he has directed the energy and excitement from his new lease on life toward mentoring other kids headed down the one-way road to nowhere, in the hope that he can save them from the pain he carries.

His outlet for his message is the Charlevoix Community Skate Park where he has helped with fund-raisers and other aspects of the project. There, he plays a quiet role and listens intently. Siebe said in the short period of time the temporary skate park was open last summer, Curtis detoured three kids from going down his road.

He plans to assist at the permanent park, which is currently under construction off Carpenter Avenue, this summer.

Curtis said looking back on his life, he Charlevoix resident John Curtis, 20, has devoted his free time to helping out at the Charlevoix Community Skate Park acting as a mentor to those in need.

doesn't blame Charlevoix for not having enough for kids to do.

"I had every opportunity in the world. That didn't deter me from my path. I'm not going to say if Charlevoix didn't build a skate park every child would be destined to become an inmate," he said. "We are raising the kids that are going to run our country. We can give them nothing and show them to give their kids nothing. Or we can provide them things that will teach them to live better lives." Curtis hopes he can provide some of the tools to help keep kids on the path to a healthy lifestyle.

Maybe his scars will leave the same lasting impression on those he interacts with that the drunk driving victim had on me 10 years ago.

Ushering spring with rituals and traditions

Gayle Gennett
'A look at life'

I brace myself for the final snowstorm of the year — usually occurring on the day it's time to return from spring break.

My husband, the over-achieving gardener, is fertilizing our lawn. I watch him enthusiastically rake away the remains of winter into piles along the curb and I help out by diligently making my lists of things for him to do. Soon, the remains of winter's past will be whisked away by delightful people working to keep Charlevoix beautiful.

My husband and I hold our breath and hope for the best as our tulips are already beginning to do a sneak peek through the earth wondering if it's safe to come out yet. We question when, not if, Mother Nature will grace us with yet another snowstorm to remind us we are not in charge. Living in northern Michigan has prepared us. Our shovels and snow scrapers are still sitting at the ready. But the storm, when it comes, will be quick, like the taking off of a child's Band-Aid, promising it will only hurt briefly.

We are already seeing the signs of spring. I stopped my car while driving by the Dairy Queen and I smiled at the mechanical repairman looking over some important looking contraption on the outside of the building. He didn't have a clue who I was but my smile must have said it all as he looked up and said, "Anytime now lady." He must have known I was looking forward to its opening. April 5, with great anticipation. People were even honking their horns. I quickly put my car into gear as many cars passed me waving. They must be excited too.

The city street sweeper has replaced the snowplow and soon we'll be getting a thorough dousing from our local men in blue from the Charlevoix Fire Department. Sweeping and watering the streets is one sure sign in a small town that we are tired of looking at winter and want to literally give it a spring cleaning.

Walking along the channel is so much easier now that I don't have to battle the 40 mph wind coming off the lake and can actually get through my walk without ice crystals forming on my lashes. The ice floes and wind-created snow castles have disappeared along the lake.

Now I can hear kids on skateboards and parents walking their children in strollers. Garage sale signs are going up in quick numbers and people can see each others faces without heavy scarves and furry hoods. They are actually smiling at each other. Some have discovered new neighbors they didn't meet while closed in during the winter. More families are taking bike rides and the population has increased on the trail between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

Did I mention people smiling? Black and other dark colored jackets are replaced with lime green and teal ones.

Editorial response

Editor:

Your observation about the money being spent on new road signs was right on. I have been watching this project too, and wondering just what was wrong with the signs we had. I have not figured it out. It would probably take an army of cub reporters to root out the genesis of this plan, but somewhere, at some ethical level of government, some person decided it has to be done.

In our little corner of Northwest lower Michigan, our government is spending $500,000 of federal funds on this program. Mid-April is an interesting time of year, as we are reminded where federal funds come from. There are 3,142 counties in the USA, all probably paying in, and certainly all scrambling for a share of the money.

Think about it. In our area alone,

Signs of spring in Charlevoix: petunias, smiles and sunshine

The days are getting longer and it's becoming easier to get up as we see daylight instead of darkness. The recreation department is advertising Little League and summer league sign ups. Teachers report students having difficulty focusing as they see the yellow orb in the sky and are easily entertained watching birds eat fresh grass seed carefully planted by school personnel.

Recesses take place outside of the school building and students and teachers alike linger a little longer outside drinking in the beauty of just being in the outdoors. More people can be seen taking a walk during their lunch time. It's only a matter of time when posters will appear advertising the Charlevoix Elementary School Spring Carnival and spring art shows.

Small towns like Charlevoix are friendly and inviting in the spring. We might complain feeling everyone knows your business and politics driving many a conversation during the winter months. But, when spring arrives, people are happy to have made it through another Michigan winter and are able to walk the ice-free sidewalks.

Our small town will soon rally to plant 50,000 petunias and work on festivals and fairs for the upcoming summer months. The aroma of grilling on outdoor stoves will replace the smell of gas fumes that linger when the temperature is below freezing. Small buds have begun to appear on trees everywhere and crocuses grace the fronts of many homes. Flowers are like sunshine for the soul. With two Garden Clubs and many amateur gardeners in the wings, all seem appreciative of this time of year in our northern Michigan community whose growing season is brief and spotted with many frosts.

Spring is here ladies and gentlemen, so start your engines, and let the mowing begin.

how many superb new football weight-training rooms could have been built for $500,000? How many new middle-school assistant cheerleading coaches could have been hired? How many part-time special education teachers could we have avoided laying off?

The sign program is just one small example of out-of-control spending by our government at all levels, whether it's federal, state or local boards. What can be done? I don't know. Maybe in the next election a candidate will be campaigning with the slogan, "If elected, I promise to leave the hacon in Washington or Lansing or the hands of the people who earned it, and I will encourage my colleagues to do the same!" I'm not holding my breath, but if he runs, he's got my vote.

Rivulet is not a motel

Editor:

I attended the Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals meeting Wednesday night (April 5) and lost my chance to speak clearly. I was too indignant.

The case under consideration at this meeting was the Rivulet project next-door to my house at 113 Pine River Lane in Charlevoix. Neighbors had appealed the decision of the City of Charlevoix Planning Commission that this project could go forward. We neighbors contend that Rivulet is a jumbo, square peg, being forced into a round hole. It's really a multi-family project trying to evade the setbacks and density rules for condos by pretending to be a motel. This way the developer can make more money via a bigger project.

I had just heard the developer tell the Zoning Board of Appeals, panel that the design of the Rivulet was for automobile transients, not as a place to live. Remember, these are 1,600-2,000 square feet, two-story apartments, with several bedrooms, dining room, kitchen, etc.

Did I groan audibly? But just then, a panel member asked for comment from the public about objections to the project.

I was on automatic, I strode to the microphone and said I objected because of the sheer bulk. My ability to enjoy my home will be crippled since this three-story building will be built in the 10 foot setback. And then I said I also object because the proposal is dishonest. There were gasps. Perhaps saying that was not politic.

I mean, and what I wish I had said, is that I want to be associated with a community where there is orderly government. Where there is orderly, predictable zoning. Where there is orderly, consistent, enforcement of zoning. Where sharp operators don't have a chance.

I wish I had said the best path to long-term growth and prosperity for Charlevoix is to continue to incorporate the principles of controlled density and open space for our multi-family apartment building condos.

Citizens of Charlevoix, these principles are no longer being observed. One fake motel has already been approved north of the Sleep Inn on U.S. 31. Another, Rivulet, is proposed for the much smaller piece of land next to my house. What view do the city council members have for the future of higher density housing in Charlevoix?

"Thank you" supporters

Editor:

A big "Thank you," to the generous community of Charlevoix. We are indebted to the many businesses and citizens who donated to my son, Nathan Tripplehorn's, benefit dinner and fund. To Michelle Potter, Susan Klooster and Angie Waha for their tireless efforts organizing and executing the entire event.

Also, our thanks to Charlevoix Boy Scout Troop 11, the Charlevoix High School varsity football and wrestling teams, whose members and families supported Nathan's dinner in many ways. It's indeed heartwarming when so many individuals reach out to offer their love and support of Nathan at this time.

Build sports complex

Editor:

Are you tired of waiting to get time to practice or play in the gym? Please help me convince the people of Charlevoix to put a sports complex here. Some reasons are to make a gym available, get exercise for sports and students could get scholarships to colleges.

One reason we should have a sports complex in Charlevoix is we could make gym available for students, not just teams. This allows people to have space to play. Another example, is it's hard to get gym time in Charlevoix because there are teams playing in there.

My second reason is, if we have a sports complex students would get more exercise. In the winter the athletes have room to get in shape for their sports. And if they exercise they have the chance of increasing their heart rate because if they have that chance of passing out in their sport if they don't have room to exercise and they're getting dehydrated.

My final reason, we should have a sports complex is students could get scholarships to college. About half of our country's students get scholarships to college because they are practicing in sports like football, basketball and baseball. If they keep practicing their sports, they have a chance to get a scholarship to any college.

Clean-up beaches

Editor:

Have you ever seen our beaches so dirty? We should have beautiful, clean and sandy beaches for all of our summer tourists. Then, people may come from other towns or cities. I believe that we should clean the beaches of all garbage, animal waste, dead plants and/or grass.

First of all, there is so much garbage on the ground. For example, people don't want to sunbathe on top of garbage. A solution to this would be to place more trash cans. Also, there is food, paper products, pop cans, etc. scattered all over the ground. A way to solve this would be to place signs to tell people to clean up after themselves.

Second of all, we have a large problem about animal waste. We need to have animals from entering certain areas of the beaches. Two solutions to this could be to hire people to come by and remove it, or to construct a special area for animals.

The last major problem about our beaches, is the dead plants and/or grass. Two easy ways to solve this problem would be to plant new grass seed, or we may even be able to provide/purchase sprinklers. If that isn't possible we could hire workers to come by and water certain areas at a time.

In conclusion, having cleaner beaches can attract more tourists. Our beaches can affect our city a lot. Please, clean up our beaches. These are what make Charlevoix. "Charlevoix the Beautiful." Please take a stand and support this statement today.

Start school later

Editor:

Do you always try to rush your children to school? Is your child getting bad grades in their first couple classes? Well, that may be the cause of not getting enough sleep and not eating breakfast in the morning. Please, help me to convince the school board in the Charlevoix area to start school later in the morning.

To start off, studies show that most children are tired in the morning during school. Getting only six hours of sleep a night is not enough for any growing child. The appropriate amount of sleep that is required for a middle school or high school child is nine hours every night. When I get up in the morning, I never have time to get ready, get dressed, take a shower, eat breakfast, and make my bed before the bus comes to take me to school.

Another reason is that children's minds are always in a blur during the first couple hours of school. A lot of students have a hard time paying attention to teachers and their work. Parents often complain that their child is getting bad grades ever since they changed the time of school hours. Their children also complain it's because they are always tired during school.

Finally, a lot of students don't have any time to eat breakfast in the morning. Did you know that breakfast is the most important meal of the day? Can you imagine a morning without breakfast? If you went to middle school every day, then you'd get a pretty good idea of how it feels.

So, as you can see, waking up later is good for everybody. Please, help me win the fight of later school hours. Together, we can make a difference.

What does Easter mean to you?

"What is the most important holiday of the year? Christmas? Easter?" I asked my father.

"It's Easter because without Easter, Christmas would have no meaning," he replied.

If I asked you what Easter means to you, what would you say?

You might say that Easter is the day that Jesus rose from the dead, after suffering a terrible beating and death nailed to a cross. I agree, and I ask, "That's true, and what difference does that make to you?"

You might say that Easter is the day that the best man who ever lived, the one sent from God to show us how to live and to love, came back to life after being dead for three days. I agree and I ask, "Yes, and what difference does that make to you?"

You might say that Easter is about Jesus taking on the sins of the whole world, carrying them to the cross, and dying with them, only to rise again to new life on the third day. I agree and I ask, "That's right, and what difference does that make to you?"

You might say that being a Christian means following the words and ways of Jesus Christ in life and through death. I agree and ask, "If you are a Christian, what difference does that make to you?"

Making a difference is what most good people say is their life's goal. There are so many ways to make a difference in life — helping a child or an elder; giving time/energy/dollars to a worthy cause; encouraging others by word and deed; growing a garden of beauty and nourishment; creating a work of art; taking care of your health and others; making an honest living; running for public office and serving justly; taking your God-given talent and maximizing it; setting an example in all you say and do; studying the Bible that leads to following the way; forgiving others; enjoying nature; being more at peace; spreading joy and delight; making each day the best yet. You get it.

A short time ago, young people, especially, were spotted wearing "What Would Jesus Do?" bracelets. In any given situation, what would Jesus do? Once they decided what Jesus would do, then they, too, were to do what Jesus would do, following his example.

April 16 is Easter. What difference does that make to you? How are you to live your one unique life as a follower of Jesus Christ? There are a number of days left in Lent for each of us to ponder the question: What difference does Easter make in my life? How am I to live since I know that my Savior loved me so much he laid down his life for me? How am I to live my life as a worthy follower of Jesus Christ? Where can I begin to be more faithful? How can I become more loving, more forgiving, happier and more peaceful? Just think about the new life that has been given to us by Jesus Christ. And then become more deliberate in living as if you really believed it — for we really do, don't we?

It's another season and another reason to become more devoted to Jesus the Christ.

Kirk pleads guilty to lying about criminal past

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

Arthur Kirk

In a plea proceeding that took place in federal court last week, a Charlevoix man plead guilty to three counts of making a false statement to a federal agency.

On April 5, Arthur Kirk, 71, of Charlevoix, changed his plea to guilty, admitting he lied about his past criminal sexual conduct convictions when applying with AmeriCorps.

Kirk will be sentenced at 3:30 p.m. on July 20 by federal court judge Gordon Kuist for the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Michigan. He faces a maximum of five years in prison on each of the three counts.

"It's important because we wanted to make sure people with criminal convictions involving past criminal sexual conduct don't get into the school environment," said Tom Gezon, assistant U.S. attorney, assigned to Kirk's case.

Kirk was originally arrested by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office this past summer on multiple counts of felony weapons charges.

At the time of his arrest he was a contract worker coordinating volunteer operations for AmeriCorps through the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

In 2000 and 2001 he was an AmeriCorps volunteer at Charlevoix Middle School and in 2002 and 2003, though not a staff member of Camp Daggett, he was a volunteer counselor there.

Law enforcement were tipped off when he applied for a concealed weapons permit in late May 2005 and the FBI and Michigan State Police background checks revealed previous prior arrests and convictions including felonious assault and sex offenses ranging from 1964 to 1980 in Oakland and Macomb counties, and at least three prior sex offense convictions all under an alias name, Arthur Kirkeby.

Kirk's last conviction, for which he was sentenced to 25 years in prison, was for the second offense of first degree criminal sexual conduct with an 8-year-old boy. Kirk/Kirkeby isn't included on the state's Public Sex Offender Registry because his convictions came through prior to 1995, exempting him from registration.

A lieutenant with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and a patrolman with the City of Charlevoix Police Department executed a Charlevoix County 90th District Court search warrant at Kirk's condo in Charlevoix Township on July 30, 2005. During the search, three handguns were seized including two .357 caliber revolvers and one .40 caliber semi-automatic pistol.

Kirk was arrested most recently, on Feb. 3, following his sentencing in Charlevoix County Circuit Court on multiple state felonies including false statement to obtain a concealed weapons permit, felon in possession of firearms and habitual felon-fourth offense.

Charlevoix County 33rd Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas sentenced Kirk to 365 days in jail with credit for 151 days served while awaiting trial. He will serve 180 days in jail as well as 12 months probation and was ordered to pay $530 in fines and costs.

In December 2005, Kirk pleaded guilty to one count each of felon in possession of a firearm and providing false information on a concealed weapons permit application. While both are felony charges the state's sentencing guidelines preclude Judge Pajtas from imposing longer sentences. In exchange for the guilty plea, three perjury charges were dismissed.

Kirk was arrested following the sentencing by deputies from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office on a multi-count Federal Grand Jury Indictment from the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Michigan from which this most recent guilty plea stems.

Kirk was turned over to the U.S. Marshall's Service Feb. 7 and taken to Grand Rapids.

New sheriff's deputy assigned to Beaver Island

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

A new Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department deputy is temporarily handling law enforcement services on Beaver Island.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater former island deputy Jim Campbell "will not be available" for 90 days starting Monday, April 3.

Lasater declined to comment further citing the situation as a personnel file issue, making it illegal to disclose more information.

Deputy Clyde Payton took over effective April 3. Payton has been a part-time officer with the sheriff's department for almost two years. Last summer, he was stationed on Beaver Island as the second deputy.

Lasater said two deputies are routinely assigned to Beaver Island during the busier summer months.

"The people are really nice. It's a step back in time, but I like it,"

Clyde Payton

Payton said. Payton, 25, graduated from Boyne City High School in 1999. He earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Lake Superior State University and attended the Northern Michigan University Police Academy. He is a Hudson Township resident, which is located in the Elmira/Boyne Falls area, where he lives with his wife Staci. Staci has not relocated to the island with him.

Payton said his duties on the island, which includes 100 miles of road to patrol, are similar to those on the mainland.

"Enforcing laws and helping citizens in need," he said.

Island resident, Phyllis Moore, said she was pleased last week when her daughter was pulled over for having a burned out taillight. She said Payton commonly checks the doors of businesses at night to ensure they've been secured.

"I'm happy with the job he's doing," she said.

Payton said the number one violation he is seeing at this time is the seat belt infraction.

"No one here really likes to wear them," he said. "But that's changing. Everywhere I go I hear, 'I'm making sure I put my seat belt on.'"

Campbell is expected to return in early July. He did not return calls regarding his absence by press time.

If Campbell chooses not to return, Payton said he would be interested in accepting permanent assignment to the island.

Ford steps down to save schools money

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

A local teacher hopes to do her part to help alleviate the burden caused by impending budget problems facing Charlevoix Public Schools.

After nearly four decades as performing arts and world studies instructor at Charlevoix High School, Connie Ford will resign in hopes of returning next year at a lower level of pay to teach only performing arts.

"With the schools being in such financial trouble, it seems kind of beneficial for me to take retirement," she said. "I have been eligible for quite a while, but I have been extremely worried about the performing arts program and the maintenance of it."

She added, "So, when I wrote my proposal, I suggested that I retire and suggested I come back as a retiree to maintain the two performing arts classes and they pay me sub pay, or whatever, to save them some money."

Ford said she hopes that would offer enough time for the schools to pull out of their potential financial troubles and find a replacement for her.

According to Ford, the decision to resign was not an easy one.

"I made it because I knew programs were going to get cut and I knew with there being a (budget) crunch, it seemed an answer to a little bit of the problem," she said. "I could have walked away from this years ago, but it has been my life work to maintain this type of program for the students, and I would hate to see my retirement be the end of it."

Ford said the benefits of performing arts classes are immeasurable.

"The leaders of tomorrow will come from people who are good communicators," she said. "It doesn't matter if it's the mayor of Charlevoix, who I had as a student, or the president of the United States, they all need the skills to be able to communicate."

Performing arts covers the gamut from drama to extemporaneous speaking.

"Knowing how to research and knowing what's going on in the world is important. You carry that with you all your life," she said. "We have a great number of students who succeeded in what they chose to do because they became good communicators. And I don't wish for us to lose that."

Ford understands that many programs could be in jeopardy if the fiscal concerns of the schools are not solved.

"The board needs to look at what we can do to find ways of controlling money so we don't go in the hole," she said. "I can't blame them for that. Educational funding has gotten so bad that it's really scary."

Ford, who started her career in 1964 in Boulder, Colo. before teaching for a year in Waterford, started teaching in Charlevoix in 1968.

But, she said, her interest in the field of public speaking began much earlier than that.

"It started with a freshman in high school whose father made her take speech class," Ford said. "That sounds ridiculous, but that was basically it. Dad wanted me to be able to talk to people, because he was always having trouble doing it in his job and he had no background."

She added, "That was kind of the hook. And after that,

I stayed with it."

Working with the kids and watching them learn is what kept Ford going all these years.

"I do it for the excitement of the kids when they succeed, the excitement when they learn that it's an important part of their everyday life," she said. "Whether it's giving a report in an English class or going down to city council to observe, and deciding they have something to say, and sometimes they say it."

Over the years, Ford said she and her students have built a solid performing arts program.

"It's one of the outstanding ones in the state. We've been successful in many areas they've been able to compete in," she said. "Our students have always done well for themselves. We are one of the leading small (class) C/D schools in the state, but we compete with everyone from C/D to A."

She added, "In fact, we just went to Mattawan before break and we did OK considering we went against the top two (class) A schools."

In the early 1970s, Ford was named theater instructor of the year, and in 1997, she was appointed to the Michigan Speech Coaches Inc. hall of fame. Her name appears with four others from that year on a plaque which hangs in the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island.

Ford teaches between 55 and 80 performing arts students a year.

In response to Ford's resignation letter, Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Dr. John Sturock wrote, "In regards to the contingency referenced in your letter, this request would be based on open positions in the 2006-2007 school year, as well as contractual language, as the district has the responsibility of abiding by the master agreement."

In a later interview, Sturock said, "A lot of issues would come into play. Right now it's too early to determine anything, so to make a comment about that would be premature."

Concerning her retirement, Sturock said, "I've been here eight years, and from what I know of her, Connie has been just a pillar of our performing arts community. It has been an outstanding program and she will be missed."

ZBA tables decision on Rivulet Pointe

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

The City of Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals adjourned a controversial decision on whether a proposed hotel resort is an allowed use in the commercial zoning district.

The zoning board met on Wednesday, April 5 to hear an appeal filed by Bob Grzech, an attorney with the Charlevoix office of Running, Wise and Ford, representing a resident group opposed to plans for Rivulet Pointe Hotel Resort. He argues this project doesn't fit the definition of hotel as outlined in the ordinance.

"This is just a land grab, money grab and trying to put a square peg into a round hole. My clients want to see this done right and the city ordinance adhered to and followed. This is not a hotel or a motel no matter how you stretch it," he said.

On Feb. 13, the city's planning commission determined that the proposed project is an allowable use by right in the commercial district. But in early March, Charlevoix City Council, the body that will ultimately decide the project's fate, postponed its decision pending the zoning board's determination.

The zoning board voted to adjourn the meeting, requesting that Doug Mansfield, president of the project's architectural firm, Wells Mansfield, present a copy of the condominium association's bylaws and rental pool agreement.

Grzech argues that regardless of Mansfield's assurances that the

"This is just a land grab, money grab and trying to put a square peg into a round hole."

Bob Grzech,
Attorney for resident group opposed to Rivulet Pointe units will be rented, the project is residential in nature and thus is prohibited from locating in the city's commercial district.

"What we believe the developer is trying to do is go around the zoning ordinance restrictions by calling what is essentially a condominium development, a hotel or motel. This is being packaged and presented to the city as a hotel/motel because that is of course an allowed use in the zoning ordinance," Grzech said.

However, Mansfield argues the 12 units to be built will be available for rent and will operate like a motel as defined in the city's zoning ordinance. Each will be individually owned and each proprietor will participate in a rental pool.

The development plan shows a 12-unit resort hotel to be built at 115 Pine River Lane, overlooking the Pine River Channel.

The proposed $10 to $12 million resort hotel, to be developed by Catt Acquisitions of Gaylord, would span over 30,000 square feet and would have 24 underground parking spaces. The lot is 7 tenths-of-an-acre of land and is owned by Peter Carey, Julie Bandfield and Randy Carey.

The property is zoned commercial and the city's zoning ordinance allows for hotels/motels in this district.

According to the ordinance, hotels must have a central lobby or office area from which users enter and exit supervised by a person in charge at all hours.

The office area for this project is located in the parking level. Mansfield said there will be an on-call box and a manager in residence seven days a week.

While Grzech argued the size of the units is also an issue as they are much larger than what is allowed in the city's motel/hotel district, city planner Gerry Harsch said the hotel/motel district doesn't have bearing on the commercial district.

In support of his case, Mansfield drew the board's attention to existing similar uses in the same area, like Pointes North Inn and the Weatherlane Terrace.

He argued another similar use was also recently approved. The Ship's Watch project which city council approved in December 2005 is a 16-unit condominium complex to be constructed between the Sleep Inn and Monte's Auto Wash on the City of Charlevoix's north side.

Ship's Watch developer Jack Strickland said, like the Rivulet Pointe development proposal, each of the condos will be privately owned and also available for rent, like a motel.

However, Grzech urged the zoning board to disregard the Ship's Watch precedent and said council is not bound by other development plan decisions.

"No one was opposed to Ship's Watch," he said. "Two wrongs don't make a right. Once you do that (approve the development plan for Rivulet Pointe) you abrogate your zoning ordinance and you're left with nothing. If Ship's Watch was allowed to go through, that was the fault of city council and the planning commission for allowing it."

Third ward Charlevoix City Council member, Shirley Gibson, said she will not vote in favor of the Rivulet Pointe project regardless of the outcome of the Ship's Watch project, which she did vote in favor of.

"We weren't given enough information on that (Ship's Watch development plan). Fool me once you're not going to fool me again it's not a motel, it's not a hotel. Neither is Ship's Watch and that slid by us," Gibson said.

According to information included in the project's revised findings of fact, residents with property near the proposed project argue that the proximity of the project to their homes could pose a risk to their homes' structure during the construction process. Other concerns include soil erosion issues, light pollution, a potential impact on traffic flow, mechanical noise, trash removal, walls and fencing.

This project will be back in council's hands once a determination is made by the city's zoning board of appeals as to whether the project adheres to the definition of hotel/motel in the city's zoning ordinance.

A date has not been set when the zoning board will reconvene.

Edgewater Inn staff tackle $150,000 renovation project

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

Chris Kowal

The Edgewater Inn, one of Charlevoix's premier waterfront lodging establishments, is undergoing a two-year, $150,000 renovation project.

"It's something the board of directors has been discussing for a while," said Chris Kowal, general manager of the Edgewater Inn and vice-president of the rental management group. Resort Reservations. "It will make our guests and owners feel more comfortable. And will draw more business to our facility."

The project, which started in early January, will overhaul the inn's public areas. Local contractors are tackling repainting of the ceilings and walls, with new wallpaper being applied in some areas, tiling the entryway, furnishing lobby areas, revamping the conference room and installing granite countertops in the bathrooms and front desk.

Work will be suspended in mid-May and will resume in the fall. The condominium units are available for rent during the construction phase. Kowal, who has been general manager of the Edgewater Inn since May 1, 2005, said guests are directed to areas where construction is either complete or has not yet started.

The Edgewater Inn, which includes 90 waterfront condominiums, 12 boat slips and 30 commercial shops, was built in 1987.

"There have been other updates since then. But not a complete overhaul like this," Kowal said.

The Edgewater Inn is located at 100 Michigan Avenue, overlooking Round Lake in downtown

Charlevoix. For more information about the renovation project or reservations at the inn, call (231) 547-6044.

Crooked Tree presents Japanese Taiko drum ensemble April 21

The Crooked Tree Arts Center is presenting Japanese Taiko drumming with the Kiyoshi Nagata Ensemble at 8 p.m. on Friday, April 21 at the Emmet County Community Building on the fairgrounds property located off U.S. 31 in Petoskey.

In addition to this public performance, there will be an interactive master class at 11 a.m. on Saturday, April 22. The class is limited to 15 people, high school age and above. Kiyoshi Nagata will teach participants a choreographed traditional Japanese piece. Cost for the master class is $20 per person. Call Crooked Tree Arts Center at (231) 347-4337 to register.

Combining thunderous, primal drumbeats with subtle, intricate rhythms, the ensemble produces a wide spectrum of sound. With their vast array of Japanese taiko, gongs, bells, wooden clappers, shakers and bamboo flutes, the Kiyoshi Nagata Ensemble will take you on a musical journey beyond all borders.

The Kiyoshi Nagata Ensemble, based in Toronto, Canada, has enthralled audiences with its mesmerizing and thrilling performances on the Japanese drum (taiko) since forming in 1998. The ensemble has performed widely in theatres, concert halls, universities and major music festivals throughout Canada, the United States and Italy.

The ensemble, whose members come from diverse musical backgrounds, has produced challenging and dynamic works that seek to create a new voice for the traditional taiko.

Under the direction of Kiyoshi Nagata, the Kiyoshi Nagata Ensemble has become recognized for its exacting yet physically demanding performances on the taiko as well as for its broad and varied repertoire. With an emphasis on music and technical fundamentals over choreography and superfluous movement.

The Kiyoshi Nagata Ensemble is one of only a few groups in North America that owns and performs on a complete set of authentic taiko imported from Japan and is the only group sponsored by four major Japanese taiko companies.

Performance tickets for Crooked Tree Arts Center members are $20 adult/$8 student. Tickets for non-members are $25 for adults and $10 for students.

Archeological excursion may be based in Charlevoix

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

A group searching for what may be the biggest archeological find in the Great Lakes plan to meet with members of an ad hoc committee designated by Charlevoix mayor, Norman Carlson.

Steve Libert, president of Great Lakes Exploration Group, LLC, will meet with committee members at 1:15 p.m. on Thursday, May 4 at Charlevoix City Hall to discuss using Charlevoix as their home port while searching for the remains of the Griffon, a 225-year-old boat thought to have sunk somewhere in northern Lake Michigan.

"I will be going to (city) council Monday night and presenting a letter to mayor and council and asking for the city to agree to be the host city for exploration," said committee member, Josh Barnes.

For nearly 30 years Libert has been interested in the location of the Griffon. Despite legal battles early on between Libert and the State of Michigan, an agreement has been reached which will allow him to attempt to identify the ship in question using surface scans.

Libert, who lives in Virginia and owns a home in Charlevoix, was diving when he saw what he thinks is part of a boat on the bottom of Lake Michigan. Subsequent tests of samples Libert retrieved reveal the possibility that they are several hundred years old.

If chosen, "We would be the main base for all operations of a vessel. We (Charlevoix) would probably be used as a launching site for the vessels that actually go out and do the job at a forward location," Barnes said. "There will be a surface, exploratory trip which will only consist of a magnetron (which detects metal) and side scan.

If it's the Griffon, she carried eight cannons, we would probably get a signal."

But, he said, "There is also a lot of iron ore in that area, so hopefully we will get some indication of what this stick is that's sticking out of the bottom of the lake."

Built by, Rene-Robert, Sieur de La Salle, a man who was instrumental in securing the territory which would later become part of the Louisiana Purchase, the Griffon is thought to be the first European ship on the Great Lakes.

With a crew of 35, the Griffon's maiden voyage consisted of sailing from the Niagara River to Wisconsin. Then La Salle instructed a crew of half a dozen men to sail back to Niagara with a load of commerce while he pressed on via canoe.

According to historical records, the Griffon was last seen on Sept. 18, 1679.

It is hoped mysteries such as whether the Griffon, estimated to be 40-feet long and constructed from rough materials in a makeshift area on a riverbank, was built on the Canadian or American side of the Niagara River.

If the Griffon sank during a storm, as Libert and others believe, the remains could be intact. If the find is determined not to be the Griffon, then the Abandoned Shipwreck Act of 1987 would take precedent, and Michigan would retain ownership. If it is the Griffon, the French would likely have claim to it since La Salle sailed under the flag of King Louis XIV of France.

Sieur de La Salle

Libert and his crew hope to begin working to identify the find this summer. If this is the Griffon, this would be the second of La Salle's ships to be found.

After losing the Griffon, La Salle traversed the Gulf of Mexico in his boat La Belle. While looking for the mouth of the Mississippi River, he was murdered by his crew.

The ship La Belle was discovered in the mid 1990s, in Matagorda Bay off the coast of Texas. The boat contained hundreds of thousands of artifacts including skeletal remains and weapons.

According to Libert's Web site, "The actual recovery and preservation of the ship will depend on its condition. Whether the ship is recovered or explored in situ will depend on the factors affecting the nature of the shipwreck and the shipwreck site."

"In situ," means an artifact which hasn't been moved from where it was found. Archaeologists prefer to view an artifact in situ because, where an artifact is found, is often as important as the artifact.

The Web site further states, "Artifacts will need to be uncovered, mapped, photographed and extracted. And, if there is enough of the ship to lift, the ship will have to be transported on a barge to a facility where it can be studied in a controlled environment."

Barnes is hopeful the next meeting between the committee and Libert's group will bring Charlevoix closer to being named the home port.

"Number one, Charlevoix is an ideal port to go out of, even though it's (exploration site) a good trip from here," Barnes said. "And there is some connection between La Salle and Charlevoix."

This wouldn't be the first time Libert searched for a ship in the Great Lakes, he also looked for the Carl D. Bradley, a freighter which sank in Lake Michigan during a storm in 1958.

Department of Agriculture tips on safely dying eggs

To ensure a safe Easter meal and event, the Michigan Department of Agriculture recommends the following handling tips when dying eggs.

- Purchase eggs only from refrigerated cases.

- Check egg cartons before buying, passing over cracked eggs.

- Keep eggs and foods separate from raw meat, seafood and poultry in grocery carts and in the refrigerator.

- Wash hands for at least 20 seconds in warm, soapy water before and after each step of preparation from cooking to hiding.

- Keep hard-boiled eggs, peeled or in the shell, in the refrigerator below 40 degrees Fahrenheit for no more than one-week and eggs should be stored in the refrigerator, not in the door.

- Cook two sets of eggs — one for the Easter egg hunt and one for eating.

For more information about food safety and proper food handling, visit the Michigan Department of Agriculture Web site at www.michigan.gov/mda, or call the Michigan Department of Agriculture toll-free at 800-292-3939.

Charlevoix chosen for Champion Tree Project

Peggy Brennan
Shade Tree Commission

The Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission recently announced that Charlevoix has been chosen to be the first Watershed Ecosystem Restoration model for the country under the direction of David Milarch, founder of the Champion Tree Project.

The goal of this project is the restoration of the natural air and water filters using 10 percent champion trees, 50 percent native trees and 40 percent other trees, shrubs and ground cover.

The first step in this project is a feasibility study to evaluate potential planting sites which will be on both public and private land. The feasibility study is being done by R Clark Associates Inc. of Traverse City, a long-time partner with the Champion Tree Project. This study has been paid for with private donations, and once the study is complete, the committee will seek private donations and grants to implement the plans. Local landscapers and nurseries will have the opportunity to participate in the future phases.

The Champion Tree Project began in the 1990s with the Milarch family cloning the biggest, oldest trees in their species, including the world's oldest trees, and trees planted by George Washington and Thomas Jefferson. They have planted memorial trees at the sites of Sept. 11 terrorist attacks at the Pentagon and New York, Arlington National Cemetery and the Vietnam Memorial. The Detroit News has just announced that David Milarch is the recipient of the Environmental Michiganian of the Year.

The Shade Tree Commission, established by the Charlevoix City Council in 1975, began by giving information and presentations to residents and area organizations regarding this potential project, and the response was overwhelmingly positive. These groups include the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, the Charlevoix Garden Club, the Charlevoix Historical Society, Tipp of the Mitt Watershed Council, the Audubon Society, the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority, the Lake Charlevoix Association, the Charlevoix city manager and planner, the Hayes Township Board and the Charlevoix County Planning Department.

The Champion Tree Project has developed a collection of 24 northern Michigan champion trees. This project will create, strengthen and expand a sustainable community landscape and reintroduce trees that have exemplified superior qualities by duplicating the genetics of our old growth forests to rebuild ecosystems for future generations.

This project will benefit Charlevoix both economically and environmentally. As a partner with the Champion Tree Project, Charlevoix will be featured in national and international presentations with the potential of our community becoming an ecotourism destination. As a resort area, we depend upon beautiful landscapes, and clean air and water. Leaves absorb atmospheric pollutants, take in carbon dioxide, and release oxygen. Root systems remove toxins in groundwater.

This project will be a great contribution to all of those qualities. St. Marys Cement Inc. has already volunteered to become the first participant in the project improving the environment at their company site.

Once the feasibility study is complete, the Shade Tree Commission will be available to make presentations to individuals and organizations interested in supporting and/or participating in this exciting and extremely valuable project.

continued presence of a vessel in Charlevoix," Stupak said. "There may be a lapse or two in time, but I think you will see a vessel ported in Charlevoix."

Stupak said this was an effort by everyone involved.

"It certainly shows that Charlevoix has been a good host to the Coast Guard," he said. "We will always have a search and rescue presence in Charlevoix, but beyond that, because Charlevoix has always been such a good host to the Coast Guard, the Coast Guard wants to maintain a presence there."

Charlevoix City Mayor, Norman Carlson, said this news couldn't have come at a better time.

"I'm absolutely elated," he said. "All the hard work done by the congressman and Admiral Papp is greatly appreciated."

He added, "And, commander

Bills (Charlevoix) started us off right and gave us a lot of crucial advice. He helped walk me through a lot of things."

Carlson said, "It just shows that community support and having a champion like Stupak can make great things happen."

"This means a lot to the City of Charlevoix and Beaver Island and this area as whole with all the shipping industry and the commerce and all that brings to this area."

While Carlson is ecstatic about the news, his optimism is guarded as he awaits both the vote and the president's signature.

"We'll definitely keep an eye on this issue because the goal is to maintain a Coast Guard presence and replace the Acacia because it's the last of its kind," he said. "But, I'm not surprised at the outcome. When I first talked with Stupak, I knew it would be an uphill battle, but he obviously put his nose to the grindstone and went to work for his constituents. And good things come from hard work."

How to get news into the Charlevoix Courier

If you have a news item you think would be perfect for the Charlevoix Courier, feel free to call 547-6558, e-mail news@charlevoixcourier.com or visit the Courier office located at 112 Mason Street in downtown Charlevoix.

News items include events sponsored by non-profit organizations. Please inform us of your event at least two weeks in advance. Our coverage area is the city of Charlevoix and its immediately surrounding areas, including Beaver Island.

Because of space limitations in the newspaper, we generally try to avoid publishing "check-handling" pictures or "ribbon-cutting" pictures. However, we will work with your organization to get a picture that reflects the event and is visually interesting to our readers.

Due to time constraints on the staff, we cannot attend every event of which we are notified. If you have a picture of your event, we will gladly consider it for publication. But, please, contact us before your event. It should be noted, each story and picture is dealt with on its individual merits. Any policies outlined above may be suspended by the editor or general manager of the Charlevoix Courier if necessary.

Memories from life on the farm in the 1930s

Marilyn Boss

'Days gone by'

Memories are a wonderful gift we have.

I have been blessed with especially wonderful ones. One of my grandmothers lived on a farm. My grandfather, Milton McKay had a house downtown in East Jordan on McKay Road, named for him.

I have written down many of my memories of my life as a child in the 1930s, for my grandchildren. They each have a book of my articles written for the Courier, and the stories of my childhood. When they read these stories of the old Charlevoix area, they will understand why we love living here.

My maternal grandmother was Jessie McKay Hager. She was a school teacher in the East Jordan school. Sometimes when I stayed with her, I would go to school. I was a first-grader at the time, and was very unhappy in the class. So, grandma took me into her third and fourth-grade class. I remember sitting in the reading circle, and helping the kids with their words. Grandma encouraged me to read very early, and she had many books for me to enjoy. Her shelves at home and school were filled with wonderful books about the world, and I loved them. I also have many books for my grandchildren.

I also visited the farm every day. It was one mile from the house in town, on M-32. Grandma had pigs, chickens, cows and cats on the farm. We called our grandma, "grandma

When I was little, there were no toilets inside the house. Great-grandpa McKay, who lived in the house downtown, was an engineer, and made a nice outhouse over the creek which ran past the house on the way to the Jordan River. Of course, you couldn't do that today, but at that time, it was the cleanest outhouse you ever saw. He built three seats in it, with shaped sides. One was a little one, for me. I loved the fun of wading in the sandy bottomed creek, and all the host of frogs that inhabited the long grass near it. The croaking frogs put me to sleep every night. When Dale and I first lived at North Point, there were lots of frogs and crickets singing at night, but it is rare today.

One day, I made the trip to the outhouse, down the path and across the little bridge that grandpa built over the creek. As I closed the door, I saw a garter snake curled up in the corner between the door and me. I was so little, that any snake would terrify me. I started yelling for my grandma. She heard me, and when she saw it was a snake, she called my great-grandmother McKay, who came out with a hoe and killed the snake. I was fascinated to see this little lady with her hoe, but as I looked, the snake continued to move around, even though she cut its head off. I asked her why the snake was moving, and she said, "Why, Mary, snakes don't die until sundown." This wasn't so, but I remembered it all my life.

I also visited the farm every day. It was one mile from the house in town, on M-32. Grandma had pigs, chickens, cows and cats on the farm. We called our grandma, "grandma Jessie" to keep the two grandmas separate. At her farm, there wasn't any refrigerator, of course. She had a basement which had stairs going into it on the outside of the house, and the floor of the basement was nice sand, with clear, cold water covering it. There was a board over the water so you could walk on it and not get wet. There were shelves along the sides, with jars of canned fruit, vegetables, and meat on them.

There was a window by the stairs so light would come in. We kept our bottles of orange pop in the water, anchored in the sand. It was so nice to go down there on a hot summer day, because it was very cool. Grandma also kept all the eggs on the steps leading downstairs. The sides of the stairway were made of stones, which kept the cellar cold. It made a wonderful refrigerator.

Grandma had a pitcher pump in her kitchen like all other farms had. She also had a long linen towel made from flour sacks, which she sewed together and hung up near the sink on a dowel. It was a most handy towel to use, and I have always had one in my home, only it is made of absorbent terry cloth. The living room, or parlor, was used when company came. We usually were in the dining room and kitchen. We had a big stove to keep the house warm. The two bedrooms were cold, but they had down feather beds, with a down comforter on top. It was wonderful to sink into the warm, soft beds. When I was born, my mother was deciding what to name me. Her mother's name was Jessie Matilda, and my dad's mother's name was Matilda. I lucked out, and mother decided she couldn't name me Jessie Matilda, for it would look like she named me only for my one grandma, so she named me Marilyn Margaret. Marilyn was for a current movie star, and Margaret was after my great-aunt.

I loved to feed the chickens on the farm. They walked freely around the farm, and when I called, "Here, chick, chick, chick," they would come running. It was a delightful experience for me. At that time, the cows were milked by hand, and grandma would put the milk in a separator, which was in the kitchen. She would put the cream in one container, and the milk in another. In those days, people usually made their own butter and cheeses. There weren't any supermarkets then, just little stores around town in each neighborhood. Of course, the housewives had to use their apples for pies, sauce, etc. Nothing went to waste. They baked their own bread, pies and cookies. I remember grandma being up late at night, either canning, or mending socks or anything else that needed fixing.

We used Lifebuoy soap to wash our hands on the farm. I loved the smell of it, and when I went to a flea market in later years, I spied a bar at a vendor's table. It was in pristine condition, and was marked $3. I picked it up, and it still smelled the same. The vendor said she would let me have it for $2, and I bought it immediately. What a bargain. I have it in my kitchen today, and when I feel nostalgic, I open the glass case I have it in, and smell it to my heart's content.

When I think back on the work they had to do with rather primitive things, it makes me wonder how they did it all. We are so blessed today, with our modern conveniences and our great memories.

Stealthy training and healthy turnout bode well for strong season

Allen Telgenhof

With a new team, valuable playing time in Tennessee under his belt and plenty of talent to pick from, Charlevoix High School varsity baseball coach, Allen Telgenhof, has a lot to look Telgenhof said.

He said this trip gave the team valuable training time as well as the opportunity to take notes on a few college level games. The trip was financed through fund-raisers coordinated by the team.

Telgenhof said the team's greatest strength will come from pitchers Matt Teuscher and Eddie Waldron.

"We're looking to them for some strong one-two pitching," Telgenhof said.

According to Telgenhof, the team's biggest challenge will be getting the newer players acclimated to playing at the varsity level.

forward to this year.

Telgenhof said he has 16 students on the varsity team this year. That does not just mean lots of talent to pick from, but it means good things for the future.

Of the 16 players on the team, seven are seniors, four are juniors, three are sophomores and two are freshmen.

Telgenhof recently took the team on a week-long spring training tour beginning at Notre Dame in Indiana and ending at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

"It was an eye-opening experience,"

As for competition, Telgenhof said, it will be tough since Boyne City is returning some strong players. He added, Elk Rapids and Traverse City St. Francis are also looking strong.

They played their first doubleheader on April 10 at home against Central Lake. The Rayders won both games, claiming a 17-2 victory in the first game and a 5-1 win in the second.

The next game is 4:30 p.m. today, Wednesday, April 12 at home against the Petoskey High School Northmen.

Young, athletic team to see success on the softball field

"We are looking pretty good for such a young team. They have a lot of potential and with time and practice we'll have a strong team."

Tony Zimmerman,
Head coach, Charlevoix girls' softball

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

Charlevoix's new varsity softball coach, Tony Zimmerman, may have a young team this year, but he's impressed with their athletic ability and attitude.

"We are looking pretty good, for such a young team," he said. "They have a lot of potential, and with time and practice, we'll have a strong team."

Out of a team of 13, Zimmerman has only two seniors returning from last season. He also has five juniors, four sophomores and two freshmen.

Returning players are Desi Faust, Sally Haselschwardt, Leah Kelly, Genevieve Kochanny, Catilyn Mitchell, Chelsea Nemchak and Sasha Spenceley.

This marks Zimmerman's first year as head coach. He said he looks forward to working with the girls as they head into this season.

"This will be a learning experience for both me and the team as a whole," he said.

While he said he does not have any real standout players at this time, he has two senior outfielders, Haselschwardt and Kochanny, who will add a solid base of experience to the team.

Tony Zimmerman

Zimmerman said his goal right now is to improve the team's hitting and bunting, as well as their fielding and to teach them the ins and outs of the game.

"They need real-game experience," he said. "There is no better way for (the team) to learn than to get out there and compete with other teams."

Zimmerman looks forward to building strong ties between the community and his team. He said having a larger audience at the games will encourage his team and strengthen their morale.

"The best thing for these girls is to see that all of Charlevoix is behind them 100 percent," he said.

The Rayder varsity softball team will play their first game at 4:30 p.m. today, Wednesday, April 12 at home against Petoskey.

The Rayder varsity softball and baseball teams will host Central Lake, Ellsworth and Gaylord in their first tournament of the season. The tournament begins at 11 a.m. on Saturday, April 22.

Depth and diversity define track teams

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

Charlevoix boys' and girls' track coaches Ken and Mary Plude are excited about this year's prospects.

Due to the large number of players on each team, both coaches boast a surplus of depth and diversity to pick from. Something they hope will create balanced teams.

Mary has 21 students on the girls' team, eight of which are freshman.

With so many underclassmen on the team, Mary said, not only will she have a strong team this year, but she could get a lot of talent in the coming years.

"It's good to see so many girls come out," she said.

Mary said she is excited about the outlook for her young team.

"The girls are gelling well and coming along as a team," she said.

"I have sprinters, distance runners and field events, the only thing I am lacking is a high jumper."

However, she said, she still needs to make it all work in the meets.

"I can have all the talent in the world. I just need to be able to pull it together in time," she said.

The team is focused this year Mary said, and they want to qualify as many Rayders for the state finals as they can.

Ernst, Jasmine Witthoef and Emily Heffling have been with her for four years and are very hard workers.

Due to a large graduating class, but we have plenty of up and coming players to choose from."

Ken said the greatest strength of his team will come in the field events and he already has two boys who are jumping 18 to 20 feet.

As for running, Ken is very impressed with his distance runners.

"Distance is very competitive here in northern Michigan," he said.

"It takes a lot just to keep up."

Ken said he is pleased with the work Jeff Golovich is doing on his throws and hurdlings.

Another senior to watch is Brandon Stevens in the distance, along with Nate Sotuyo in the middle distance events.

Ken also sees continued improvement in sprinters Mike DiMartino and Dan Elliot.

"We graduated a lot of sprinters, but we still have what it takes to compete," Ken said. "Mike (DiMartino) was our lead sprinter last year, and Dan (Elliot) worked all winter to be able to compete at this level."

As for the teams to look out for, Ken said, without a doubt it will be Harbor Springs and Kingsley.

But, he's looking forward to facing these teams with his Rayders.

"They are a fun group. They are hardworking and team oriented," he said.

Young talent meets seniority on soccer field

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

According to varsity girls' soccer assistant coach, Tom Conlan, the team has the most talented underclassmen it has had in years — which, added to the team's experienced players, should mean good things for this season.

"We had our best season in 10 years last year. This team will be even better," Conlan said.

Out of 22 students on the team, six of them are freshman, nine of them are sophomores and four of them are seniors.

Conlan said those four seniors form a strong nucleus for the team to build on. They are full-backs Lisa Kuebler and Stevie Murray; veteran goalkeeper Laura Nitchman; and midfielder Madison Ramsey.

Ramsey missed last season after she was injured during the girls' basketball state finals.

"We'll be looking for her to really blossom this year," Conlan said.

In goal again this year is Laura Nitchman, who was all-state as a freshman and all-district as a sophomore.

"She is outstanding," Conlan said.

Offensively, he said, this year's team has speed to spare.

"We are going to be faster than most of the teams in our division," he said.

The girls' varsity Rayder soccer team will open regular season play at 5 p.m. on Thursday, April 13 in East Jordan.

Charlevoix tennis coach, Erik Lundteigen, is excited about the growth of his team and the outlook for this season.

With 50 students out for the varsity and junior varsity teams this year, Lundteigen said that means the program will be healthy for quite some time.

"It's good to have those numbers. As the seniors start to graduate, the spots will be filled," he said. "I'm thrilled to see the continued growth and interest."

On top of the high number of players on the teams, Lundteigen will also have the experience to back it up, as many students from last year's varsity team have returned this year.

In the 2004-2005 season, the tennis team claimed the regional championship, placed second in the conference and qualified for the state finals.

And, despite the bounty of players, Lundteigen has no plans to leave anyone left out of the game.

"I don't believe in cutting kids, because tennis is really a lifelong thing," he said.

"It's good to have those numbers. As seniors start to graduate, the spots will be filled. I'm thrilled to see the continued growth and interest."

Charlevoix tennis coach

Lundteigen stressed, no one's spot on the team is safe, and the names you see on the roster will change throughout the year, thanks to the team's use of challenge matches.

In challenge matches a player can work their way up through the ranks of the team by challenging other teammates for their positions.

Lundteigen said this only makes the team stronger by keeping the level of competition high.

"It really makes everyone work harder and encourages them to practice more on their own," he said.

In addition to the competition from challenge matches, a large graduating class left Lundteigen with several open spots to fill.

"We graduated half of our singles players, so there's going to be a lot of competition for those positions," he said. "I think that is a great thing for the health of this team."

According to Lundteigen, the key to winning this year depends upon how the team improves heading up to the regional tournament on May 12.

While he's happy with the team's skills now, Lundteigen believes things still need to improve.

Supervisor threatens prosecution

Eveline Township clerk Don Hayden searches for lost receipts

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Eveline Township trustee, Don Hayden, was given one more month to produce receipts at the Tuesday, April 11 Eveline Township Board meeting.

Hayden, along with township treasurer, Debra Jason (formerly Healey-Jason), who was reinstated April 1, were chastised at the March 21 meeting by township supervisor, John Vrondran, for some discrepancies in the townships financial records including overpaid tax bills and missing receipts.

"He (Vrondran) told the audience that, if I don't provide the receipts by the next meeting, he will turn it over to the (Charlevoix County) prosecutor and I will go to jail," Hayden said. "One of the items was a three cent discrepancy for stamps. Do you think I ought to go to jail for a three cent discrepancy?"

He added, "I realize the receipts are supposed to be furnished, but for years I've trusted people who turned in their timecards and asked for payment whether they had a receipt or not. I trusted that they only asked for what they were entitled to. But, I believe our auditor has said the IRS requires that receipts are provided."

As in the past, Hayden has said he most likely misplaced the receipts while moving to a new home in May 2005.

"I have not found any of those receipts, but I'm sure they're here," he said. "I've got 20 boxes of papers because I never throw anything away."

Currently, Hayden stores all the receipts for which he is in charge at his personal office. Vrondran hopes moving the storage of such important papers to a township facility will help prevent similar mishaps in the future.

"I'll provide all the receipts that I can locate," Hayden said.

During an audit, it was discovered Jason failed to repay some overpayments made by residents on their collective tax bills in a timely manner. Jason was asked to step down for six months while the matter was investigated. Once representatives of the State of Michigan were satisfied there was no intentional misconduct, Jason was reinstated.

"We need to find any errors that he (Hayden) has and I'm planning on helping him do that so his books will balance with mine," she said.

Jason said it feels great to have everything on her end taken care of and to be back in the treasurer's seat.

"I like doing it, it enables me to be at home with my children and have a somewhat flexible schedule, and that is my number one priority," she said.

Hayden has until 7 p.m. on May 13, the next scheduled board meeting, to produce the missing receipts or Vrondran said he will take the matter to Charlevoix County Prosecutor, John Jarema.

Jarema said he is only familiar with the case to the extent of what he has gleaned from newspaper articles. He declined to comment on whether Hayden's actions could warrant jail time.

Castle Farms to host Michigan's Fun Kickoff

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Those of you who cannot wait until the middle of summer for a festival and fireworks show are in luck.

The Michigan Festivals and Events Association will host Michigan's Fun Kickoff and Ribbon Cutting Ceremony at Castle Farms of Charlevoix, starting with a midway full of amusements, a Kids' Kingdom with jugglers, magicians, face painting, Ronald McDonald and more, and the weekend will climax with a fireworks display over Round Lake.

"The Michigan Festivals and Events Association had such a positive experience here that they wanted to come back," said Dan Barron, president of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival. "There was such a buzz over the (upcoming event), and once it became clear there was a big festival going on over at Castle Farms, I looked at it like, 'How could we benefit the downtown as well?'"

Canoeists survive icy Lake Charlevoix

At approximately 5:45 p.m. on Saturday, April 15, a canoe flipped over west of Horton Bay, in the middle of Lake Charlevoix.

Michael Farley, 46, of Charlevoix, and 25-year-old Cory Haight of Boyne City were operating the canoe when the waves kicked up and they both lost their balance and fell in. According to a report issued by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, the two tried to swim, but quickly began getting weak in the 42 degree water. They were pulled from the frigid water by three passing vessels who saw them and heard their cries for help. They were transported immediately to Charlevoix Area Hospital where they were treated for severe hypothermia.

Festival to bring fireworks, carnival

val include, a carnival midway from 5 to 10 p.m. on Friday, April 28, at Castle Farms.

From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday, April 29 the Michigan Fun Art Fair offers a juried fine art and craft showcase and sale. From 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. is the Kids' Kingdom.

The Flavors of Michigan wine, beer and food tasting, taking place from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., offers participants "Wine, Brew and Food Infusion," (cost of $10) a commemorative sampling glass and tickets good toward food and drink. Flavors of Michigan boasts the best of the best in the state.

From noon to 10 p.m. is the midway with carnival amusements, from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. in East Park Mojo and the Boogie man will play until the fireworks begin at 9:45 p.m.

Then, on Sunday, April 30, the midway will once again be open from noon to 5 p.m.

Barron said the Venetian style fireworks display is being sponsored by Colonial Fireworks Company, the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau, and the Downtown Development Authority.

"The Venetian Festival (Inc.) is not providing any funding for it. We're reserving our funding for July," he said. "But we're doing legwork for it and overseeing it so we can provide the best of both worlds to the group (Michigan Festivals and Events Association) coming up here."

He added, "They are sensitive and appreciative of tourism and a resort economy. This should provide just a great promotional opportunity for Charlevoix. This will allow us to put our best foot forward for a group that are the key decision makers in the tourist economy."

Barron said, if the festival continues into the future, he would like to see it held a little later in the spring.

"We hope to have the downtown parks filled and we hope that we'll sidestep any snowstorms, although a fireworks display in the snow could be quite unique as well," he said. "We're really excited about the prospect of this becoming a regularly scheduled festival on an annual or biannual basis. We think there is a distinct possibility that, if it is as successful as we think it will be and if the Michigan Festivals and Events Association put us on their agenda, we could anticipate a nice shot in the arm for our downtown businesses."

Barron said there is a huge promotional benefit to introducing people to this area in the off-season.

"This is a great opportunity for people to be reminded of the overwhelming beauty of the area," he said. "And, it will increase their desire to come up earlier and more often when the town is less crowded and they have a better opportunity to mingle with the locals."

Barron said anyone interested in having a good time while supporting Charlevoix should come down and enjoy the events.

"It's going to be a full-fledged, first-class festival occurring in Charlevoix at a slow time of the year," he said. "This is an opportunity to celebrate life in Charlevoix with friends and family in fun family venues."

The $25,000 fireworks display will be similar in length to the Venetian Saturday show.

In a Michigan Festivals and Events Association press release, the group's executive director, Sue Bila, states, "We wanted to kick-off the festival, fair, event season and showcase some of the fabulous family fun Michigan residents have just hours away. As families start planning their summer activities, we thought this would be a great way to help our hundreds of members tell families where things are happening and help them enjoy Michigan's tourism, heritage, and culture."

The Michigan Festivals and Events Association is the largest festival association in the United States.

For information on lodging or dining for the weekend of the event, call the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101.

Tackling thinning hair one cut at a time

Benjamin Gohs
'Staff writer'

Mom knew two hairstyles when I was a kid, page boy and inmate. I got so used to homemade hair care I never understood spending $15 on a stylist.

But, over the years I grew disgusted with my locks and began slacking between trims. Until last week, it had been half-a-year since I gave myself a haircut.

There I was, gazing into the bathroom mirror, clippers in hand and too stubborn to get a haircut from my capable wife.

Twenty minutes of contemplation passed. My fatigued arm shook. The longer I held the menacing electric shears, the heavier they became.

"One wrong move and the scalp gets it," the brain threatened, but cowardice got the better of me and I dropped the tool in the sink.

My hesitation stemmed from fear of exposing the tale hued bald spots hiding under my mop. Oh the lies I told myself, ordering those unbreakable combs, buying extra large containers of shampoo and gel.

My comb-over of shame was quickly suffocating under the weight of its deceit.

I barricaded the door with the laundry hamper and brushed back my bangs. The widow's peak on Mr. Gohs was longer, wider and whiter than before. Hairs jumped ship at an alarming rate and my charade was sinking fast.

I snapped, grabbed the trimmers and hair fell to the floor. An earlobe was nicked. In two minutes it was all over — success.

Who am I kidding? I looked like an escaped mental patient. I couldn't have done a worse job if I had used a butter knife and tweezers.

The wife pounded the door, but my barricade held — you'll never take me alive. Her offer, "I'll do it," turned to an order, "Let me fix it."

I pled with her, "I can huy" a blinking neon tie. That'll take the attention away from my head. Right?" She didn't respond.

"At least it's not as bad as the time I gave myself a Mohawk. Right?" My depression worsened when I realized a Mohawk is an actual hairstyle, what I did is nothing less than an asymmetrical abomination of Don King proportions.

She surveyed the damage and attempted to straighten what remained. She may as well have performed open heart surgery with a coffee straw and masking tape.

I tried not to sob.

In the days following what is now known as "The massacre," desperation overcame me. It didn't take long before I found some pills — $440 for a year's supply? That sounds good. "Two of three men grow hair," it said on the box. "Two percent end up with erectile dysfunction." I tried to convince myself this was a fair trade.

The drug is so deadly, pregnant women cannot handle the packaging. It's nature's way of saying, "Do not eat this."

Then I find a $690 hairpiece. They tell me it's a Hair Replacement System. It's "unbelievably natural," and, "almost adheres to your skin."

Then the fine print. I have to shave my head and glue the "system" to my scalp. It stays on for four weeks, but I only have one minute to position it.

They tell me I'll look like Wayne Newton. I want to look like Wayne Newton, but the wife won't let me have the $690.

How about surgery? The flap method sounds exciting. For $4,300, they'll cut out patches of bald scalp, stretch hairy scalp over the open wound and sew my head back together. Stretching the existent over the nonexistent? That's how mom used to mend my socks, and they never quite fit right when she finished.

They tell me my left ear could end up near my temple, but the hair will look fantastic. I told the wife they have a payment plan. She gave me $15.

Looks like I'm in the market for a barber.

Plants prepare for the spring growing season

Roger Knutson
'Ear to the ground'

I went to bed one night last week and in the sunset light the lawn was as gray and tan as it had been since the snow left.

When I woke up the next day that same lawn was gloriously green. And I swear that the buds on the maple tree were larger than they had been the night before. A few crocuses and daffodils were already blooming, but that instant green announces most clearly, spring is here.

Grass does not change color from tan to green. The individual blades of grass had grown new green lengths in only part of a day. One day, there are only a few green spears of daffodils and the next day they are six-inches tall with buds already bursting. Any day now, I expect the maple seeds that have been lying under the snow all winter to push themselves up and unfurl their flags shouting, "I am here, I am here."

No matter how many times it has happened before, the suddenness of spring growth is always something of a surprise. If we had really been paying attention we would know that all those plants have been marshaling resources, storing water, building themselves up like the tension in a mechanical spring or the resolve of an athlete; ready at the first warm days providing sun and a south wind.

Plants are not really smart of course. They can be fooled and sometimes are fooled into too early growth by a week of warm weather sometime in February. And they pay the price, with later frosts often destroying any tender new growth and requiring the plants to start over in the process of building themselves up. That plants are fooled so seldom is a monument both to their adaptability and to the general dependability of seasonal weather.

Our spring plants are not unlike the athlete who has been training for months or years for one chance to throw a 16-pound iron ball or fling a javelin farther than ever before. How long have the plants been in training for their sudden burst of springtime activity?

If we were able to travel back in time we could visit the beech-maple forests of our area as much as five million years ago. The few animals we saw would be strange indeed to our eyes, but we would easily recognize many of the plants as essentially like those that surround us now. The biggest difference would be the absence of a few hundred kinds of plants, maybe a quarter of the total that did not live in North America until Europeans had brought them here.

The native plants would be recognizable maples, oaks and beeches, and the flowers would definitely be trillium and the other early spring flowers.

Our native plants have been in training to manage that abrupt spring surge of growth for more than five million years, a training regimen unmatched by any athlete. It isn't so difficult to see how they are good at what they do. They have been practicing for an almost unimaginable length of time. Take note of our spring athletes among the plants: Maybe not quite as exciting as spring baseball or soccer or track, but mighty interesting.

Letters to the editor

PA volunteers needed

Editor:

I would like to thank the 2005-2006 Charlevoix High School performing arts parent/family volunteers for donating their time, money and expertise to the program. Thanks to your efforts, our students had an outstanding drama ensemble and now a strong forensics team.

The Charlevoix community should be proud of the program's 37-year history with the Michigan Interscholastic Forensic Association competitions. We look forward to continuing this successful association.

However, our work is not done. We have our regional competition to host on April 25 at Alma College and we need volunteers to assist. State Finals are on May 5 at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. Lastly, there is the year-end showcase in May. A meeting will be scheduled soon for volunteers to sign up for food, chaperoning, carpools and registration. All performing arts parents are asked to help in any way they can.

Nominations for the 2006-2007 officers and discussion of the 2006 summer fund-raising efforts will be discussed in May. We continue to accept donations for backstage and costume shop tools and supplies.

I encourage the community at large to send best wishes to Connie Ford on her retirement. Thank you for pushing, prodding, scolding, standing up for and supporting our students for 37 years.

New office, bad idea

Editor:

If the school administration (Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education) proceeds with committing $1.4 million for an unnecessary office at the wrong location during a budget shortfall they risk alienating the taxpayers to the point of voting down the likely future millage increase request for education.

Tax Day

Editor:

May 1 is Loyalty Day, but did you know that April 19, 1775, is celebrated as the day the Revolutionary War began?

Look at how we celebrate April every year on April 15. The cause was taxation and the effect was a new nation formed, which created April 15. How lucky we are to celebrate this great National day, this year, on Monday, April 17.

I get to listen to many of you talk about how you have prepared for this deadline date of April 15, but few of you remember the April 19. Let us remember both days and stay "loyal" to this great country by voting out the tax raisers and voting in more tax cutters. For it was not higher taxes that made us the greatest country on earth, but the people living within their means and holding their township, county, state, and federal government accountable for our money.

Volunteer Appreciation Week

Editor:

As we celebrate National Volunteer Appreciation Week, April 23-29 the Friendship Centers' Retired and Senior Volunteer Program would like to recognize the tremendous contribution program volunteers make to their communities. Volunteers generously gave over 48,000 hours to 110 local non-profit agencies during the past year. Volunteers work tirelessly to improve our communities and truly make a difference. We are very fortunate to have a dedicated group of men and women who fulfill the needs of the community. Many local non-profit agencies could not meet their mission without the assistance of Retired and Senior Volunteer Program volunteers. A heartfelt thanks to our volunteers.

Letter response

Editor:

Amen and amen to Bill Briggs and Steve Hansen. Spending money on new signs when there is nothing wrong with the old ones is ridiculous and irresponsible. Our schools are suffering, we're laying off teachers and saying, "No," to budget requests from teachers. As far as the "Rivulet" hotel/motel/condominium — sounds like a scam to me in order to make money for the developers. The heck with the effect on our sweet, little town.

'Thank you' volunteers

Editor:

On behalf of the Hospice of Northwest Michigan Board of Directors I want to personally thank each and every volunteer of our program for making it possible for those with a life-limiting illness, and their caregivers, the opportunity to spend the rest of their days in the comfort of their homes.

National Volunteer Week begins April 23 and your service to our communities is appreciated by this organization, and especially by the families you serve.

Thank You for caring enough to share your lives with others.

Humane society needed

Editor:

Have you ever seen stray animals roaming around in our community? Well, I have many times, so that's why I think Charlevoix needs a humane society.

First, usually when I'm downtown I'll see strays just walking around doing whatever they want. Six out of every 10 times I'm downtown I see a cat or dog wandering around without an owner or collar. Soon, if someone doesn't do something, some of the animals will die, when they could have gotten adopted.

Next, too many animals are getting killed by cars. I doubt a parent would want a little kid to see that. If the animals got adopted, a lot less accidents would happen involving the animals.

Last of all, it will save money for the animal catchers since they live in Boyne City or Traverse City. If Charlevoix gets a humane society the animal catchers won't have to waste gas going back and forth between cities. Now that gas prices are going up it is going to cost the catchers even more money.

In conclusion, I highly believe Charlevoix needs a humane society.

St. Mary School presents 'Joseph and the Dream X-treme' April 27

At 6:30 p.m. on Thursday evening, April 27 the students of St. Mary School will present their Spring Musical, "Joseph and the Dream Team X-treme" in the Parish Family Center.

This musical, written by Jay Rouse and David Noel, re-tells the popular Old Testament story of "Joseph and his coat of many colors." The story is narrated by three angels, Dreama, Pockets and Stardust, played by student thespians Emily Chapdelaine, Erin Stebe and Kourtney Putman.

These angels are in charge of the Dream Team Headquarters and they send God's messages to Joseph and the people around him through dreams. Joseph, portrayed by Nicholas Snabes, is also given the ability by God to interpret these dreams.

This musical is very up-beat and contains many musical styles from pop-rock to country to Caribbean.

There will be no admission charge. The Parish Family Center is located at 1005 Bridge Street in Charlevoix.

Medicare prescription drug coverage Q and A at the library

The Charlevoix Public Library is hosting a program presented by Marge Krehak from the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, who will present an overview of Medicare prescription drug coverage and will answer questions.

Medicare prescription drug coverage is insurance that covers both brand-name and generic prescriptions at participating pharmacies.

Krehak will demonstrate how to find the best plan by using the government's Medicare Web site.

Linda Adams, library assistant, will also demonstrate the library's on-line health resources at this session.

Participants who need assistance with searching the Internet are asked to bring information on their current health coverage, a Medicare card, and a list of drugs used and their dosages.

All information will be kept confidential.

This free program will take place at 1 p.m. on Tuesday, April 25 in the downstairs library meeting room, located at 109 Clinton Street in Charlevoix.

Pre-registration is required by calling the library at (231) 547-2651.

Elsenheimer named Legislator of the Year by police officers association

Kevin Elsenheimer

State Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer has been named 2006 Legislator of the Year by the Police Officers Association of Michigan, the second law enforcement agency to award Elsenheimer with their agency's highest honor.

Earlier this year, Elsenheimer was awarded Legislator of the Year by the Michigan Chiefs of Police.

The Bellaire lawmaker was selected by the association for his work on the "More Cops on the Street" legislation to streamline Michigan's court system so police and crime victims do not spend valuable time in court for proceedings that are routinely waived or postponed. And for his new law that allows residents to use mobile radio scanners without a permit but implements penalties for usage while committing a crime.

"Law enforcement agencies and communities benefit from Rep. Elsenheimer's work because it allows local resources to focus on protecting people instead of on paperwork or waiting on court proceedings that are canceled," said Kenneth E. Grahowski, legislative director of the Police Officers Association of Michigan.

Elsenheimer, former Antrim County assistant prosecutor, was honored by the news.

"I have worked side-by-side with law enforcement during most of my professional career," Elsenheimer said. "As an assistant prosecutor and now as a legislator, I know how important it is to take into account what groups like the Police Officers Association of Michigan have to say on various public policies. These are the individuals who are on the streets enforcing our laws and protecting our citizens. I'm humbled with their level of support."

The Police Officers Association of Michigan is a full-service labor organization that serves law enforcement and correctional officers.

Judge Pajtas drops Waltonen's CSC charges

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

On April 7, Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas quashed four, first degree criminal sexual conduct charges from the long list of felonies Charlevoix resident, Lloyd Joseph Waltonen, is facing.

"I granted the defendant's motion to quash the criminal sexual conduct, first degree charges. I didn't feel they were appropriate. The victim testified that the sex was consensual at the preliminary examination and I didn't feel the charges were legally appropriate," Judge Pajtas said.

However, Charlevoix County Chief Assistant Prosecutor, Shaynee Fanara, doesn't plan to let Judge Pajtas' order to quash go without objection.

"It's important because it's not fair to the citizens in the community for someone to get away with getting a young person addicted to drugs. Then start to request sexual favors in exchange for those drugs," Fanara said.

On Thursday, April 13, Fanara filed an objection to the order and a motion to reconsider. On April 17, Judge Pajtas issued an order requiring Waltonen's defense attorney Kerry Zahner to file a response to Fanara's motion for reconsideration by next Monday. The judge may grant a hearing at which the motion will be considered or he may choose to overturn or stand by his decision without returning to the court room.

A decision had not been made, nor was a date set in this matter, by press time.

In making his decision to quash the charges, Judge Pajtas heard from Zahner, who argued in support of throwing out or reducing the charges her client faced.

Zahner claims coercion was not part of the sex acts in question. Waltonen is accused of providing oxycontin and methadone to at least one woman in exchange for sex.

According to summaries of testimony by two women in an affidavit of probable cause given by to Charlevoix County Sheriff's detective corporal Chuck Vondra, Waltonen forced oral and vaginal sex in exchange for oxycontin and methadone.

A search warrant executed at Waltonen's residence on Feb. 9 resulted in seizure of pill bottles labeled Lloyd Waltonen containing methadone, oxycodone, amphetamines and Adderall XR pills.

Information gathered in the investigation that has taken place thus far, alleges incidents of exchange of pills for sexual favors dating back to 2001 and extend through 2005.

Waltonen, 42, was arrested by Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater on Thursday, Feb. 22 and was arraigned that day in Charlevoix County District Court.

He now faces charges including four felony counts of delivery of drugs, each of which carry possible 20-year prison terms, four felony counts of maintaining a drug house, each of which carry two-year possible prison sentences, four misdemeanor counts of prostitution and one felony count of eavesdropping with a video, which carries a possible five-year prison sentence.

Waltonen was charged as a habitual offender for two prior felony convictions from the early 1990s when he was convicted of assault with a dangerous weapon and a felony firearm violation. This means if found guilty of these charges he could face twice the maximum sentence prescribed.

He is being held in Charlevoix County Jail with bond set at $50,000.

Waltonen's trial is scheduled to begin June 20.

Hayes Township supervisor resigns

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Roger Knutson

After a successful stint as Hayes Township Supervisor, Tim Boyko was forced to resign when he and his family moved out of the area earlier this month.

While Boyko has no plans to serve in the government of his new township, he will miss the work he did during his two terms as supervisor.

The best thing about serving in local government, he said, was "The ability to directly see the effects of what we decided. It wasn't abstract, it was very concrete. What we did would immediately affect our community."

Boyko said he will miss working with the people most.

"The local boards are great. Many fine people serve on them and I enjoyed all their input," he said. "They (residents) are in great hands. The other thing I'll miss is 'being able to directly influence trying to make the Big Rock property become an asset of the state. That's very high on my agenda and the people's agenda.'"

Of the many projects in which Boyko was involved, several stand out in his mind.

"The creation of the recreation authority to pass the millage for the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, and seeing the city (of Charlevoix), Hayes Township and Charlevoix Township come together with the mutual land use planning among the three units was extremely satisfying," he said. "I'm sure that will be developed more in the future."

He added, "I think our very forward-leaning zoning ing was satisfying. We inherited a good master plan and many people worked on it to make it a great (cornerstone) document for our zoning. I think we've accomplished a great deal in our township."

Though he will miss his work, Boyko said things weren't always a delight.

"I was frustrated with some of the bureaucracies at the state level," he said. "I think some of the road issues were perplexing. The state's rules are extremely rigid and there is an extreme lack of local control on roads, and this isn't from the county level, this is from the state level."

Boyko, who previously served as Charlevoix County Road Commissioner, said he understands the difficulties involved with travel routes.

"The state has rigid rules, and as you remove yourself from the community, you can impose those rules with less consequence," he said. "When you're local, you're more open to compromise and less rigidity."

The main issue Boyko had with the Michigan Department of Transportation was the relocation of some power lines in Hayes Township without taking care to ensure scenic aspects.

"We suffered a few corridors that I was personally disappointed with," he said. "It's economically driven. They had to cut trees and put power lines in spots that would have been better served if they were hurried. Once again, I was frustrated with the bureaucracy."

But, he said, all in all, it was a good experience.

"It meant a lot to me to have people serve in capacities that don't get a lot of glamor, while sacrificing family time," he said. "It was very satisfying to see people serve graciously with the best interest in the community and a deep interest in serving the commonwealth. That is laudable, and I think, becoming somewhat rare."

He added, "I wish the people good luck and enjoyment of living in that community."

Boyko's replacement, Hayes Township board trustee, Fred Parsons, was appointed on April 10. Since he was a trustee, there is no need for him to be sworn in. Parsons will act as supervisor until the August primary election. If he is unopposed he will serve until the general election in November.

Parsons, who has served on the board for over 10 years and worked as the supervisor of Charlevoix Township Public Works, said he looks forward to, "perpetuating all the good work that's been done by the planning commission."

Parsons, who said he is pleased with his appointment, believes local government is important because it is the grassroots.

"This is where we start. Big Brother takes too long to do things," he said.

Parsons said his phone line is always open to the people he serves.

Jim Rudolph, Parsons' replacement, will be sworn in at the next township meeting, to take place at 7:30 p.m., on Monday, May 8, at the Hayes Township Hall, located at 09195 Old U.S. 31 North in Charlevoix.

John Jarema

Building and Grounds Committee meeting on Tuesday, April 11, Jarema said, "The county can do some sort Ordinance of November 11, 1987 was recently found to be in violation of state law by Charlevoix County Prosecutor, John Jarema.

During the Judicial/Public Safety/ordinances, but these ordinances are limited by statute, number one, and if the county is going to do some sort of ordinance like this it has to be restricted to county property and county parks. In general, not on township property. We have no authority over that."

Jarema said he discussed his opinion with officials from Emmet County who agreed the county has no business enacting this type of ordinance under Michigan state law.

Charlevoix County Clerk, Jane Brannon, said now that the Castle no longer hosts concerts, the ordinance is unnecessary.

Brannon said, "The other events aren't problems because they provide enough security and, on the public (events) like the Venetian Festival, the city and the county work together."

Jarema said the adopted resolution is contrary to numerous attorney general opinions as well as the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' statutory authority.

"MCL 46.11 allows the board to pass an ordinance that does not interfere with local affairs of a township, city or village within the limits of the county," Jarema states in an opinion letter to the commissioners. "Such gatherings do not happen on county property, but on property located within townships, cities or villages within this county."

He further states, "When applied to the existing Mass Gathering Ordinance, such an ordinance is not limited to property owned or occupied by the county or its boards, commissions or agencies. It is my opinion that such the present ordinance is not valid for the reason it is not limited to county affairs and it is a contravention and interference with local authority."

Charlevoix Elementary School Spring Carnival

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The annual Charlevoix Elementary School Spring Carnival is scheduled to take place from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., Friday, April 21 in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

Proceeds from the event help the Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) assist the schools.

"This is the PTO's main fund-raising event," said Charlevoix Elementary School principal, Richard Swenor.

The Parent Teacher Organization uses the funds for things such as bringing an author to the school to work with the kids each year.

"They (the Parent Teacher Organization) provide books for kids and things for the teachers' wish lists," he said. "Or, if the classroom needed something special or something they couldn't afford from their regular budget, then the PTO would help with that. Sometimes they even help with field trips."

Swenor said the spring carnival is a family event for all ages.

"It's a very popular event with parents and kids, and we are really pleased to be having it at the high school where we moved it last year," Swenor said. "It was so popular that our little gym was too crowded."

There will be snow cones, popcorn and many games for the kids and there will be gift basket giveaways for the adults.

"We added the baskets last year. Each classroom has a theme and the kids go home and the parents provide things for the basket," he said. "Last year, some great things in the baskets were golf outings and car detailing items."

He added, "The people get a great deal thanks to a lot of work by volunteer helpers, teachers and partners who put the baskets together."

Swenor said many local businesses also helped out with the event. "Our community is so giving, it's a great place to be," he said.

There is a silent auction for the baskets, a cakewalk for homemade pastries, a basketball shoot-out, an air filled play area, ring toss on bottles, a fishing game and much more.

There is no entry fee. Tickets are four for $1.

The annual Charlevoix Elementary School Spring Carnival is scheduled to take place from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m., Friday, April 21 in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium. Games like the shoot-out pictured above will pack the gym in an effort to raise money for the Parent Teacher Organization.

Umulis takes third runner-up at Mrs. Michigan

By JULIE WITTHOFT

Tanya Umulis

A local competitor in the Mrs. Michigan America pageant reached her goal at the recent competition.

Pageant veteran Tanya Umulis, 22, competed April 15 at the Comstock Inn in Owosso in the Mrs. Michigan America pageant, and was named third runner-up.

Umulis was aiming to place in the top five out of the over 20 women registered at the event.

"I did reach my goal. The woman who won was stunning. She blew everyone out of the water," Umulis said. "My family is thrilled. I felt I was out of my league and to do as well as I did made everyone so incredibly proud."

Competition included a private interview which accounted for 50 percent of the judges' score and swimsuit and evening gown segments which made up 25 percent each.

"I nailed my interview and that set my confidence," she said of her success.

Umulis' prize package includes an engraved silver plate decorated with the Mrs. Michigan America logo and her third runner-up finish information, photo albums, beach bags, aromatherapy candles, lotions, stationary and more.

The big bonus in the hefty prize box is a coupon for half-off the pageant entry fee next year. This year's fee was $595.

Umulis said she plans to return next year with the hope of finishing again in the top five and aspirations to earn the crown and to go on to compete in the Mrs. America pageant to take place in August this year in Tucson, Ariz.

"I will absolutely be going back next year," she said.

To improve her chances of winning, Umulis plans to spend the next year improving her muscle tone at the gym and getting even more involved in the community. Currently, Umulis is a volunteer at area schools — acting as a mentor and tutoring students. She is also working toward her teaching degree at Spring Arbor University.

"I want to win the physical fitness awards and other special awards," she said. "I really want to try to come across as the ultimate Michigan woman who can represent her town and her area and make her family proud."

Umulis started her pageant career in 1998 when she was 14, winning the Miss Teen Northwest pageant in East Jordan. The following year, in 1999, she went on to win Miss Northwest. Summer 2000 marked her favorite win, being crowned Miss Charlevoix during the Venetian Festival.

In 2001, as a freshman at Central Michigan University in Mt. Pleasant Umulis competed against 22 girls and won Miss Greater Central Michigan, one of 28 preliminary competitions to qualify for the Miss Michigan pageant.

In 2002, she competed in the Miss Michigan pageant where she didn't place. Then, in 2003, she was crowned Miss Lake Michigan USA, a preliminary to Miss Michigan USA. She competed twice at the state level for this title, finishing in the top 10 one year and earning third runner-up the second year.

New dental practice to host open house

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

A new dentist, specializing in family services, has opened a practice in Charlevoix.

Brian Kwapisz, 35, bought the former practice of David Strawbridge on March 17. Strawbridge experienced complications from shoulder surgery that left him unable to continue his practice.

"I wanted to be up north and this was a great opportunity that worked out for me," Kwapisz said.

In July 2005, Kwapisz and his family which includes his wife, Kelli and their children, Teryn, 20, Lauren, 5, and Alex, 3, moved to East Jordan from Clinton Township to soak in northern Michigan's family-friendly atmosphere.

The Kwapisz family vacationed in East Jordan for many years prior to deciding to turn in their keys to city life.

"It's the best choice I've ever made," he said.

Since moving to East Jordan, Kwapisz, 35, has practiced dentistry with the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency in East Jordan, Cheboygan and Mancelona and with pediatric dentist Dr. Ralph Kooistra in Gaylord.

He will continue to serve the needs of health department patients in East Jordan on Fridays. Kwapisz said Strawbridge's former employees have stayed on board as have 99 percent of his previous patients. The Kwapisz practice is accepting new patients and employs seven people, including five full-timers and two part-timers.

Kwapisz specializes in all aspects of dentistry including surgery, root canals, cosmetics and gum treatments.

He said his laid back approach to his profession makes him well-suited to treating children.

"Dentistry should be done in a quality manner and at the same time the approach should be fun," he said.

Prior to moving to northern Michigan, Kwapisz was president of Family Dental Centers in Warren where he practiced from 1998-2005. This company is still in operation.

Kwapisz earned his doctorate in dental surgery from the University of Detroit-Mercy in 1997 and pursued his undergraduate studies with a focus on pre-dental curriculum from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Kwapisz will host an open house from noon to 3 p.m. on April 22, at his office, Brian R. Kwapisz, DDS, PC, located at 303 Belvedere Avenue.

The office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and maintains 24-hour emergency service by calling (231) 675-3590. For more information or to make an appointment, call (231) 547-4148.

Rayder baseball split double-header with Petoskey

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

The varsity Rayder baseball team's second non-conference match-up brought mixed blessings of triumph and challenge.

The Rayders split Thursday's double-header against Petoskey, winning the first game 3-2 and succumbing to the Northmen 10-4 in the second game.

Game one remained scoreless through three innings as pitchers Ty Telgenhof of Charlevoix and Andy Strobel of Petoskey traded outs.

"Ty and Strobel were in a real duel most of the game," said varsity baseball coach, Allen Telgenhof.

Charlevoix scored first in the bottom of the fourth inning as Eddie Waldron singled, then capitalized on an error after being bunted to second.

Petoskey responded in the top of the fifth, taking advantage of two Rayder errors, to score two runs for the lead.

The Rayders' Matt Teuscher and Eddie Waldron singled in the bottom of the sixth then advanced on a passed ball and Teuscher scored on a wild pitch.

When Kyle Jones was intentionally walked with the bases loaded and the infield in, Zach Scharenbroch hit a shot that the second baseman was unable to handle, plating Waldron with the winning run.

"I loved the way our guys battled back when we fell behind," Telgenhof said. "Teuscher and Waldron were keys for us starting that sixth inning rally."

Petoskey jumped out early in the second game, and though the Rayders battled back, they couldn't climb out of the hole.

Adding injury to insult, Charlevoix lost two players in the second game when pitcher, Jon Putman, strained his arm after pitching one inning and had to leave the game. A few innings later, Kirk

Allen Telgenhof

Heckendorf injured his knee and was forced to leave the game as well.

"It was a tough game and we had to deal with a bit of adversity," Telgenhof said. "Still, we played hard and kept fighting to the end."

Telgenhof said he is looking forward to a strong season as the Rayders begin conference play this week with a 3-1 record.

"Petoskey was a good test for us, heading into our conference schedule," he said.

The Rayders baseball will face Roscommon at 4 p.m. on Thursday, April 20 at Roscommon.

SPORTS

Softball team fell back to back to Northmen April 13

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

The Charlevoix Rayders varsity girls' softball team's first outing turned out to be less momentous than first-year coach Tony Zimmerman had hoped.

Charlevoix yielded both games of their season opener to Petoskey on Thursday, April 13 by scores of 22-0 and 9-3. The match-up, originally scheduled for Wednesday, was postponed due to rain.

"The girls looked pretty nervous. You could tell there were a lot of jitters," Zimmerman said.

By the second game, the Rayders began to recover from their initial trepidation as the fielding became more fluid and pitching started to find the plate.

The Northmen had scored nine runs by the second inning of game two, but Charlevoix managed to hold them back and answer with three runs of their own.

Amber Hoffman, Leah Kelly and Lauren Mielke each scored once over the course of the evening for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix pitcher Desi Faust, who initially gave up nine runs, began to find her footing on the mound and contributed heavily to keeping Petoskey from scoring again.

Zimmerman said he believes the team would have been able to continue to chip away at Petoskey's lead if the game had not been called in the fifth inning due to darkness.

"You could see the nervousness starting to go away and they started to play better as a whole," Zimmerman said. Zimmerman sees hope in the lady Rayders' ability to overcome their first game jitters and continue to develop and become a stronger team.

"Playing East Jordan will give the girls a good idea of what they can do now that the stage fright is out of the way," he said. "Both teams match up well and I believe it will give us a good basis to build on."

The lady Rayders play next at 4 p.m. on Thursday, April 20 at Roscommon.

Registration to take place May 3 for summer softball

City of Charlevoix recreation league slow-pitch softball registration will take place at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, May 3 in the basement of Charlevoix City Hall, located at 210 State Street.

During the season, the men's league players will compete on Tuesday and Thursday nights. The first game is Tuesday, May 30.

Women's league players will play Monday and Wednesday nights starting June 5 and ending in mid-August.

People ages 13 and up are eligible to play in the men's and women's slow-pitch softball league.

Registration for girls' fast-pitch travel softball is underway in area schools or through the recreation department. Divisions include girls ages 18 and under, 14 and under, 12 and under and 10 and under. The deadline to register is April 28.

T-ball registration for children ages 5, 6, and 7 will take place at a date to be announced in late May.

For more information call Ike Boss at the recreation department (231) 547-3253.

- Fifth, doubles: Taylor Witthoeft and Weston Bryan beat Leland, 6-1, 6-2.

There were also exhibition matches which did not count toward the team's final score. Those results were:

Last year the tennis team won the Lake Michigan Conference, the regional competition and two invitational. Of that award winning group, eight seniors graduated in 2005.

"We have a young, somewhat inexperienced team. That's what showed at the last meet (April 13). As the season goes on the players will get more experience," Lundteigen said.

The tennis team, which includes 50 players this year, faced Grayling on Monday, April 17, and Traverse City Christian on Tuesday, April 18. Both meets were in Charlevoix. Results were not available by press time. Later this week, on Thursday, April 20, the team will face Elk Rapids.

Women's Resource Center sponsors 'How To Talk So Kids Will Listen' workshop

A parenting workshop, based on the best-selling book, "How To Talk So Kids Will Listen & Listen So Kids Will Talk," will take place from 6:30 to 8 p.m. on Wednesday, April 26, at the Women's Resource Center in Petoskey.

Parents will learn skills, such as how to set limits while maintaining goodwill, coping with their child's negative feelings, expressing anger without hurting, engaging their child's willing cooperation and helping their child become caring and responsible. Parents will also learn how to resolve conflicts peacefully and create a family atmosphere of love and respect.

The six-session workshop is sponsored by the Women's Resource Center and will be led by Joann F. Townsend. The cost of the workshop is $80 per person or $85 a couple, materials are included.

The sessions are from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 26, May 3, 10, 17, 24 and 31. Certificates of completion will be awarded at the conclusion of the program. Advance registration and payment is requested. Space is limited.

"Parents are on the firing line seven days a week. Yet few of them have had any training for this demanding job. No wonder even the most well-intentioned parents often find themselves feeling frustrated, bewildered, guilty or alone," state Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish, award-winning authors of the book and program.

Hundreds of thousands of parents and professionals have benefited from the How To Talk So Kids Will Listen workshop. In studies in Wisconsin, Colorado and North Dakota, researchers found that attending parents developed skills that significantly and lastingly improved the quality of their family life. They also found these new-found skills worked equally well with children of all ages.

To register, call the Women's Resource Center at (231) 347-0067.

School budget dominates election

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Candidates for the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education opined during the April 20 forum at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Who: Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education
What it is: Election for two open seats.

When: Tuesday, May 5, 7 a.m.-8 p.m.

Where: Respective township halls and city hall

Questions and answers focused on both the lack of and need for funding in the school system.

When asked what budget cuts the candidates would recommend, candidate Jeff

Tom Barnes

Stevens said he doesn't want to make any cuts.

Dennis Halverson

Candidate, John McLean Jr., said he too feels the core curriculum is of utmost importance.

"I think that transportation is something that maybe we need to look at. But, here again, I would definitely not say that would be something I would want to see happen because I would have to see a comparison between the two to see if there was an advantage to keeping or cutting it," he said.

Dennis Halverson, current board president running for reelection, said, "We should circle the wagons around the core curriculum. I think it's safe to say that leaves everything else vulnerable."

"To balance our budget going into 2006-2007, we've got to cut out $1 million from next year's budget," he said. "Next year, we are looking at cutting $2 million out of the budget."

Local boy creates electric sofa scooter

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Over there, it's a bird, it's a plane, it's a...motorized couch?

Connor Boss, a 13-year-old Charlevoix Middle School student and son of Jim and Linda Boss, spent three months converting an electric scooter and a full-size couch into a motorized sofa for two.

"I saw one on TV on the Discovery Channel and my cousin had an old electric scooter that he gave me. So, I decided I was going to try and make it into a motorized couch," he said.

Linda said Connor is constantly building things.

"He never builds what he's supposed to build," she said. "When he was 6 he turned his motorized motorcycle into a car with a door that worked."

Connor said he was discouraged a few times while constructing the contraption, but he never gave up.

"I already put money into it and I didn't want to give up on it," he said.

The couch has a breaking system similar to the one on a bicycle. It is steered with a stick and Connor installed casters on the corners to prevent rollovers.

"I took this couch — my great-grandmother's couch — and cut it in half and used the two ends," he said. "Then I made a wood frame. It has a controller that takes a pulse from the throttle and controls the motor. But I fried a couple computers for it so I had to buy new ones."

The only work Connor didn't do on the couch, which can go 18 miles per hour for up to 30 minutes, was cut the lumber for the frame.

"He's not allowed to use the saw yet," said Jim.

Linda said the neighbors and passersby always stop in to ask about the invention when they see Connor zipping around in it.

"He has to plug his couch in at night," she added.

Linda said Connor's younger brother, Ryder, loves going for rides on the couch.

And, Connor doesn't mind all the staring and pointing when he's seen riding around town.

"Did my eyes deceive me or did I see a couch going down the road?" Jim said.

Since he has always been interested in building his own gadgets, Connor said he will likely build another project of this magnitude in the future.

Connor hopes to ride his invention in the upcoming Charlevoix Venetian Festival street parade and he wants to take it to a flea market in Midland that's known for interesting modes of home-made transportation.

Four school board candidates run for two seats

said he would draw the line at the core curriculum.

"When push comes to shove, we have to look at everything else, which includes transportation, which includes the lunch program," he said.

Candidate Tom Barnes said, in this case, balancing the budget means eating up the fund surplus.

"We're really bleeding at the pace of $1.7 million a year right now," he said.

"Somewhere in the neighborhood of 70 percent of the school's budget is in salaries and benefits for employees of the school, and there's no way that we're going to solve the current crisis without making some cuts. The things that need to be preserved are core academics."

When asked if school board retreats should be underwritten by the schools, all of the candidates agreed the school board shouldn't take extravagant trips.

The general consensus was that, occasionally getting out of the work environment is also important.

As a current member of the board, Halverson said he feels they have been prudent about their choices of retreat locales.

"We're not quite to cutting coupons for pizzas out of newspapers, but I think we're headed in that direction," Halverson said. "Because of the things we've cut, we're probably not going to some of the seminars we should be going to."

Barnes said the new library should offer facilities sufficient for retreats in the future.

One of the questions from the audience asked how, if elected, the candidates would work with the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce to entice families to Charlevoix.

McClean said he had members of the Coast Guard who were reluctant to be transferred to Charlevoix because they couldn't afford to live here.

"We need to have affordable housing for these people to live in, especially for young families with children," he said. "And we need to have jobs for them."

"So how do you promote that? Just by doing some solid PR and getting someone to champion the cause to bring them in," he added.

Stevens said he would love to see more families come to Charlevoix.

"As I said before, our students are our customers and we've got to draw them here with affordable housing and jobs," he said. "I just think if we could get them (chamber) to work as hard for the schools as they do for other programs to get people here, we'd be in great shape."

Stevens suggested possibly allowing the building trades students to build many homes to sell as a way of increasing affordable housing.

Barnes said the board needs to communicate to the chamber that it benefits Charlevoix to be business friendly.

"If businesses are leaving and going overseas, then we're losing jobs and students, and I don't think there's going to be a whole heck of a lot we can do about that," he said.

Barnes said when families with prospective students come to town, the key is to show them why Charlevoix is the best possible place to raise a family.

"Kill them with kindness and invite them in for tours of the schools," he said.

Based on Halverson's research, the more than 60 students who were lost from Charlevoix schools last year didn't go to a local competitor.

"The best we can determine, they went to Georgia, they went to Arizona, they went to Florida, and they're not coming back," he said. "There was an article in today's paper — since 1999, one out of every three industrial jobs in the State of Michigan has left. To be honest with you, I'm not sure what the Charlevoix Board of Education can do about that. Does that mean that we throw in the towel? No, it does not."

Halverson said he believes Charlevoix is ready to accept new families and businesses.

"The issue isn't that we need affordable housing. It's, what are they going to do when they get here?" he said. "The hard reality is, we're just trying to figure out how to pay for food services."

The candidates were asked if they were comfortable eliminating some or all of the arts from the current curriculum.

All candidates gave their reasons why they feel the arts are important and responded emphatically that comfort has nothing to do with what may occur over the next few years regarding budget cuts.

The candidates were asked if the opportunity for public participation in school board meetings should be expanded.

Barnes wondered about the infrequency of comments by the audience at board meetings. Barnes said he would like to see the board meeting agendas posted further in advance.

The public comment section of board meetings needs to be at the end of the meeting, McClean said. "When I'm there, my questions are raised after they (board) bring up new business."

Halverson said he thinks one of the issues is that the meeting room for the board, the high school library, isn't the best possible meeting place.

But, he said, "At least from my perception, I think there is adequate opportunity for citizens to communicate their concerns. A lot of people won't come to a board meeting, so I'm constantly getting communications at home, over the phone or through the mail, and I encourage that."

Stevens agreed the agenda should be posted further in advance.

"Perhaps it should be posted in the newspaper," he said. "I also think that there should be more time for public speaking."

All candidates agreed it would be a good idea to allow students to help out with grounds and building maintenance for credits and that privatization of services is something that they would all have to study before making a decision.

The candidates also agreed block scheduling is important when used correctly, and the high school auditorium needs to be used more often.

Two of these four candidates will be elected to the board on election day, Tuesday, May 5. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. May 5 at the township hall in the township wherein you reside or at Charlevoix City Hall for city residents.

Great work local Coast Guard cutter lobbyists

Congratulations to all those who worked tirelessly to keep a U.S. Coast Guard cutter in town.

Plans to decommission the local cutter Acacia next month were recently trumped by the legislature when congressman Bart Stupak announced Coast Guard approval of a bill that will either extend the Acacia's stay here or replace it with another cutter.

While the bill still has to be signed into law, getting Coast Guard approval was the real hill to climb.

The local push was a grassroots effort with members of local businesses, organizations and political bodies coming together to work toward a common goal.

At times we were pessimistic about the chances of the Acacia sticking around, much less being replaced. This success story just goes to show that persistence pays off.

Whether or not the city needed to shell out $36,000 to Washington, D.C., lobbyist Bob Davis to get the job done remains to be seen.

While Davis claims his hands were involved in crafting the bill and getting Coast Guard support, Stupak has said his interaction with Davis has been limited to a quick elbow rub at a D.C. gym.

EDITORIAL

Due to the efforts of many local citizens, plans to decommission the Acacia without a replacement vessel have changed.

Politics is politics, everyone wants a slice of the credit pie. But next time we need to get something done in Charlevoix, let's keep our wallet in our pants and let the local, motivated team of heavyweights go to bat. They sure do a heck of a job getting things done.

Service club members work together to make a difference

Gayle Gennett

'A look at life'

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club and the programs they sponsor make a difference in lives of children and adults on a daily basis.

Twenty-one years ago when I first started working at Charlevoix Elementary School I was approached by former principal Vane Smith, who in his tactful fashion said, "You need to join a service club and I know which one you should join." In the old days I was not quick to question my boss, so I replied, "Yes, I should," and the rest is history.

The opportunities to help others through Kiwanis were many but what impressed me most was the Kiwanis Club philosophy of sponsoring other clubs with the theme of helping others. What a great way to teach young and energetic individuals that community service is a good thing. With the help of Merle Vandenberg, a Builders Club at Charlevoix Middle School and a Key Club at Charlevoix High School were chartered. He also helped me to establish the first elementary school K-Kids club in the State of Michigan.

Momentum was building, and Merle said, "Let's involve individuals from the Bergmann Center." And thus the Aktion Club evolved. Kiwanis is the only service group that provides community service opportunities for men and women with disabilities. Recently, a luncheon took place recognizing members of the Aktion Club for their hard work. Ed Buday, the current Aktion Club administrator for the State of Michigan, was on hand to present an award to Paul Joliffe who took first place in the Kiwanis International Aktion Club poster contest.

test. The Charlevoix Aktion Club also took first place in the scrapbook design division.

This hard working group of men and woman keep very busy under the guidance of Kim Brock, Ken Brill, and the Bergmann Center staff. This club has received recognition for their numerous hours of volunteering. They keep residents of Boulder Park hopping by playing Trivial Pursuit and host a continuous blanket drive which warms the hearts and bodies of many area residents and comforted Katrina victims as well. They've assisted with delivering commodities to seniors finding it difficult to get out on their own, helped the Moms and Tots program in Ellsworth and jumped in to do the recycling at Charlevoix Public Library.

Aktion Club past president, Paul Joliffe, is a spark plug putting words into action as witnessed by his idea and involvement in the chili cook-off. After receiving his award for his poster design, when I asked what he likes best about his involvement, Paul said, "I enjoy being part of the Kiwanis family as I have made so many friends."

Kiwanis Club members Suzanne Muma, Buday, Brock, Brill, John Lachman and Bill Lovett are often found providing their words of encouragement which puts an extra drive into the program that helps so many in our community.

Muma, the Bergmann Center administrator, is pleased with Kiwanis' involvement. "It's been an awesome thing for the Bergmann Center. It helps us live up to our mission statement of providing service that enables mentally and physically challenged individuals to become active and involved members of the community."

Another club running on the heels of this success is the Charlevoix Middle Legion seeks assistance

The Charlevoix American Legion is asking for help from the greater Charlevoix community in several on-going efforts. Please call (231) 547-2181 with any available information.

We are actively seeking names of military personnel deployed to the Iraq/Afghanistan Theater of Operations. The American Legion will incorporate those names into a living memorial at the Legion Hall.

In our on-going effort to erect a memorial to all those who have died in active service from the Charlevoix area we are soliciting information concerning any known casualties.

We are particularly interested in anyone having information about the following individuals: Christie C. Empey, who died in World War I; Winifred P. Vail, Third Armored Division, who died in 1947 at age 17 in Fort Knox, Ky.; and William Naquam, Thirty-second Infantry, who died on July 26, 1932.

We are looking for marching units for the Charlevoix Memorial Day Parade on May 29. Any group with a marching unit-band, drill team, honor guard, etc. is welcome to contact us for further information. Mounted units and military vehicles are welcome.

The Legion is looking for the oldest and youngest veterans from the Charlevoix area.

Please submit names to the above number as soon as possible. We will host the winners during the parade. Those unable to attend will receive a very honorable mention.

Vote for McLean

We are writing this letter in support of John McLean for the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education. John works behind the scenes in our school system, and very few people in the community are aware of the positive impact that he has on the community, our teaching staff, and most of all, the students. John is a person who has made a difference on a daily basis for the past several years. He is a consistent classroom volunteer and mentor at the elementary school, and he has served on many committees, such as: The Charlevoix Middle School Parent Advisory Committee, the K-4 Curriculum Design Team and the Federal Title One Committee. In addition, he helps out yearly with the seniors' exiting Mock Senior Interviews at Charlevoix High School.

We feel because of John's leadership role as the Officer in Charge at the Charlevoix Coast Guard Station, he has had to make many critical decisions. His decision-making ability, his calm and caring manner, and his practical experience throughout our schools will enhance the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education.

Thank Girl Scout leaders

We are writing this letter to extend a "Thank you," to all the Girl Scout leaders and volunteers in Charlevoix. Each year on April 22 we celebrate Girl Scout Leader Appreciation Day. Many individuals in Charlevoix, who are all volunteers, work so hard to support Girl Scouts.

These wonderful volunteers often do not receive the praise and thanks that they deserve from their girls or parents.

We wanted to personally thank all the volunteers in the Charlevoix service area for their commitment and continuing to provide the Girl Scout program in our community serving as advisors or leaders.

If your daughter is in a Girl Scout troop, please do something nice for her troop leader to thank her for her hard work, dedication, and many hours that she puts in to ensure that her troop and community get the most out of Girl Scouting.

Girls can join Girl Scouts as an individual or be part of a troop. They can take part in a variety of year-round activities that empower girls to reach their full potential, relate to others through increased leadership skills, develop values that guide decision making, and give back to their community through volunteering.

We are always looking for new leaders and volunteers who would like to support the girls in Charlevoix. We have volunteer positions for any adult whether you can spare an hour or two or more. Additionally, if your daughter would like to join this exciting organization, please contact us at (231) 547-0739.

School Builders Club. There are two clubs within the middle school supported by the guidance of Larry Roth, Karrie Gaffney and Christie Meir. It only takes a walk around the school to see results of these middle school age, community-minded students. Near the science and art rooms you can view the beautiful butterfly garden that was designed with the help of the Charlevoix Garden Club.

Bells were busy ringing in December as the Builders Club, Aktion Club and Kiwanis members joined together and netted over $2,000. In this era of childhood obesity, students in the Builders Club promoted exercise and healthy eating habits raising awareness for the American Heart Association. Their fund-raiser grossed $500 for research and heart healthy educational booklets.

Kudos to the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club which continues its efforts to support area youth by reading to children in the Head Start programs, provide scholarships to Camp Daggett, offering science/math scholarships to our graduating seniors, and tackling worldwide issues affecting children like iodine deficiency disorders. And more importantly for teaching our young and old alike that it's important to help our fellow man and give the clear message that it takes a community to help many people from different walks of life. Recently, the club completed their annual rose sale with the help of Charlevoix Floral's Lori Mitchell. The sale brought in another $2,000 to help others in need.

There's never a quiet moment in this organization. The best sap has been collected and cooked to a delicate balance to create a syrup that is sold in local stores and in a booth that's ready for upcoming summer festivals. And soon Kiwanians will serve their signature dish of kielbasa and kraut to hungry festival goers.

So today I am grateful for the Vane Smiths and Merle Vandenbergers that don't get tired of asking others to get involved. I am happy to be part of a club where all of us are working together to make a difference.

Gov. Granholm passes curriculum mandate

Sturock: Mandate shouldn't result in drastic changes in Charlevoix

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Gov. Jennifer Granholm's new, more stringent graduation requirements are set to begin in high schools all over the state.

Superintendent of Charlevoix Schools, Dr. John Sturock, said the new curriculum requirements shouldn't mean any drastic changes in Charlevoix schools.

"I think about 70 percent of our kids are involved in a curriculum like that right now," he said. "It's just a matter of figuring out how the technical trades kids (credits) can apply."

He added, "This is pretty new, so we have to figure out how we can apply this to our particular situation, but there are some options in there."

Students in seventh-grade, the class of 2011, and under will be eligible for the new curriculum requirements once they reach high school.

"If Michigan is to compete in a global economy, we must have the best educated workforce in the nation to attract jobs and investment to our state," Granholm stated in an April 20, press release. "This new, challenging curriculum will help ensure that every student in Michigan is prepared for college or technical training when they finish high school."

In order to graduate from high school, Charlevoix students must take four credits of English and math, three credits of social studies and science and one credit of physical education and health, plus one credit of visual, performing or applied arts in addition to an online course.

The foreign language requirement, to begin in 2016, will be two credits.

Sturock said he isn't sure what the extra cost of the new curriculum requirements could be, if any.

"We're just trying to get into this year's budget. We'll worry about next year, next year," he said. "It's hard to say how this will affect the budget, it's still two years out yet."

Granholm further stated the new curriculum is merely the first step in the process of, "Ensuring that students graduate from high school with the tools they need to succeed in college or technical training. Now we must ensure that financial barriers don't prevent students from getting the education they need. We can do that by giving every student a $4,000 new Merit Award Scholarship."

Granholm previously said all children in Michigan must continue their education after high school, regardless of what field of expertise they enter.

She hopes to award the MERIT scholarships to every high school student in Michigan who completes two years of college, beginning with the class of 2007.

Sturock said, with all the trouble the leaders in Lansing have just coming up with the $225 per pupil increase, he doesn't see how Granholm is going to fund a $4,000 per child scholarship.

But, he said, "In the end, I think our kids need to be educated to compete in the global market. There are some kids who go into the service industry and do very, very well, but many kids need the extra education."

Sturock said he's always dubiious when it comes to the blanket fixes proposed by legislators.

"At one time you could graduate from high school and go to a manufacturing firm and support and raise a family, but those jobs are no longer available to us," he said. "You need more education, so I think it's probably a good idea, but I hate to see stuff mandated."

He added, "But in the eyes of the government, they think they have to do something to move an issue forward."

Prosecutor's office appeals Judge Pajtas' decision

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

The Charlevoix County Prosecutor's Office has filed an appeal of Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas' order to quash four, first degree criminal sexual conduct charges from the long list of felonies Charlevoix resident, Lloyd Joseph Waltonen, is facing.

On Thursday, April 13, Charlevoix County Chief Assistant Prosecutor, Shaynee Fanara filed an objection to the order to quash and a motion to reconsider. On April 19, Judge Pajtas issued an order denying Fanara's motion for reconsideration, upholding his decision.

"The issue presented to the court in the defendant's motion to quash is whether or not criminal sexual conduct can be charged where a person engages in consensual sexual intercourse in exchange for illegal drugs," states Pajtas in his order denying reconsideration.

"The answer is obvious. There can be no criminal sexual conduct where the sexual conduct is between two consenting adults."

However, Fanara argues the victim was coerced.

"He got her addicted to oxycontin and when she was suffering from withdrawals offered her the pills for sex. I feel that's coercion," she said.

Judge Pajtas based his opinion in part on the victim's testimony.

"This court has reviewed the entire preliminary examination transcript. The complainant's testimony was unequivocal that while she didn't desire to have sex, she voluntarily did so to obtain illegal drugs. While there may be probable cause to charge the supplier of the drugs with prostitution, he or she does not commit CSC first degree," he states in the order denying reconsideration.

In making his decision to quash the charges, Judge Pajtas heard from defense attorney Kerry Zahner, who argued in support of throwing out or reducing the charges her client faced.

Zahner claims coercion was not part of the sex acts in question.

Waltonen is accused of providing oxycontin and methadone to at least one woman in exchange for sex.

According to summaries of testimony by two women in an affidavit of probable cause given by to

Lloyd Waltonen

Charlevoix County Sheriff's detective corporal Chuck Vondra, Waltonen forced oral and vaginal sex in exchange for oxycontin and methadone.

A search warrant executed at Waltonen's residence on Feb. 9 resulted in seizure of pill bottles labeled Lloyd Waltonen containing methadone, oxycodone, amphetamines and Adderall XR pills.

Information gathered in the investigation that has taken place thus far, alleges incidents of exchange of pills for sexual favors dating back to 2001 and extend through 2005.

Waltonen, 42, was arrested by Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater on Thursday, Feb. 22 and was arraigned that day in Charlevoix County District Court.

He now faces charges including four felony counts of delivery of drugs, each of which carry possible 20-year prison terms, four felony counts of maintaining a drug house, each of which carry two-year possible prison sentences, four misdemeanor counts of prostitution and one felony count of eavesdropping with a video, which carries a possible five-year prison sentence.

Waltonen was charged as a habitual offender for two prior felony convictions from the early 1990s when he was convicted of assault with a dangerous weapon and a felony firearm violation. This means if found guilty of these charges he could face twice the maximum sentence prescribed.

He is being held in Charlevoix County Jail with bond set at $50,000.

Brian Neill, assistant attorney general for the state's appellate division, will be handling the appeal on behalf of the local prosecutor's office.

"We think this case represents a kind of behavior that is so reprehensible that it deserves a second look," said Nate Bailey, spokesman for the office of Michigan attorney general Mike Cox.

A date when the appeal will be heard has not been set. Fanara said the appeal will likely be heard on an expedited basis as Waltonen is set to stand trial in June. She is hoping the appellate court will overturn Pajtas' decision, forcing Waltonen to face the criminal sexual conduct charges.

Local health department urges parents to immunize children

The Northwest Michigan community Health Agency urges parents to vaccinate their children on time.

According to information provided by the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency, the local health department, over 20 percent of children are not fully immunized against vaccine-preventable diseases.

Every day, 11,000 babies are born in the United States who will need to be immunized against 13 diseases before age two. Despite recent gains in infant immunization coverage, more than 20 percent of the nation's two-year-olds do not get fully immunized against infectious diseases to which they are especially vulnerable.

"Children can become seriously ill from vaccine-preventable diseases, such as measles, whooping cough, and bacterial meningitis before they are two years old if they are not fully immunized," said Patricia Fratlick, Director of Family Health Services for the Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency. "National Infant Immunization Week, April 22 to April 29, is a good reminder to review your child's immunization record and call your child's health care provider or the health department to schedule needed immunizations."

Anne Schuchat, MD, Director of the National Immunization Program at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, said, "The suffering or death of even one child from a vaccine-preventable disease is an unnecessary human tragedy," she said. "Let us renew our efforts to ensure that no child will have to needlessly suffer from a vaccine preventable disease."

To schedule an immunization appointment for your child, call his/her health care provider or the health department at (800) 432-4121.

Lockman embezzlement trial postponed

By BENJAMIN COHS
Staff writer

The trial of Karla Sue Lockman has once again been postponed. This time until 9 a.m., Aug. 15.

The Consent Order Adjourning Trial, filed on Thursday, April 20 with the Charlevoix County Clerk's Office, is just another step in the judicial process, according

Land asks boaters to protect waterways

Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land recently announced that boaters and others can take a stand in protecting Michigan waterways by reporting suspicious activity as part of the America's Waterway Watch campaign.

Complete information is included with the 250,000 watercraft registration renewal notices mailed in early March.

The America's Waterway Watch campaign encourages residents to become the "eyes and ears" of the country by watching over coasts, bridges, tunnels, ports, ships and other water-related resources. Championing the campaign to promote greater safety throughout the Great Lakes are Capt. Patrick Brennan, commander, U.S. Coast Guard Sector Detroit; Capt. Scott Laroche, commander, Coast Guard Sector Lake Michigan; and Capt. Quain Kahler, commander, Coast Guard Sector Sault Ste. Marie.

The Coast Guard and U.S. Department of Homeland Security sponsor America's Waterway Watch nationwide. In Michigan, cooperative outreach is provided by the Department of State, Coast Guard Auxiliary and U.S. Power Squadrons.

- Residents are asked to report:
- Unattended vessels or vehicles in unusual locations such as near bridges, tunnels or overpasses, or by commercial areas or services like ports, fuel docks, cruise ships or marinas.
 - Lights flashing between boats.
 - Unusual night operations.
 - People near critical facilities who do not fit the surrounding environment such as individuals wearing improper attire.

Residents are cautioned to not approach or challenge anyone acting suspiciously. They should call the National Response Center at (800) 424-8802 or (877) 24WATCH. For immediate dangers to life or property, calls should be made to 911.

The brochure and other related information is also available in Secretary of State branch offices.

to Charlevoix County Prosecutor, John Jarema.

"It's just a postponement so all the experts can get hired, review all the data and be able to form an opinion at trial," he said. "Because of the insanity issue, this is not out of the ordinary."

Jarema said the trial has been extended to seven days to allow more time for the examination of witnesses and experts and to hear their testimony.

According to the order, "On Dec. 7, 2005, subsequent to a Criminal Responsibility examination of defendant (Lockman), the Center for Forensic Psychiatry issued its written opinion finding defendant met the statutory criteria for mental illness and insanity."

The order states that Jarema sought an independent evaluation of Lockman to which he hasn't received an answer.

"Defendant recently retained potential experts in the field of forensic psychology, psychiatry and toxicology for the purpose of review records, conduct evaluation and/or otherwise to render an opinion and/or offer expert testimony regarding the issue of Criminal Responsibility/Insanity and issues relating thereto. That defendant's retention of potential experts was delayed due to lack of financial resources. As a result, those potential experts have not had sufficient time to conduct and/or complete their analysis."

Another reason for the postponement is that Lockman's attorney has a scheduling conflict with the previous trial date.

Lockman is charged with two counts of embezzlement by an agent or trustee of $20,000 or more while working as a closing agent for Northern Preferred Title Company LLC. If found guilty, this crime is punishable by up to 10 years in prison and/or a $15,000 fine or three times the amount embezzled.

Two civil suits, which were filed in United States District Court Western District of Michigan in 2005, allege Lockman may have embezzled as much as $975,023.64.

Northern Preferred has since severely curtailed activities and laid off 14 employees.

Before the most recent postponement, Lockman's trial was set for January 2006 and then changed to June 5 following a forensic evaluation which questioned the status of her mental health.

According to the report authored by Lockman's examining physician, Dr. Jeffrey Wendt of the Center for Forensic Psychiatry, Lockman meets the statutory criteria for legal insanity.

Lockman's attorney, Fred Gibson said a major issue in this case is Paxil, a prescription drug used to treat depression, and anxiety disorders. Lockman was prescribed Paxil in August 2004. When her prescription was renewed by a physician in November 2004, Gibson said a mistake by a pharmacist resulted in a doubling of the dose.

Gibson maintains Lockman took the double dose of Paxil while the alleged embezzlement occurred.

Lockman remains free on bond while awaiting trial.

Work from St. Mary School art show to be auctioned

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The St. Mary School special persons day was held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Friday, April 21 with their first art show beginning that day and lasting through this Friday, April 28.

Approximately 225 people, including students, attended Friday's event.

Local resident, Anne Golski, was in the halls looking for just the right piece of art to be framed for the St. Mary Northern Light Auction coming up later this year in September.

"I have it narrowed down to three," Golski said.

When Golski, who has attended special persons day in the past, was asked to judge the art, she gladly accepted.

Members of the Knights of Columbus and the Grey Gables helped prepare a pancake breakfast for those in attendance.

Mediums used for the art show include colored pencil, wire and plaster wrap, collage, magic model, marker, oil pastel and watercolor.

According to Mary Shepard, school secretary, the annual special persons day evolved from grandparents day.

"That's how it started, but all students can't have a grandparent attend," she said. "This is a combination of springtime celebration of a grandparent or special person in the children's lives."

Special persons were invited to view the art show, visit classrooms and attend the children's liturgy before dining.

Shepard said anyone interested in viewing the art can, "stop by office to let us know they're here and they can look around."

The school is located at 1005 Bridge Street in Charlevoix.

For more information call (231) 547-9441.

Bergmann Center gears up for Starlight event

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Bergmann Center of Charlevoix will host the 4th Annual Starlight Dinner and Live Auction beginning at noon on Sunday, May 7 at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Catering is provided by Grey Gables with entertainment by Chris Dominaie. The auctioneer will be Sam Kose. Tickets are $25 per person. For more information call (231) 547-2979.

According to Kim Brock, community relations coordinator for the Bergmann Center, this event is designed to, "Help support the Bergmann Center while also giving these guys a chance to fulfill their dreams. We go around annually and ask them what they want to do and we try to fulfill their dreams."

Brock said participants of the Bergmann Center have enjoyed outings to the Great Wolf Lodge, Greenfield Village, a Detroit Tigers Game, Michigan's Adventure theme park and more.

Fifty-one individuals with developmental disabilities work at the Bergmann Center on projects for Honeywell of Boyne City, LexaLife International in Charlevoix and other businesses.

"This is a work activity center," said administrative assistant, Aimee Vanderark. "They come here and work just like if they worked for you. We actually bring work into the shop for them to do."

When asked what the best part of working for the Bergmann Center is, most of the respondents answered, "money."

"They get a paycheck," Brock said. "They get a chance to work and earn their own money."

This fund-raiser will allow the center to run on budget and continue to provide a work environment for people who might not otherwise get the chance to get out and work.

Each year, the event continues to grow in both the number of attendees and amount of funds raised.

"We started out at Guseppes,

Brenda, Jamie, Sylvia and Patty, all clients of the Bergmann Center of Charlevoix, show off some of the donated and handcrafted items which will be up for auction at the Bergmann Center's annual dinner dance to take place at noon on Sunday, May 7 at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

which was a wonderful place, but now there is not enough room," Brock said. "We hope to continue to grow so we can have the chance to work with our clients and the community."

Vanderark said, "It makes the community more aware of who you are and what you are doing. In return, we receive their support and we're extremely appreciative of them for that. Without the community's support, we couldn't do this."

Brock said this event is for anyone who enjoys a good meal, fun entertainment and the satisfaction of supporting a good cause.

"Around 100 people attended last year. This year we hope to have more," Brock said.

Attire is dress casual to semi-formal.

Vanderark said the people who help support the Bergmann Center will never know how much good they are doing.

"There is always that fear of people with disabilities, but when people get to know us they love our guys," she said.

Vanderark said this gives the center participants the chance to give back to the community.

When not working for local companies, the Bergmann Center's clients volunteer with Meals on Wheels for senior citizens and recycling efforts.

While a few tickets may be available until the day of the event, Brock said it would be a good idea to purchase them by Friday, April 28 to ensure availability.

The Bergmann Center's duties began in 1954, though under a different name, when a handful of local parents with retarded children formed a daycare program. Later, Robert and Lillian Bergman opened their home to a few children with developmental disabilities and eventually, in 1973, the Bergmann Center was so named and has served many people in the ensuing decades.

Health department warns of high lead content in some children's jewelry

State officials recently drew attention to new guidance from the Consumer Product Safety Commission regarding children's jewelry that may contain high concentrations of lead and urged parents to use caution when purchasing items.

"We would urge parents to be aware of the lead poisoning risks associated with inexpensive jewelry by visiting the Consumer Product Safety Commission's Web site," said Janet Olszewski, Director of the Michigan Department of Community Health. "Additionally, children should never place metal items in their mouths."

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has announced a new policy addressing lead in children's metal jewelry after two incidences around the country led to recalls of products. Details can be found at www.cpsc.gov or by calling the consumer hotline at (800) 638-2772.

In February 2006, a Minnesota child died from brain swelling due to lead poisoning after having eaten a heart-shaped charm from a bracelet included in a box of Reebok shoes. Reebok and the Consumer Product Safety Commission have begun a voluntary recall of the bracelets that have been distributed all over the U.S. in the packaging with Reebok shoes.

In 2004, a child in Oregon became severely lead-poisoned after consuming a necklace with a high lead content. At that time, the Consumer Product Safety Commission recalled 150 million pieces of metallic toy jewelry sold all over the country in vending machines and other outlets.

While deteriorating lead-based paint in homes built before 1978 remains the most common U.S. source of lead exposure, ingesting lead-containing items is becoming more common as a source of life-threatening lead poisoning.

Ownership change at Judy's Restaurant

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

New ownership has brought changes to Judy's Restaurant in downtown Charlevoix.

On Feb. 8, Antrim County residents Jim and Sonia Cetnarowski bought the established restaurant, located at 117 Antrim Street, from Ed and Judy Johnson.

"My goal has always been to have a small, family-oriented restaurant, catering to the working people," Sonia said.

Since purchasing the business, Sonia, who manages the restaurant full-time, has worked to make that goal a reality. Under the creative culinary direction of chef Jim Ploe, the Cetnarowskis have expanded their hours of operation and their menu offerings.

"We have a creative, excited chef. He's helped us evolve a lot of dishes," Jim said.

The restaurant is now open from 5 a.m. to 2 p.m. seven days a week. During the summer months, the Cetnarowskis plan to stay open later. New menu items include the popular chicken salad wrap, homemade soups like the crowd-pleasing loaded baked potato, burgers and a ham serum.

"It's growing every day. Our business, for this being the slow time, has doubled since we bought the place," said Sonia, who has worked in the restaurant business for 22 years. "I believe we have the best core of regular customers that any owner would want to have."

This summer, the couple plan to hire part-time help including an additional server and a prep cook.

Future changes may include a name change. But for now, the two plan to maintain the long legacy of Judy's Restaurant.

The Cetnarowski family, which now includes their two daughters, Ashley, 6, and Amber, 3, moved to northern Michigan from Sterling Heights in 2000.

Since then, Jim has continued to work full-time with AT & T Communications while Sonia has worked in restaurants including Murray's Bar and Grill in East Jordan and Omaha's Breakfast Club in Charlevoix.

For more information, call (231) 237-9560.

SPORTS

Soccer maintains undefeated standing with wins last week

The varsity girls' Rayder soccer team continues to dominate the playing field, tallying three more wins.

On April 17, the Rayders shut the Rams of Harbor Springs out with a final score of 2-0.

The Ramsey sisters again provided the Rayders' scoring punch. On a windy night where field position was key, the Rayders held off the Rams going with the wind in the first half. First half play was even as the Rayders had trouble controlling the ball into the wind and the Rams went hard to the ball, winning most of the 50/50 encounters.

Going with the breeze in the second half, the Rayders began to control play and came close on several scoring opportunities. Finally, with about 25 minutes to play, senior Madison Ramsey worked the ball across the top of the penalty area and shook the defender for an unassisted shot putting the Rayders on the board. Charlevoix continued to apply pressure throughout the match.

With two minutes remaining, senior tri-captain Stevie Murray sent a corner kick across the goal mouth and sophomore Ariel Ramsey headed it home. Charlevoix managed 19 shots on goal for the night.

Defensively for the Rayders, senior goalkeeper and tri-captain Laura Nitchman earned her second shutout of the season turning away 10 Harbor shots. Murray played an exceptional game, especially in the first half going into the wind, controlling the play from her sweeper spot. Sophomore Emily Foster earned the Rayder's Player of the Game award for her untiring efforts at outside back. Freshman midfielder KC McCary played strong defensively and tracked down a Harbor breakaway scoring opportunity. Sophomore midfielder Becca Madison played a strong game while being marked by as many as three Harbor defenders at times.

"As always, Harbor played a tough physical game. They don't back down from any balls. This was a good win for Charlevoix and taught many of our freshmen what it will take to be successful in the Lake Michigan Conference this year," head coach Carol Madison said.

Charlevoix, traveled to Grayling on Thursday, April 20 where they chalked another shutout, winning 10-0 and improving their record to 3-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Goals were scored by Madison Ramsey (2), Nitchman, Brecklin Golovich-Keie, Lori Zimmerman (2), Molly Branicki, Becca Madison (2) and Ariel Ramsey. Assists came from Madison Ramsey, Zita Anderson, Golovich-Keie, Zimmerman, Danni Bergmann, Gena Gaudio, Ariel Ramsey (2) and Kris Broman.

The Rayders finished the week with a 5-1 win on April 21 when they hosted Elk Rapids.

The win over the Elks improved their record to 4-0 in the Lake Michigan

Conference and overall.

Charlevoix controlled play in the first half, getting off 12 shots to three for Elk Rapids. However, the Rayders had some trouble finding the back of the net as Elk Rapids packed in their defensive power. Charlevoix went ahead at the 21 minute mark, when senior Madison Ramsey converted on a penalty kick awarded for a handball in the box. The Elks came back with 10 minutes remaining in the first half, converting on a chip pass from a free kick at the Rayder 20-yard line.

The Rayders came out strong to start the second half and went ahead to stay when McCary scored her first varsity goal from 18 yards out. Anderson put the Rayders up 3-1 with a nice goal from 20 yards, followed by another score from McCary and a final shot from Madison Ramsey for the 5-1 margin.

Assists for the Rayders went to Madison Ramsey, Madison and Ariel Ramsey. Charlevoix out-shot the Lady Elks 24-13 on the night.

Defensively, Charlevoix received strong play from sweeper Murray, senior back Lisa Kuehler and in the mid-field, McCary, Madison and Anderson. Nitchman notched her fourth win. She has 25 saves against one goal allowed for the season.

McCary was named Rayder Player of the Game.

Charlevoix hosted Cheboygan in a non-league match on Monday, April 24. Results from this game were not available by press time.

Baseball team secures first place at tourney

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

The Rayders' varsity baseball team topped a productive week by claiming the Charlevoix Invitational tournament championship.

Charlevoix defeated Cheboygan 7-2 and Traverse City St. Francis 3-2 to claim the title at the April 22 tournament.

Pitcher Matt Teuscher led his team to a 7-2 victory over Cheboygan in the first game of the tournament, giving up only five hits and delivering four strikeouts.

Charlevoix trailed 2-1 heading into the bottom of the fifth as Ty Telgenhof singled in the tying run with one out.

Charlevoix coach, Allen Telgenhof, said he was proud of the way his team recovered leading into the championship game.

"Matt (Teuscher) pitched an awesome game for us, staying ahead of their hitters all day long," Telgenhof said.

Following the win, the Rayders faced Traverse City St. Francis in the Charlevoix Invitational championship game, defeating them 3-2 in a come from behind victory.

Freshman, Michael Heckendorn, started the rally as Charlevoix trailed 2-1 in the bottom of the sixth with two outs and no one on when he scored the tying run on a wild pitch which forced an extra innings tiebreaker.

The Rayders secured the championship as Teuscher scored the winning run in the bottom of the eighth.

"I couldn't be more proud of our guys and the way they competed," Telgenhof said.

Telgenhof was excited to see his team perform as well as they did in their first tournament of the season, and he looks forward to many more successful tournaments.

"We want our baseball program in Charlevoix to be about winning championships," he said. "The guys are excited and already talking about winning another in a couple of weeks when we head down to the Birch Run tournament."

On Thursday, April 20, the Rayders split their doubleheader against Roscommon, losing the first game 10-0 and winning the second 10-6 at home.

Telgenhof said Roscommon's batting was what led to Charlevoix's first game defeat.

"The top four hitters in their lineup really did a job on us getting all seven of their hits and getting on base 11 out of 12 times up," he said.

fell behind 3-0 in the first, but recovered quickly with four runs early in the game to avoid a sweep.

"I was concerned about how the team would respond, but they came back in the second inning," Telgenhof said.

The Rayders varsity baseball team plays again at 4:30 p.m. on Friday, April 28 when they host the Elks of Elk Rapids.

Rayder softball team falls at Charlevoix Invitational

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

After an impressive four-game winning streak, the Rayders' varsity softball team fell in two closely contested match-ups at Saturday's Charlevoix Invitational tournament.

Despite a solid pitching effort by freshman Amber Hoffman, Charlevoix was downed by Ellsworth 3-2 and Central Lake 9-8 in the Rayders' first tournament of the season.

Coach Tony Zimmerman entered the tournament expecting Ellsworth to offer his team a challenge.

"They (Ellsworth) were 31-3 last season and only lost two players, we came in knowing what to expect," Zimmerman said.

He added, "The girls did an excellent job keeping up."

Zimmerman said the highest heartbreak of the tournament was the Rayders' turnaround loss to Central Lake as the Trojans fought back from a four-run deficit late in the sixth to force an extra inning.

Zimmerman said the loss resulted from several base coaching miscues late in the game.

"I feel that I let them down. The girls did an excellent job," he said.

Despite the losses, Zimmerman said he saw excellent playing from Hoffman, who pitched both games and provided her team with a total of 11 strikeouts.

The Lady Rayders rallied with seven runs at the top of the sixth to overcome a four-run deficit and lead Charlevoix to a 13-10 victory at home over East Jordan in the first meeting of their doubleheader on Tuesday, April 18.

Charlevoix's hitting showed marked improvement as Hoffman (2-4), Lauren Mielke (3-4), Sasha Spenceley (2-4), Genevieve Kochanny (3-4) and Desi Faust (2-4) provided the basis for the team's quick recovery.

Sophomore Desi Faust concluded an evening of solid pitching as she carried her team to a 7-5 win in that meeting's nightcap.

Hoffman proved her strength as a pitcher as she pitched five strikeouts to provide her team with two consecutive wins at Roscommon on Thursday, April 20 as Charlevoix defeated the Bucks 7-3 and 8-2.

Zimmerman said he was proud of his team's improvements and he hopes to see them continue to grow and develop.

"We have worked hard to tighten our defense. And, our base running and fielding are really coming along," he said.

Zimmerman refused to take all the credit for his team's turnaround, crediting assistant coaches Ken Hoffman and Patrick Faust with providing sound knowledge of the game and a positive environment in which to learn.

"Our coaching staff is doing a great job instilling a winning attitude in the girls," Zimmerman said.

The Charlevoix softball team plays again at 4:30 p.m. on Friday, April 28 at Elk Rapids.

Ronald Haggard

AUGUST 18, 1977-APRIL 27, 2000

It seemed so very much like paradise when our children were small and we all lived snugly under one roof. Weekday mornings were filled with hurried shouts, groans and an unbridled frenzy as the kids ran through the house getting ready for school. The house was filled with a scent of warm bath water, coffee brewing on the stove, and if it were a special day the cold cereal was replaced by the smell of bacon and eggs frying and popping in the skillet.

Dinners were a bit slower and between bites of food we listened to the day's events. There was always a special story and some incident that spanned the generations and caused us all to laugh in unison. What a paradise it was!

Sometimes memories are all that is left. We know that now, and so we tenaciously cling to our past with the inexorable power of love. We daily remember Ronald and fondly recall all the moments of his too short life. His life was like many other boys and young men. There were joyous highs and tragic lows. We concentrated on the good times. We remember his love of poetry, his varsity wrestling record, his many days of tramping through the woods of Beaver Island following the far away barking of a pack of beagles chasing the scent of rabbit.

We believe in the Resurrection and the resurrection that has been promised us all, but we also acknowledge that no person is truly gone from this earth as long as his friends and family remember him. We remember Ronald, and he is in our hearts and minds forever.

God bless you, Ronald

Voters pick Stevens and McLean

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Jeff Stevens, with 641 votes (34.87 percent), and John McLean Jr., with 483 votes (26.28 percent), were the two big winners in the May 2 school board election.

Candidate Tom Barnes received 419 votes, for 22.8 percent. He was trailed by incumbent Dennis Halverson with 293 votes, for 15.94 percent. Tuesday evening, 13.3 percent of registered voters in the school district turned out for a total of 1,838 ballots cast. There were two write-in votes.

"I just feel real good to have as much support as I got and as many votes as I got," Stevens said. "I'm looking forward to working with the board, the school and the community."

Stevens said he isn't quite sure, but he believes living in Charlevoix all his life and having children in the school system helped give him an edge in the race.

"Apparently, I've been trusted throughout the years," he said.

Stevens said the first thing he wants to get working on is building community trust in the school board.

"Getting moving on this financial dilemma is something we'll need a lot of community support on. So, that would be number one," he said.

Stevens, who works with the local Department of Natural Resources Fisheries Station and the City of Charlevoix Fire Department, has a wife, Michelle, son, Brandon, and daughter, Bailee.

McLean shared Stevens' excitement at the outcome of the election.

"I'm ecstatic. I'm still in awe," he said. "My supporters were phenomenal. They were a huge part of my success and I really don't believe I would have gotten as far as I have without them."

McLean believes Charlevoix is ready for some fresh ideas.

"I think I was very honest. I have no agenda on this," he said. "I have been in the community for only about six years and my opponents have been longtime residents. That tells me the town is behind me and they're ready for some change, and I'm pretty proud of that."

McLean said the first thing he wants to do is figure out ways of generating revenue for the schools.

McLean is a volunteer firefighter and father of two sons, Jake and Jared. He will retire in June from his post as chief officer in charge at the Charlevoix Lifeboat Station.

Barnes believes McLean and Stevens ran enthusiastic campaigns and the voters simply responded in kind.

He thanked everyone who voted for him and said he may consider running in the future.

"I'm still very concerned about the finances of the school. If it turns out that the schools are in better financial condition next year, then I probably won't see any reason to run. But, if things don't improve, then I would look forward to running again," he said.

Unseated school board president, Halverson, said the board will have a tough time with the impending financial problems.

"Maybe, knowing what I know, they (voters) might have done me a favor," Halverson said. "The town and the board is going to be faced with some very tough decisions — unfortunately, (they're) probably going to get around to people and jobs."

He added, "I wish them a lot of luck."

Halverson said he remains a member of the community and has much interest in what occurs. However, he added that it's too early to speculate as to whether he'll run again.

Festive kickoff to the tourist season

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Last weekend, people packed Charlevoix for Michigan's Fun Kickoff in what many hope was a prequel to a successful tourist season.

"Charlevoix was alive with enthusiasm. It was a great feeling — people were ready to celebrate spring. And that's the feeling we were hoping for," said Tracy Sell, president of the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau.

The local convention and visitors bureau is one of several local organizations, including the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and Charlevoix Venetian Festival Inc., that played a supporting role in bringing the Michigan Festivals and Events Association's April 28-30 expanded spring conference to Charlevoix.

"For a first-year event, this exceeded our expectations. It was absolutely wonderful," said Jacqueline Merta, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

The three-day, fun-filled festival, dubbed Michigan's Fun Kickoff, included a midway, a Kids' Kingdom, an art show and a regional food and wine tasting event all at Castle Farms and a fireworks display over Round Lake.

"We are very, very happy. It was such a hit. And it was wonderful to see the community open its arms to us. You rolled the red carpet out for us," said Sue Bila, executive director of the Michigan Festivals and Events Association.

On Monday morning, just after the dust settled from the three-day event, Bila's phone was already ringing with talk for next year's conference.

She said information will be tabulated and talk of whether the conference will return to Charlevoix next year, should take place in the next two months.

"We would love to have it come back," Merta said.

This was the first time in the events association's long history that the spring conference, which included staple items like educational seminars for the 115 registered conference attendees, has included features like Flavors of Michigan and the carnival.

"It was great to see Michigan's Fun Kickoff come alive and to start the events season early," Bila said.

According to Sell, others in town were pleased to start the season early

Voc-ed millage approval continues programs

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

On Tuesday, May 2, the .75 mill Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District millage renewal passed by a wide margin of 71.33 percent with 1,396 'yes' votes and 561 'no' votes for a total voter turnout of 10.4 percent.

The millage is expected to generate approximately $3.5 million a year from 2006 to 2009 to fund the 39 vocational-technical education programs provided through the intermediate school district.

One such program is the robotics class at Charlevoix High School, taught by Joe Woods, the manufacturing technology teacher and director of career and technical education.

Woods said he has students who land jobs while still in high school due to their training in the voc-ed classes.

"They (students) are extremely well prepared when they go to the university level and for when they go into the workforce," he said. "We have students all over the country going to school and getting jobs. I have a student who is graduating from Arizona State (University), and he said he still relies on a lot of things that he learned in the program in high school."

One of the best parts of the class, Woods said, is taking the trip to Ohio for a national work-cell competition.

"A work-cell is an area or defined machine that performs a process," he said. "In industry, these work-cells are setup and the process is completed start to finish with no human interaction."

The work-cell Woods' students built for the 2005 competition needed to sort in several different ways and with no human interaction.

"That has to include a minimum of one robot in it," Woods said. "It sounds simple but it isn't, because it's all done with automation."

He added, "We were able to take the first place award for the competition."

Students also had to address safety issues, write an engineering brief and give a presentation on the project.

Woods said his robotics class is similar to the Lake Superior State University senior projects.

"It's modeled after that program to give the kids a senior program experience, as many of them are going to continue on into the engineering field," he said.

While at the competition, Woods' students were in the company of technological giants like Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Texas Tech and the Rochester Institute of Technology.

Of the 3,400 students in the intermediate school district, 2,700 are enrolled in some type of approved vocational-technical education program.

"Without that money, some of the classes might be there, but they would probably end up with more of the general classes that didn't focus on the high-tech training necessary in today's world on today's equipment," Woods said.

A glimpse at the business world off-line

Julie Witthoeft
'Just a thought'

The Midwest's high tech world was turned upside down last Wednesday, April 26, when AT&T's DSL Internet service experienced a major glitch that disconnected Internet service to much of five states including Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

A lot of northern Michigan, including Charlevoix, felt the hit. Shortly after arriving at work that day, I knew something was wrong when my e-mail in box was unusually scant on messages directing me to wonder drugs that can tone and enlarge existent and nonexistent parts of my anatomy.

Soon after, I realized that businesses like ours that rely on Internet information and e-mail correspondence were stuck in a new realm of non-electronic communication.

By 4 p.m., the AT&T promised time when customers would be brought back on-line. I knew the glitch had become a news story of massive proportions. As I began my search for the AT&T source of information on the problem, I realized that when corporate America experiences outages, answers aren't readily available.

My first conversation was an automated Q and A session with my responses ranging from, "Yes," to the cold silent treatment. I furiously pressed the number 0 on my dial pad, hoping a person's voice would magically appear on the other end of the line.

This approach worked out for me. A man, named William in the engineering department picked up from somewhere outside of Michigan.

Even though I sternly expressed that I was looking for information on the outage for inclusion in a news story, he kept repeating what I now believe to be a written response he was instructed to deliver to the masses.

"We are sorry for the inconvenience. Service is expected to return by 4 p.m. central time."

He then went on to deliver a lengthy monologue as to how to troubleshoot and attempt to restore service.

I again repeated that I was looking for information on the problem for a news story, not to become an information technology wiz.

I then asked, for the third time, to speak with someone in the public relations department, hoping that the news story concept would get better for a rep with a bit more media savvy.

William politely responded that these contact phone numbers are not something he is privy to. But that they do exist in cyberspace.

This was the kicker, brace yourselves, I know I did.

William's response was "Google it."

Knowing full well that my inquiry was about an Internet outage of cataclysmic proportions, I was directed to the Internet to search for the public relations phone number.

I laughed hopelessly and told exasperated William that this just wouldn't do. He then sent me to yet another automated phone contact where a computerized message relayed the same response he gave me at the start of our Stooges talk.

As the day came to a close, I figured I would spend at least another morning off-line.

But I took comfort in knowing that even though the Courier now belongs to a new media empire, Schurz Communications Inc. any representative of the company with which you speak will be two things — human and equipped to send you to whoever can best serve you.

God bless America and the information age!

Looking back at the roots of vegetable gardening

Roger Knutson
'Ear to the ground'

The satisfactions of growing a vegetable garden are many.

It's not possible for me to plant a piece of a potato in the earth without thinking how delicious those offspring potatoes will be some months in the future. I can't put a seed of lettuce out without feeling the crunch of a fresh leaf between my teeth.

There is no way I can set a young tomato plant in the soil without seeing and tasting those beautiful red globes. As a harvester and as a cook I can project myself months into the future when those not yet sprouted plants will be the freshest food.

At the same time, as a botanist, I can't plant a potato without thinking of their long history with human beings, who probably made the same sort of projections about the future crop that I do. The history of our common vegetables is as fascinating to me as their sprouting and growth. While planting and caring for the plants I can project myself hundreds of years into the past and visit with the spirits of people long dead and cultures which no longer exist. Some people tried to tell me that all that education about plants wouldn't ever be very useful. It has entertained me for countless hours already.

Think potatoes for a minute. Two thousand years ago in the high mountains of what is now Peru, people cultivated a plant that produced walnut sized, bitter tubers in the thin air and cold of their homeland. To make the tubers edible, they were left out to freeze, and then were tramped on to squeeze out some of the bitter juice.

Potatoes were not seen by Europeans until Spanish soldiers conquered the Incas in about 1530. The Spaniards thought they were some sort of truffle, a misunderstanding so persistent that it gave us the German word for potato (kartoffel). When potatoes were brought back to Europe they were met with mixed responses. They were known to be in the Nightshade family which has many poisonous plants, and most people considered them potentially dangerous. By the 1590s they had arrived in England and Ireland. Since the potato was not mentioned in the Bible it was rejected by some Protestants, but Catholics welcomed them and ritually planted them on Good Friday. The French, characteristically, made the potato not only acceptable, but more palatable than the British had.

The peasants of Ireland became almost totally dependent on the potato as a food source, and when a serious disease killed most of the potatoes in 1845-1846, a million Irish died of starvation and another million emigrated. The Irish still, as of the 1990s, eat more potatoes per capita than any other European people.

Now, think tomatoes. They too are South American in origin and did not reach Europe until the late 1500s. For almost a century they were rejected as potentially poisonous. They belong to the same taxonomic family as the potato. There were rumors that tomatoes were a potent aphrodisiac, which probably enhanced their consumption. Their names in various European languages translate as "apples of love."

The place where tomatoes first become edibles wasn't well established until the 1700s when recipes including tomatoes began to appear in cookbooks. And the final arrival of tomatoes as food for everyone came only in the 1830s when someone invented and began canning tomato ketchup. More tomatoes find their way into food as ketchup than in any other form.

So, planting a garden guides us all the way from the sixteenth century to the late summer of 2006. Bon appetit!

Breast cancer walk

Editor:
The Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk will take place on Saturday, May 13. The walk will begin at 9 a.m. in East Park. Registration will start at 8:30 a.m.

We know that this year has been difficult financially for a lot of people and business organizations. We have not solicited our local business community for money or donations this year. That doesn't mean we would not welcome donations, but this year, more than ever, we would simply like to focus on the walk and remember those friends and loved ones we have lost to cancer and to honor those who are still in the fight.

Walkers are still encouraged to sign up for the walk and collect donations. Entry forms are available at Vacation Properties Network and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce office. We will be giving out door prizes to participants. We appreciate the support everyone has given us over the past many years.

Those businesses and individuals who wish to donate to the fund may do so by making a check out to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and be sure to enter Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund or CAMCF in the memo line of your check. Mail your check to CCCF, P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727. Better yet bring your check Saturday, May 13 and walk with us.

Support performing arts

Editor:
Our Charlevoix High School performing arts program has a well-regarded state-wide reputation for our coach, Mrs. Connie Ford, and our quality of performers. For 37 years, this program has allowed our students the opportunity to meet and compete with students from Ishpeming to Ypsilanti.

We need the community's continued support for this program. Please contact Dr. John Sturrock, members of the school board, and Mr. Gary Grundman, encouraging the continuation of this program in the curriculum. The next school board meeting is at 7 p.m. on May 8. Please attend.

Art, music and theater are not a luxury but a vital part of our children's education and our community's spirit.

Performing arts builds skills

Editor:
As graduates of Charlevoix High School and as former members of its performing arts program, we would like to express our most sincere wishes that school administrators continue to fund this most important part of the curriculum. As people who have worked in the real world in various capacities over the past 26 years, we can tell you that the performing arts program was essential to our success in life.

As parents of two school-aged children and as taxpayers in Dexter, we understand the hard choices that administrators have to make each day. Hard choices have to be made in these most uncertain fiscal times. We're sure the administration has the best intentions for students and want to make sure they are well-equipped for the real world.

Sometimes however, we can lose sight of the core skills that young people really need in order make a life for themselves in our society. We won't debate which subjects are necessary for a good education. Basic math, English, science and physical education experiences are obviously part of a must have education for our students. However, it is not as obvious that a person skilled in the arts of writing, reading, public speaking, debating, editing, organizing, prioritizing, researching, etc. will be rewarded with high-paying opportunities that a person without expertise in these essential areas of interpersonal communication will not receive? This has been our experience over and over with the companies we've worked for and with the one we now own. These are the skills that we began honing in the performing arts program at Charlevoix High School.

All we can say is that our employers have lauded our public speaking and interpersonal communication abilities on a consistent basis. These skills have resulted in quick job hires and excellent performance reviews in all of our career basis. These skills also had a direct impact on my wife's opportunity to succeed the owner of a very profitable business in Ann Arbor.

Surely you've read that the number one fear among Americans is public speaking. Doesn't that speak volumes about the necessity of the Charlevoix performing arts program? Don't our children need a place to practice and develop these skills that are so critical to success in today's wired world? Don't our children need an outlet for competition — in addition to the athletic field — that promotes essential skill-building and creativity?

In closing, let's put things in another perspective. Most people in our society use the skills developed in the performing arts program on an everyday basis. We write and edit our e-mails and reports, we read our books and newspapers, we speak publicly to our co-workers and bosses, we debate and research issues that are important to us — especially around election time. And we create, edit and organize presentations we make for our companies. Are these not the very things we should be teaching our children? Are these skills not important for our children's success as future public leaders? Aren't we trying to give our children more and better tools to help secure their places as productive members of society? Please help our children by giving them an opportunity that only the Charlevoix performing arts program can provide.

Immigrant demonstration

Editor:
This week's demonstrations by immigrants seeking recognition for their human rights reminds me that none of my forefathers had green cards and some were considered criminals when they left their countries of origin. The criminals in my background range from people espousing religions different from the established religion of their country to more hard scramble characters sent off to Australia for such crimes as being debtors or stealing a landlord's horse. The religious refugees arrived on the east coast and started a revolution. The criminals found boats to bring them to the west coast where they became entrepreneurs in a variety of ways.

Happily, they all found safe haven here and contributed to the vibrancy that is our immigrant nation.

I consider all these immigrant forefathers noble and am proud of my heritage, no matter how disreputable others may have considered them.

Today's more recent immigrants and refugees also have heritage of which to be proud and rights to be respected. And their presence continues to bring vibrancy to our country.

Thanks hoops helpers

Editor:
The 2006 senior class would like to thank everyone who participated in the student/faculty basketball game last week. The teacher participation was wonderful. Thanks for being such good sports about your performances.

Thanks too to Ken Boss for announcing and making a tough job look easy. We could not have had this successful fund-raiser without the help of the parent volunteers and the chairperson of the event, Chris Cole. To those spectators who bribed, thanks for your creative and valuable participation. The funds raised at this event will greatly help the class of 2006 to have a safe and memorable all night graduation party.

Lighthouse restoration candle, sticker fund-raiser

Bullfrog Light Company will help the Charlevoix Historical Society raise money for the lighthouse restoration project by granting the Charlevoix Keeper of the Light Committee exclusive rights to sell two additional color ways of their popular South Pier Light Candle.

The candle sports the beautiful navy on white pen and ink artwork of Charlevoix native Tim Gibbons and is available at the Bullfrog Candle Factory Outlet store located at 05995 M-66, and at other retail shops.

The two new color ways are available only at the Harsha House Museum Store, located off State Street in downtown Charlevoix.

dramatically emblazoned on the surface. The other candle is blue, showing off the lighthouse in its circa 1968 white apparel.

The Historical Society is keeping a record of the most popular color and will post the results each month.

Because the first fund-raiser was so successful and the initial order of lighthouse bumper stickers sold out so quickly, the Charlevoix Keeper of the Light Committee is replenishing the supply. The second order of stickers are now available at the Harsha House Museum store, located off State Street in downtown Charlevoix.

Workplace smoking ban approved for Charlevoix

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

In less than 60 days, the Charlevoix County Clean Indoor Air Act will be in effect following its adoption during the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' April 26 meeting.

After some procedural maneuvering, including rescinding the entire smoking ban and readopting it separately for Emmet, Antrim and Otsego counties, a vote to exempt Charlevoix from the regulation died with a 3-3 vote.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor, John Jarema, said it was important the commissioners complete all three steps in one meeting.

"If this board passes a motion to rescind, I would urge this board to then turn around and simultaneously enact the underlying motion for this regulation so therefore there's not a time gap so the other counties are not in jeopardy," Jarema said. "And then you guys can fight it out over exempt or not exempt."

A motion to waive the commission's rules on procedure passed unanimously so commissioners could vote to rescind the act.

During the discussion phase of the evening, first district commissioner, Connie Saltonstall said she hoped the commissioners would support the health of the residents of the four counties served by the local health department, Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency.

"There are provisions that provide for everyone. It does not mean that people may not smoke. If there is only one person in the business, the regulation doesn't apply. If there is only one person in the vehicle, the regulation does not apply," Saltonstall said. "The problem with smoking is that secondhand smoke affects the health of other people. This regulation supports maintaining the health of people in the work place so they don't have to suffer because of someone else's bad health choice."

She added, "If a business chooses to allow smoking, there is a provision for that. There is a designated smoking place. There are regulations for direct venting so it doesn't go out in the atmosphere where people who choose to respect their health and not smoke aren't affected by it."

Shirley Roloff, sixth district commissioner, said the reasons Saltonstall gave were valid, but she doesn't feel smoking in businesses is a big enough issue to warrant regulation.

"You can check this town and you'll find very, very few people that still smoke inside their buildings," Roloff said. "I guess I just have a problem with another regulation from the government. It really isn't up to me to regulate a man's business."

She added, "They should be smart enough to try and protect (their) people."

Northwest Michigan Community Health Agency health officer, Gerry Chase said, "This is a serious issue and you're giving frivolous reasons to not address it. I'm certainly not someone who runs out and tries to take hamburgers (or) cigarettes out of people's mouths, beer out of my hand or anybody else's hand or anything like that, this is addressing secondhand smoke."

Chase spoke about a 19-year-old waitress who died on the job when she had an asthma attack caused by cigarette smoke. He also told of a man in his 20s who collapsed at work and later died from exposure to secondhand smoke.

Chase said studies on areas where regulations on smoking in private businesses are passed show significant reductions in nicotine levels of nonsmokers.

"Statistically, we know second-hand smoke does kill in this area," he said. "The number in our district is 25 deaths a year. This is a serious issue."

Ron Reinhardt, third district commissioner, said he finds his constituents don't usually call him unless they are upset about something.

"I'd say about 90 percent of them say, 'No, smoking is not good.' But, out of 30-some people, only two want it passed," he said. "They say, 'No more government regulations.' Yes, smoking is bad. Secondhand smoke is bad. But what's next?"

He added, "Also, one of their points is, you can still smoke in restaurants, bars and still drive down the road with your kids or whoever and still smoke. That's where most of this is coming from. This is very little from businesses. Their (constituents) answer was leave it alone. And that's how I'm going to vote."

Connie Saltonstall

Reinhardt said a vote to adopt this regulation is a vote for more government.

Randy Frykberg, second district commissioner said, "If you like safer society and safer living, it's also the way to go."

In an interview in the days following the failure to exempt Charlevoix County from the clean air act, Saltonstall said she was pleased.

"I think this is a very good thing for the people in this county," she said. "I think it says we have people working in this community to provide great health services."

Midwest DSL service outage hits Charlevoix

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Last week, an interruption in AT&T's DSL high speed Internet service left thousands of customers searching for new ways to communicate.

According to Meghan Rofkopf, a spokesperson for AT&T's Chicago, Ill. office, on Wednesday, April 26, planned maintenance upgrades to hardware and software on broadband switches resulted in sporadic service to five states in the Midwest including Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin.

"It was a technical malfunction, we believe in the software, that knocked out DSL service," Rofkopf said.

The first service problems began at around 3 a.m. on April 26 and technical teams restored DSL to customers in both southern and northern Michigan by around 8 p.m. that night.

She said it is unknown how many customers were impacted by the malfunction but estimates are in the thousands.

Rofkopf said the far reaching impact of the outage was realized at call centers, flooded with people out of service requesting information on what caused the problem and when service would be restored.

Charlevoix was one of many communities impacted by the malfunction.

Manager of Charlevoix's Cyber Shire, Alex Busman, was happy to have a slow traffic day as Internet service petered in and out.

The Spring Arbor University elementary education student arrived at the office at around 9 a.m. to do some school work. He said between that time and the store's opening at 3 p.m. service was cut about four times.

"It was an inconvenience more than anything," he said. "I would rather have it happen now than in the middle of July."

The Cyber Shire, which opened two years ago in the Oleson's Plaza, offers 16 stations hooked to AT&T's DSL high speed Internet service. Aside from Internet access, they also offer gaming opportunities, computer repair and virus cleanup services.

Rofkopf said AT&T has offered its DSL service since 1999.

Since opening two years ago, the Cyber Shire has been a DSL user. Owner, Kurtis Busman said he has had very few problems with service since signing on with AT&T.

"But when it does go down, it's frustrating because it's hard to know what's going on. It's not like someone calls you," he said.

Rofkopf said she is unsure whether an outage of this magnitude has happened since 1999.

OPIE award winners to be honored at banquet

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The 11th Annual Outstanding Person In Education (OPIE) award winners have been announced.

Each year the OPIE awards honor local educators and support staff who dedicate their lives to students. This year's local winners are Melissa Puzio, John Guirey, Jim Stambaugh and Mike Bartz.

Melissa Puzio

Puzio, a teacher of early childhood special education with the Taylor School, said she first became interested in teaching the 3 to 5-year-olds while completing an observation of a classroom during college. "I just got intrigued by a student that was in an early childhood special education classroom," she said.

Puzio said the child's disability and the special type of work needed to deal with him interested her.

"I like seeing the kids grow and learn. Sometimes it's baby steps and sometimes they are actually big steps," she said.

"Another influence on Puzio's decision to make educating others her career was that both her parents are teachers.

Puzio had no idea she would be honored this year.

"It was a surprise. It's overwhelming," she said. "It's an honor, but it's also a challenge to keep doing and growing and learning myself so I can keep teaching new and different things to the kids."

Puzio, who is married with two children, has worked in education for 12 years.

Mike Bartz

Charlevoix Middle School support staff member, Bartz, has worked in the custodial and maintenance field for one school or another in Charlevoix for 21 years.

Bartz said he was shocked to find he had been named as an OPIE winner.

"I'm still working on that. It's an honor," he said. "It's different. Your peers are recognizing you and it feels kind of neat."

Bartz maintains the building and grounds and always finds time to joke around with the students or be there when they need a friend.

"I like doing the repairs and dealing with the kids," he said. "I've had a few come and talk to me with home problems, especially when I was working at the high school. Some of them had the trouble dealing with parents and wanting to quit school and they would come talk with me."

Bartz said the OPIE award ranks with the time he was asked to speak to a graduating senior class in Charlevoix. "That was a very big honor for me," he said. "When the kids ask you, they are recognizing who you are, and that's important. I don't think that's ever been done before with a custodian."

Originally from Detroit, Bartz has been in the Charlevoix area since 1965.

Jim Stambaugh

Currently an English and history teacher on Beaver Island, Stambaugh has had the opportunity to teach art, government, economics and drafting throughout his 30-year teaching career. Stambaugh spent approximately 11 years teaching in White Pigeon before coming to Beaver Island 19 years ago.

"It's an honor to be recognized by your peers because they consider that you are deserving of the award," he said. "And I appreciate their confidence."

Stambaugh decided to pursue teaching because of its social impact.

"I think, like most teachers, you have a feeling you can affect a change somehow in society, hopefully for the better," he said. "And I enjoy teaching English. It's kind of cool when a kid will read a story that he likes and say, 'That was fun.'"

Stambaugh said it's exciting to see what he calls the "Aha factor," when a child who has struggled to grasp something finally comprehends it.

Stambaugh, who is in semi retirement, is married and has four children.

John Guirey

Charlevoix High School art teacher, Guirey, has taught for 14 years, seven of those in Charlevoix.

Guirey was a fine arts major who specialized in graphic design for advertising when, while working as a summer coach at Camp Daggett, realized he wanted to work with kids all the time.

"Working at the summer camp got me interested in going back (to school) to be a teacher," he said. "I was nominated as outstanding counselor the first two summers and I think that was a big thing for me."

Guirey is now the summer camp director at Camp Daggett.

The best part of teaching, he said, is the "Day-to-day interaction with the students," and "Seeing how they develop their skills as artists."

He added, "The students are wonderful. I enjoy seeing them everyday."

Guirey said it's fulfilling to see some of his pupils pursue a career in the field.

"Right now, I have a couple students in art school and a couple are seniors who are starting off their careers in art," he said.

And, Guirey said, he is flattered to receive an OPIE award.

"There are so many wonderful teachers. It's a big honor to be chosen by my peers," he said. "This is probably the first substantial honor like this for me."

Guirey's wife, also a certified teacher, is a stay-at-home mother of two sons.

The OPIE dinner and award ceremony is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 11, in the conference center at Boyne Mountain in Boyne Falls.

This event is open to the public. To reserve a ticket, send $26 per person to: 616 Petoskey St., Suite #203, Petoskey, Michigan 49770. Payments can also be dropped off.

Be sure to write the names of attendees and the school district with which you wish to be seated. Or, call Kathie Hughson at the Michigan Education Association at (231) 347-6021 for more information.

Make check or money orders payable to: 14 B/C Coordinating Council.

PEOPLE FIRST

Students to discuss legislative findings at May 4 forum

Civic involvement has taken Charlevoix High School students to Lansing to discuss the educational budget, the energy crisis, and issues of public health and safety with state legislators.

The findings of these students will be presented to the community at an open forum, to take place at 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 4 in the lower level of the Weatherlane Restaurant. The forum is a continuation of the monthly non-partisan public interest discussions sponsored by the Charlevoix County Democratic Party.

The students, from Annemarie Conway's advanced government class, studied the effects of Proposal A, passed in 1994, and how continuous adjustments to the law that created caps on property taxes, have resulted in a loss of $550 million a year in state funding for schools.

Other students researched the energy crisis and alternative energy sources, including ethanol fuels that could have an impact on Michigan's agricultural economy.

A third group addressed the public health and safety concerns of smoking in Michigan's restaurants.

"These students have a lot to say," said Bill Lovett, chairman of the Charlevoix County Democratic Party. "Last year, we met with a similar group of engaged students and I know we learned a lot from them."

"The depth of their research and their findings after meeting with our state legislators should be extremely informative."

The Thursday meeting in the Weatherlane Restaurant's lower level is open to the public. The meeting with the students will be preceded by a Dutch treat dinner at 6 p.m.

For more information, call Lovett at (231) 547-3592.

PARENTING

Tips for recognizing and coping with substance abuse in children

Celia
Kelly

'Kids' corner'

The joys of parenting — one-minute they are babies and the next a teenager asking for the car keys.

The lessons come fast and it will be easy at one moment and challenging the next. Just when you think you have mastered your parenting technique, the next child presents a different lesson. Our children become our teachers and we their students but the roles will also switch — you are the teacher and the child is the student.

When our children are born we hold them in our arms and begin to form hopes and dreams for their future. We think of all the amazing things they will do and it doesn't cross our minds that one day we may be fighting the battle of addiction. It creeps up and the warning signs are often confused with normal adolescent behavior. One thing to remember is, it's not your fault. When a parent finds out that his/her child has used or is currently using drugs or alcohol, the first reaction is shock and denial and you are left wondering what went wrong. As parents there's a tendency to heap the guilt upon ourselves.

There are numerous pro-use messages that our children hear on a daily basis from friends, music, television, movies, billboards, magazines and Web sites. It's difficult to navigate through the maze of information and busy schedules and trying to track the who (friends), what (activities), when (time frames) and where (location) of your child's life.

- Things to know:
 - Take care of yourself — having a child with a substance abuse problem is emotionally draining.
 - Talk to your child — establish and maintain good communication. No one knows your child better than you do.
 - Get involved in your child's life — know their friends, likes and dislikes.
 - Set rules and boundaries — be clear and consistent and apply appropriate consequences.
 - Teach your child how to form positive relationships.
 - Monitor their activities — who do they listen to, how do they spend their time.
 - Take action — listen to your internal alarm bell system. If something doesn't feel right in your gut, investigate.
 - Do not blame yourself or your child if you discover a substance abuse problem.

- Educate yourself on the existing resources and get your child the help needed to stop use.
- Tap into your local substance abuse agency or school district that can provide additional information.
- Remember the demand for services is higher than the treatment options and resources available.

The sooner you get help the better the results.

Scott and Celia Kelly, founders of BASES will lead a presentation called "Raising Drug Free Kids," from 7 to 9 p.m. on Thursday, May 4 at BASES Teen Center, located at 208 West Lincoln Street in Charlevoix.

Topics included in the presentation will be: Local and national drug use trends among teens; signs and symptoms of problematic use; and what parents need to know.

There will be an opportunity for questions and answers from the audience regarding specific teen situation recommendations. Anonymity will be respected.

Celia Kelly is program director for Bay Area Substance Education Service (BASES), located at 208 West Lincoln Street in Charlevoix. For more information about the services provided at BASES call Kelly at (231) 547-1144.

Monthly featured event: Petunia planting

There's no better way to spend time with Charlevoix's youngest residents than by planting petunias together.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful is hosting the 25th Annual Community-Wide Petunia Planting Party and Picnic on Thursday, May 25 in Charlevoix.

Planting begins at 5 p.m. Volunteers will plant five miles of petunias on both sides of U.S. 31 from the Charlevoix Municipal Airport to Mercer Boulevard. The planting takes about one hour. Block captains identified by orange vests will direct volunteers, answer questions and give out picnic coupons good for hot dogs, chips, cookies and refreshments.

Volunteer planters should dress for the weather in comfortable clothes and garden gloves.

The picnic begins at 6 p.m. in East Park.

Operation Petunia is funded by generous individual and business donations. Donations can be made to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Inc. and mailed to: Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, P.O. Box One, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

File photo

On May 25, people of all ages will gather along five miles of Bridge Street to beautify Charlevoix by planting petunias.

'Must reads' from library director Valerie Meyerson

The following is a list of age specific books selected by Charlevoix Public Library director Valerie Meyerson for May reading.

Karma Wilson, "Moose Tracks"

Ages 4-7

Moose tracks are all over the house. The animals that came to visit can explain all the feathers, fur, nuts and prints. But who left the moose tracks? Bright illustrations show a hippo in the tub, a frog in the sink and birds on the bedpost while the cat is asleep.

The cartoon pictures are cheerful and full of detail. There is an opportunity for parents to play "I spy" with their children who will find new critters in the unlikely places.

Parents and children will enjoy solving the riddle of the moose tracks.

Grades 5-7

Poor Kirby Nickel is better at watching basketball than he is at playing. But when the seventh-grade team has a chance to be part of the ceremony retiring NBA star Brett McGrew's jersey, mega-fan Kirby has got to be there. How Kirby works his heart out and coach uses "stealth uniforms" to psych up the team makes for a good read, building to a rip-roaring final game and a satisfying conclusion.

Humor, heart and basketball abounds.

Audrey Wood, "Silly Sally"

Ages 2-5

A delightful rhyming story that builds the story by adding characters. Silly Sally "dances backwards upside-down all the way to town" picking up companions along the way. With repetition, the rhyming action helps children remember the story and sequence of animals. A silly book sure to bring giggles.

Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk fund-raiser, May 13

The Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk will take place on Saturday, May 13. The walk has raised over $100,000 for breast cancer research, hospice, Charlevoix Area Hospital and Camp Daggett scholarships.

Initially all money collected and donated during this walk went to the National Cancer Society and the walk was held under their direction. Four years ago it was decided that the money raised by the walk would be dedicated to local efforts and have gone to the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund which operates under the umbrella of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. Another option for this money, if so directed, will go into the walk's endowment fund which has an attractive tax deduction.

There are a number of ways to participate in this activity. Individual walkers can collect contributions using the walker registration form available at two locations in downtown Charlevoix — Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, located at 408 Bridge Street or Vacation Properties Network, located at 203 Bridge Street.

Registration for the walk starts at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, May 13, and the walk starts at 9 a.m.

Prizes for walkers will be given away following the walk, in East Park.

Those wishing to make a contribution may do so by sending a check to the Charlevoix County Community Fund, P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727. Print the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund in the memo line.

Scenic Michigan hosts sign, lighting workshop

Charlevoix County township government officials are invited to attend a May 11 sign and lighting workshop hosted by Scenic Michigan. (Above) Scenic Michigan board president, Bethany Goodman (left), accepts a check for $3,000 from Maureen Radke, of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, to fund the upcoming workshop.

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is sponsoring a workshop hosted by Scenic Michigan on the importance of regulating signs and lighting.

Debby Payne, office manager for Scenic Michigan, said this workshop is open to the public.

"It teaches how to write, defend and enforce sign and lighting ordinances," she said.

During the workshop, recommended parts of lighting and sign ordinances will also be discussed.

"It tells why communities should be involved in sign and lighting issues, the First Amendment issues in crafting a sign ordinance and how good lighting promotes public safety, improves community appearance and saves money," Payne said.

The two main components of the workshop, said Charlevoix County Planning Department director, Larry Sullivan, should be important to everyone in the community.

"This will provide some very valuable information on signage standards," he said. "But, there is the issue of freedom of expression, so you have to be certain that you're not running afoul of some of those protected rights."

Sullivan said some municipalities in Michigan have implemented "content neutral" standards. And in some places, political yard signs have been regulated.

"I think this could very well provide some language that could be utilized by all the surrounding communities Right now, they do vary considerably from community to community," he said. "And when rules vary, it can be frustrating to people in the signage industry and people with businesses."

Sullivan said, while local officials, members of planning commissions and zoning administrators are the ideal audience, this workshop is for "anyone that's concerned about the appearance of our community."

He added, "Some people have referred to signs as litter on a stick. That's one perception of signage. But, signs perform a very valuable function, so I think the business community as well should be interested in this."

The other aspect of the workshop will deal with lighting issues.

WORKSHOP

Who: Scenic Michigan

What it is: Sign and lighting workshop.

When: 7 p.m., May 11

Where: Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office

"It's increasingly more and more difficult to see the stars in the sky at night," Sullivan said. "There's a perception that exists that more light is better — that's not always necessarily the case."

Sullivan said it has been proven that the brightest lights do not always make for the safest roads, parking lots and footpaths.

"Generally, we're using too much light. With more light, you lose your visibility (night vision) and with lower light you can see further," he said. "In terms of security, a lot of businesses think if they have bright lighting they have increased security, when I'm more likely to be attracted to a flash-light bouncing around in a dark parking lot."

The workshop will focus on the concept of reducing the amount of lighting used and how to do so.

"It's also an issue of types of lighting fixtures and what is the minimum lighting needed to provide safety and security, but not negatively impact our neighbors," he said. "The idea is to be more effective and efficient with the use of lighting while reducing energy consumption and costs."

Scenic Michigan, who will be presenting the workshop, has its headquarters in Petoskey.

The organization works to sustain visually pleasing communities through the regulation of signs and lighting.

According to their Web site, Scenic Michigan is a, "Statewide coalition of grassroots organizations, elected officials, and citizens working to preserve and protect the beauty of Michigan's roadsides."

Scenic Michigan worked to make it a felony to destroy trees or shrubs within a highway right-of-way, ban new construction of double-decker billboards, increase the spacing between billboards, ban tobacco advertising on billboards and increase billboard permit fees.

They have also worked with the Michigan Department of Transportation to develop a resolution prohibiting advertisements of age-restricted products and the installation of tourist oriented directory signs.

Scenic Michigan works with the Michigan legislature, conducts educational programs and acts as an information clearing house.

According to Scenic Michigan, tourist oriented directory signs and logo signs work better than billboards at promoting businesses from the highways and are at least as effective at directing traffic as billboards.

The workshop will take place at 7 p.m. on May 11 in the training room in the basement of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's building.

Red Cross blood drive to take place on May 18

An American Red Cross Blood Drive, will take place from noon to 5:45 p.m. on Thursday, May 18, at the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church on the corner of U.S. 31 North and Meach Street.

To make an appointment, call 1-800-448-3543 (800-GIVE LIFE) or drop in.

Donors are asked to bring your American Red Cross donor card or government photo identification.

Lady Rayder soccer posts three shutouts

The Charlevoix Rayder girls' soccer team continued its winning streak last week tallying three more shutouts.

The first 3-0 win came on April 24 when the Rayders faced Cheboygan at home.

Sophomore Becca Madison got the Rayders on the board in the first half with a direct free kick from 20 yards out placed nicely in the upper corner of the net. Although the Rayders had several other opportunities, the first half ended 1-0.

Cheboygan came out with pressure, managing several shots, to begin the second stanza but Charlevoix settled down and took control of play.

When senior sweeper Stevie Murray went down with a foot bruise, freshman Meridith Rich came in on the Rayder's defensive line. Rich almost immediately took a corner kick opportunity and laced a shot off a defender into the net for the second goal. Minutes later, Rich again sent a corner across for the assist to Madison, who sent a nice shot home for the final score.

Senior goalkeeper Laura Nitchman earned her fourth shutout of the season with 10 saves. The Rayders also received good play from defenders Emily Foster and Lisa Kuebler, midfielders Zita Anderson, Madison, KC McCary and Danni Bergmann, and senior forward Madison Ramsey. Rich was awarded Rayder Player of the Game.

Going into the crucial Lake Michigan Conference game April 27 when Charlevoix faced Traverse City St. Francis, both teams were undefeated.

But only Charlevoix would maintain its flawless record shutting out Traverse City St. Francis 6-0.

The Rayders had the best of the play managing 18 shots to 8 for the Liberty on the night. Nitchman earned her fifth shutout of the season.

Charlevoix got on the board early when Murray sent a corner across to fellow senior Madison Ramsey for the volley into the net. Ramsey managed three goals on the night, working tirelessly from her forward spot. Charlevoix's other goals came from the center midfield, McCary (2) and Madison (1). Junior, Lori Zimmerman, contributed two assists and earned the Rayder Player of the Game award. Other assists came from junior, Zita Anderson, and Madison (2).

"This was a good test for the young Rayders against a Liberty team that passes the ball well. Traverse City was playing without a few key players and I'm sure that they will be better when we play the rematch in late May," coach Carol Madison said.

The Lady Rayders' third win came on April 29 when they left Glen Lake scoreless beating them 5-0.

The Rayders managed 32 shots and extended playing time for reserves in the non conference win. Anderson got the Rayders moving in the first half with a solid shot past the Laker's keeper, who played well with 27 saves on the day.

Madison Ramsey added three goals and Madison had one. Assists went to Murray (2), Madison, Ariel Ramsey and Rich.

Anderson was named Rayder Player of the Game for her tireless efforts at midfield.

Charlevoix, now 5-0 in conference and 7-0 overall, hosted Lake Michigan Conference foe Boyne City on Monday, May 1. Results from the showdown were not available by press time.

Softball team to host Traverse City St. Francis Tuesday, May 9

"This will be the meat of our schedule, if we come out unscathed we will be looking pretty good," he said.

On Tuesday, April 25, the Rayders claimed both games against Harbor Springs — 13-3 in the first game and 5-3 in the second.

In the first game, Hoffman pitched six strikeouts to provide her team with an early lead.

Faust offered four strikeouts in the second game to give her team the win.

The solid pitching effort was bolstered by continued development in the hitting department as Hoffman (2-4), Faust (2-4), Genevieve Kochanny (3-4), and Janay Drost (2-4) each solidified the team's lead.

The Charlevoix varsity girls' softball team plays again at 4:30 p.m., on Tuesday, May 9 at home against Traverse City St. Francis.

Rayder baseball lets go of lead and loses games in late innings

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

The Charlevoix boys' varsity baseball team felt the sting of strong pitching and aggressive offense in a double header against Elk Rapids on Friday, April 28, losing 5-2 in the first game and 8-6 in the second.

Rayder coach Allen Telgenhof said his team's biggest challenge came from the Elks' pitching department.

"Cory William is one of our league's best pitchers, he shut us down," he said.

In the first game, an RBI single from Cliff Jones, a triple from Jon Putman, and a single from Kyle DeYoung highlighted the Rayders' offensive play.

Matt Teuscher boasted six strikeouts and only three walks in the six innings he pitched.

In the second game, the Rayders scored four runs to take a 6-2 lead in the fourth inning. They lost that lead as Elk Rapids scored six runs in the top of the fifth without an out, to take the lead, in a rally started by a Rayder error.

Two hits and an RBI from Danny Waldron, an RBI and a run scored from Putman, a single and a run from DeYoung, and a run singled in from Teuscher contributed to the Rayders' short-lived lead.

Eddie Waldron pitched four innings of the evenings nightcap with one walk and four strikeouts as Teuscher threw a perfect inning of relief and Danny Waldron threw a shutout inning.

Earlier in the week, the Rayders fell in two sixth inning turnarounds to Harbor Springs, losing the first game 2-1 and the second 4-3 on Tuesday, April 25.

Charlevoix led 1-0 heading into the bottom of the sixth inning of the first game when Harbor Springs scored twice to win. In his first game of the season, Danny Waldron offered five strikeouts, six walks and only one hit in the five innings he pitched.

In the second game of the evening, the Rayders led 3-2 heading into the bottom of the sixth as Harbor Springs again scored two runs in their last bats to pull out the turnaround.

Ty Telgenhof pitched five innings, giving up only three hits, walking six and striking out five.

Coach Telgenhof said he believes the losses can be a learning experience for his team.

"I was very disappointed to let two wins get away from us like that but, we are still a young team and putting teams away is something we need to learn," he said.

The varsity boys' baseball team will be playing at the Birch Run Tournament at 10 a.m., on Saturday, May 6. They will then play at 4:15 p.m., on Tuesday, May 9 at Cheboygan.

Deadline nears for Ferris State University golf camp scholarships

Those that participated in the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association's 2005 summer program are eligible for scholarships to attend the prestigious golf camp at Ferris State University this summer.

Dean Davenport, executive director of the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association, announced that the association's board members approved renewing the scholarship program with Ferris State University.

Awards will likely be given to five deserving junior golfers for scholarships enabling them to spend a week on the campus of Ferris State University.

Applications are due by May 13. Applicants must have participated in more than half of the past summer's sessions and be at least 12 years of age to be eligible. Application packets were mailed recently to over 60 youngsters that qualified for consideration. Winners are selected because of their dedication and interest in golf, their potential and the manner in which they respond to the official application questions.

During the past eight years 72 junior golfers from the Charlevoix area have been awarded scholarships.

More information regarding this year's program, the need for volunteer mentors and June 9 registration procedures, will be announced soon.

For more information on the scholarship call Davenport at (231) 547-6433.

too. He said the conference provided a boost to local restaurants, lodging establishments and retailers during a traditionally slow traffic time.

He said 100 percent of lodging establishments affiliated with the convention and visitors bureau offered discounts to conference attendees.

Bila said this support from the community could be a clincher in bringing the festival back.

"The special rates left a lasting impression on a lot of people. With the cost of gas a lot of people were apprehensive to drive up but were welcomed with low prices," she said.

While vacancy numbers are not yet known, on Monday, May 1, Sell's group distributed a survey to gauge community response to this event.

"We suspect we'll hear positive results," he said.

While the association does incur costs in planning the event, Bila said expenses are outweighed by exposure for those exhibiting and those promoting events.

"There was so much value to this," she said.

While this early season boost was embraced by the community, if the festival returns, Sell and Charlevoix Venetian Festival Inc. board president, Dan Barron, said it should be pushed forward about two weeks, to mid-May.

According to Barron, high winds out of the southeast almost blew out plans for fireworks over Round Lake, Saturday night, April 29.

"If the wind picked up any further, it may have prompted a cancellation of the display, which we wouldn't want to do. But safety first," he said.

Master pyrotechnicians Frank Loffredo, Jr. and Ron Greco of Colonial Fireworks Co., John McLean Jr. chief of Coast Guard Station Charlevoix and city fire chief Paul Ivan, all approved moving forward with the show.

The fireworks display included a $25,000 donation from Colonial Fireworks Co., the business that handles the famed Venetian Festival fireworks show, a $1,000 donation from Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority and $4,000 from the convention and visitors bureau.

Bila didn't take issue with the time frame but did say promotion for next year's event, whether it be in Charlevoix or elsewhere, will start sooner and will be more far reaching. She plans to contact over 400 car clubs in the Midwest to be included in next year's event.

Barron agreed and said with more time to plan, the magnitude of the event's impact could be even more significant.

"From my perspective, if they (Michigan Festivals and Events Association board of directors) have an interest, we could establish more events, actually in the downtown area," he said.

While the excitement of spring characterized the mood around town during the kickoff, Charlevoix City Police Chief Gerard Doan said the crowd of about 2,000 people who on Saturday night filled East Park, were tame. He had seven patrolmen working that night, joined by deputies with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office and state troopers from the Michigan State Police Petoskey Post.

The only incident Doan reported was a disturbance called in Saturday night citing boisterous revelers walking the city streets.

Starburst dress debuts at prom

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

She's a little sweet, a little sour and pretty darn fruity, but only because her prom dress is made from the wrappers of Starburst candies.

When she began tearing, folding and gluing the candy wrappers onto the dress last November, Charlevoix High School senior, Rachel Barta, didn't know what she was getting herself into.

"Last November I started working on it," she said. "Each wrapper is split into two and there are 20,108 on the dress so far — there will probably be 30,000 by the time it's done."

Perhaps it wasn't Barta's lifelong dream to construct a garment from food packaging, but when a friend dared her to do it, she couldn't resist.

"I was going to make a belt out of them, and then somebody was like, 'Why don't you make a dress?' So I did."

Barta, the daughter of Lee and Sue Barta of Charlevoix, said when her elders first heard of her intentions, they were skeptical at best.

"I bought the material and my grandma made me the dress," she said. "She wasn't so happy when she found out I was putting all kinds of stuff on it, but now she thinks it's cool."

She added, "My parents think it's great and my mom's impressed that I stuck with it."

Barta said this is probably the wackiest thing she's ever done.

"I'd never heard of anyone making a dress out of Starburst wrappers before," she said. "But now I guess there's a girl from Boyne City who's making one for next

Mother's Day sweet retreat for local duo

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Mother's Day for many is a typical sun-up to sun-down rat race — changing diapers, chasing children and trying to quench their never-ending thirst for entertainment.

Many dread bits and pieces of the experience while most soak in and cherish the special day.

For one Charlevoix mom, Mother's Day, May 14, is for her to cherish. She is still here to hold her head high and say, "My name is mom. And my mother is one amazing lady."

Colleen Griffin, a 43-year-old mother of two, was diagnosed with intraductal breast cancer in 2002. She underwent a lumpectomy at that time, followed by chemotherapy and radiation.

Just when she thought she had beat the disease, in 2005, it reared its ugly head again, in the same area.

While her children are pursuing their adult lives, Bobby Tripp, 22, and Danielle Tripp, 18, Griffin said her first thought was that of any mother, "Who will take care of them if I don't pull through?"

She opted to go with a bilateral mastectomy, followed by chemotherapy and reconstructive surgery and now celebrates her remission.

This Mother's Day, as Griffin kicks back and enjoys the day, she will honor her mother, Sandy Allard, who she credits with getting her back on her feet.

"She and my husband (Mark Griffin) have been an amazing support system," she said. "She was there through both surgeries. She wouldn't leave my side until she knew I could take care of myself. She's not only my mother, she's my best friend."

The two plan to relax, dine and celebrate their experiences as mothers.

Griffin said she feels motherhood is all about being in tune with a child's needs, an outlook she learned first-hand from Allard.

"Being there for them when they're down and out is so important," she said.

Allard, who lost her husband, Daniel Harnett, in an accident when Griffin, one of her five children, was only 14.

She ran her husband's business, which she eventually sold, and got remarried to Fritz Allard. Allard worked full-time and cared for her huge combined Harnett-Allard family, which included nine children.

Griffin said she will celebrate two things this Sunday — her mother, who she credits as her inspiration and her experience with cancer which has given her a new outlook on life.

"I live every day to its fullest. If there's something to go do, I want to do it. I don't want to miss out on anything," she said.

year's prom."

Barta folds the wrappers into what some call an "idiot chain." The finished product is a zig-zag approximately an inch or so wide which she then glues to the dress.

While Barta is still in production on her kooky creation, she speculates a finished product by the day before Charlevoix High School's prom which will take place this Saturday, May 13.

"The whole front and back of the dress is done and I'm working on the sides and top right now," she said.

Many students from Barta's school, even one's she doesn't know, are saving their Starburst wrappers for her project. A point, she said, which helps her cut down on the cost.

"So far, if you bought each one of the packages for 75 cents, it would be like $600 just for the Starburst," she said.

The 18-year-old said she chose this type of candy wrapper because it was easy to fold.

If there is time, she hopes to make a tie for her date, a friend from Petoskey, to match her colorful dress.

And, while she enjoys creating her own fashions, her future isn't in Starburst stock. She plans to attend North Central Michigan College to pursue a degree in nursing.

Barta, a Charlevoix High School senior, will attend prom festivities this Saturday, May 13 at Castle Farms.

Sheriff Lasater issues tips to ensure safe prom season

Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater encourages teens and parents to make prom safe by following the law.

To ensure that teens stay safe during prom season, sheriff Lasater issued a reminder that underage drinking is not only dangerous but it is against the law.

"You can't have a memorable experience at prom if you are unable to remember any of it because you have had too much to drink," sheriff Lasater said. "Be safe on prom night. If you are a teen, don't drink or use drugs. If you are a parent, remain vigilant about what your teen is doing. By making it inconvenient for kids to drink, you may save a life."

Sheriff Lasater offers the following tips to prevent underage drinking and keep this year's prom safe for everyone in the community:

• Parents and other adults must remember that underage drinking is against the law. Not only is furnishing alcohol to someone under 21 a crime, it sends the wrong message.

• Parents and teens both need to understand that the "everybody is doing it" excuse is just plain wrong. Being liked should never mean giving up your personal responsibility or caving in to social pressures. Parents have an obligation to set boundaries that tell teens which behaviors are appropriate and which are not.

• Everyone in a community is responsible for preventing alcohol-related injuries. At prom time retailers, limousine drivers, hotel owners and others in the community have a responsibility to report suspicious activity to law enforcement. Suspicious activities may include: Drinking and/or visible intoxication of youth; someone purchasing a large quantity of alcohol; someone furnishing alcohol to a minor; a teen using a false form of identification; or prom parties hosted in hotel rooms.

OPINIONS

The First Amendment
Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Funeral protest ban questions freedom of speech

Benjamin Gohs
'Staff writer'

The Michigan Senate recently voted unanimously on a bill now headed to Gov. Jennifer Granholm's desk which, if passed, will prevent demonstrations within 500 feet of a funeral. Violators would be punished with two years in prison and a $5,000 fine. A second offense would carry four years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

The Senate is pushing the legislation because a group from the Westboro Baptist church of Kansas, founded by the not quite right Rev. Fred Phelps, stands near military funerals shouting, "God hates you" and holding signs which read, "God hates fags."

This group of cheery individuals is certain our men and women in the military are being slaughtered in the Middle East as punishment from God for the American toleration of homosexuals.

While the only funeral I'll ever protest is my own, my devotion to the U. S. Constitution is unwavering. And, my queasiness isn't from the Senate's intent, but instead from their logic.

Let's say Sgt. Smith dies fighting for my rights. Then, for reasons known only to the voices in Rev. Phelps' head, I protest at Smith's funeral. The Senate has chosen to honor said fallen soldier by outlawing those freedoms for which he fought. Hey, I said it was the logic of politicians.

This isn't about whether you agree with the war, homosexuality or respect for the dead, this is a case of the government using an emotionally charged issue to dismantle the already threadbare First Amendment.

If Granholm signs this bill, the First Amendment might as well read, "Congress shall make all laws respecting allowable forms of expression within the arbitrary guidelines of the federal government's whimsy. P.S. Thomas Jefferson can go suck an egg."

Indeed, the freedoms of speech and expression in America do not guarantee decency, taste, respect, equality or tolerance — nor should they. If nothing else, we have the right to offend and the right to be offended.

Noam Chomsky wrote, "If we don't believe in freedom of expression for people we despise, we don't believe in it at all."

Unless citizens of "the land of the free and the home of the brave," are ever-vigilant in demanding freedom and remaining brave enough to accept the often vile consequences, narrow-minded elements in our government may next outlaw your right to protest near an abortion clinic or a Ku Klux Klan rally.

Our soldiers are not thin-skinned cowards. And if they are willing to put their lives on the line to ensure our freedoms, the least we can do is exercise those freedoms.

Phelps' hunch may eventually burn in hell, but until then, they must be afforded all the rights and privileges of U.S. citizens — our Constitution demands it.

The tyranny which conspires to control theological, prurient and political expression doesn't always arrive by the gun's muzzle. More often than not we are oppressed by the well-intentioned busybody compelled to dictate the course of our lives.

I only hope our Canadian-born governor knows more about the U.S. Constitution than our state senators do, or the censor's noose will surely continue to tighten.

Regardless of which side of this issue you're on, you can let the governor know how you feel by calling (517) 335-7858 or writing to: Governor Jennifer M. Granholm, P.O. Box 30013, Lansing, MI 48909.

Celebrating mothers of the past, present and future

Gayle Gennett
'A look at life'

Brightly colored daffodils and tulips let us know that spring has arrived and they quietly remind us that a very special day will soon be here.

In this beautiful month of May we set aside one day to honor the person who brought us into the world cooking, cuddling and kicking. Mother's Day recognizes how special moms truly are and we usually respond with sending flowers, cards and (as a reminder to my husband), remodel her kitchen. In my naiveté, I thought Mother's Day was an idea from the creative art department at Hallmark Cards. You can only imagine my surprise as I delved a little further and discovered my thoughts couldn't be farther from the truth.

The earliest Mother's Day can be traced to ancient Greece when they honored "Rhea" mother of the gods. All of my Greek friends have bragging rights on establishing this holiday. Servants in merry old England celebrated, "Mothering Sunday," as this was their only day off to return home to visit their mum. OK, one day off a year for the servants and one day off for the mothers. My question is, "When the servants left for the day, who took over?"

As Christianity spread, the church celebrated and honored the spiritual power that gave them life. Mother's Day during that period of time was moved to the fourth Sunday of Lent. By 1907, Ms. Anna Jarvis campaigned for a national Mother's Day. Her letter writing helped push this into a holiday that would be celebrated across the United States. Her tenacity also moved Mother's Day to the second Sunday of May to honor the death of her own mother, President Woodrow Wilson, wanting to please all mothers including his own, made it official by proclaiming the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day — the new national holiday.

So, there you have it. Hallmark didn't invent it and I need to remind all of my friends, aunts, sisters and mother that you are special all of the time and I don't need a date to remind me.

Let's honor mothers everywhere by remembering to keep smiling, not frowning, because you don't want your face to freeze that way. Remember that just because all your friends are doing it you can still make your own decision and still be their friend if you disagree. Veggies may not grow out of your ears but eating two portions of them a day will reduce your cholesterol. And a good reminder from mom's everywhere, "If you don't have anything nice to say don't say anything at all."

To all the stay-at-home moms, I celebrate you as I'm reminded that as a wage earner your yearly income would be $134,000 — a combined daycare provider, janitor, housekeeper and cook. Plus you reap the benefits that money can't buy — seeing the first steps, first words and not missing any of it. Maybe you should bring up back pay?

I celebrate all my working friends that balance home and work life, knowing it's not easy but they pass on their great skill of organization to their children and teach them to become a little more independent.

I celebrate all my retired friends who still worry and care about their grown up children because their children will always be their babies.

And last of all, I celebrate my adoptive mother who raised me and my birth mother who gave me life, for without you I wouldn't be sharing my thoughts with anyone. Thank you mothers everywhere — go forth and celebrate.

Letters to the editor

Honk for Women in Black

You may have seen them as you drove or walked by — a group of women, standing quietly on a street corner, no arm waving, no shouting, just a dignified presence, impressive by its obvious determination to further a cause which they fervently believe in — a protest to the war in Iraq — a protest to all war.

These are the "Women in Black" — a movement which started at the onset of the Iraq war and has gained momentum both nationally and internationally.

Women have not borne the pain of childbirth to have their sons and daughters march off to war and become cannon fodder for their country's military adventures. Let them grow up to be warriors for peace not young lives snuffed out in senseless combat for some dreamed up, vague cause.

Some of the "biggies" in Washington may have seen them, grinned and said, "Ho hum — not another protest. Oh well, it won't last long." Pay attention, fellas. The American public is becoming increasingly weary, resentful and angry at the erroneous information the government tries to shove down its throat. How can we sort out fact from fiction, veracity from duplicity? A hopeless task.

I am reminded of a movie way back, in which people in Manhattan, threw open their windows, stuck their heads out and shouted, "I'm mad as hell and I'm not going to take it any more." As they say in Germany, "Genug ist genug (enough is enough)."

So, as you drive by these women who are there, and who will be there, come snow, rain or shine, every Friday at noon, toot your horn and give them a wave of affirmation.

These are the "Women in Black" — God bless 'em.

'Thanks' for running school board candidates

I just wanted to give my thanks to the four community members that ran for a seat on the Charlevoix School Board. If you won a seat or not you need to be commended for stepping up at a time when it seems only hard decisions have to be made. I don't think that as a community we understand how difficult a situation our school system is in and I can only hope that more people such as you start taking an interest. So, thank you Tom Barnes, John McLean Jr., Jeff Stevens and Dennis Halverson.

I would also like to congratulate Stevens and McLean for winning the two seats that were up for election. I look forward to working with you in the near future. I know I speak for the whole board and administration when I say contact us anytime with any questions you may have or for any help we may give you.

Next I would like to thank Dennis Halverson and Ardeth Weiland for the time that they have put into this board, all extended boards and as the community as well. I've learned much from both of you within this short year I have been on the board. Your commitment for the good of our schools is exemplary. Thank you again.

Lastly, I wish to invite all of the community members to start getting involved. We as a board will be working hard to keep you informed of our situations. However, the best way to stay informed is to start coming to the board meetings which take place at 7 p.m. every second Monday of each month. If you have kids in the system, or not, it's very important to be involved with the happenings of our great schools and more so all the great kids we have coming out of them.

Recognize World War II vets

Editor:
This past year, we topped out with over 2,000 World War II veterans dying per day in the U.S. These heroes from years past are fewer in number now, so less than 1,500 per day are dying until 2015, when 98 percent of them will be gone. Our grand heroes have passed to you and I a much better world for us to live in. They were young high school students that went off to war, to make the world a safer place for us to live in.

I have been reflecting upon the circumstances in which many of our departed comrades, surviving spouses and their children find themselves after their veteran is no longer there to provide for their daily needs. These needs often go unnoticed by those who were once their close associates.

Today, I am in the Color Guard here in Charlevoix County, honoring many veterans at their funerals. My responsibilities toward the memory of a departed veteran, your loved one, does not end at the grave. You and I need to be there, to give attention to the family in time of their loss. Our society should care for and not forget what they did for the world in years gone by.

Robert R. Ware Jr.: March 18, 1913 - April 19, 2006

Robert Ware Jr.

Robert R. Ware, Jr. of Oak Park III, an emeritus member of the Belvedere Club, died peacefully at his Oak Park residence on April 19. He was 93. A memorial service is planned for later this summer in the Chicago suburb.

Bob was born on March 18, 1913, in Chicago, Ill., the first child of Robert and Rea Ware and Elizabeth "Bessie" Dickerson Ware. His paternal grandparents, Elisha Clark Ware and Minnie A. Hanna Ware, were among the earliest to visit the Charlevoix Summer Resort Association, later the Belvedere Club. Five generations of Wares have enjoyed "The Cottage" (#212) in Charlevoix since their forebears first arrived in 1883.

In 1919, when Bob was six, the growing family moved to Oak Park, Ill. Here he attended William Beye Elementary School, where he met his future wife, Betty Craig. He graduated from Oak Park-River Forest High School and attended the University of Chicago, where he majoring in business and was a proud member of Skull & Crescent honorary society as well as Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

On June 22, 1940, he married his childhood sweetheart in Oak Park, Ill. He was employed in the family firm founded by his father and uncles, Ware Brothers Manufacturing/Chicago Roller Skate Co. Learning the business from the ground up, "Robert Junior," as he was known at the plant, eventually rose to the rank of executive vice-president, a position he held until his retirement in 1983.

As a young man, Ware excelled in a number of individual sports such as swimming, wrestling, target shooting, archery, hunting and fishing. His favorite pastime, was sailing — a skill he developed under the expert tutelage of his uncles and father while summering in northern Michigan. One of his greatest thrills was crewing during a Mackinac race aboard Bill Witherspoon's "Bangalore." For many years he sailed his own boats out of Chicago Yacht Club's Monroe Street harbor.

An avid reader, Ware knew long passages of poetry by heart and could recite everything from the soaring Latin verse of Vergil's "Aeneid" to the bawdiest rhymes and barroom ballads. Ware was also a harmonist extraordinaire and until recently could be seen blowing his "harp" in the company of the Oak Park Farmers' Market Musicians.

All of his adult life, Ware was active in the various churches to which he and his family belonged, participating as a Sunday school teacher, choir member, bell ringer, usher, youth chaperone on mission study tours, deacon and elder. At the time of his death, Ware was a member of the First United Church of Oak Park, a merged congregation (UCC and Presbyterian) housed in the former First Congregational Church, his boyhood church.

Preceded in death by Elizabeth, his wife of nearly 42 years, Ware is survived by one brother, Ralph C. "Mike" of San Antonio, Texas; a daughter, Jean W. Hanson of Cleveland Heights, Ohio; two grandsons, Robert and James Hanson; two great-grandchildren, Miles and Andrew; and numerous nieces and nephews.

The family suggests that memorial donations be made to any of the following: American Heart Association; American Indian College Fund; Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation; The Nature Conservancy; Sail Chicago; or a charity of your choice.

New technology transforms voting in Marion Township

Charlevoix Courier Wednesday, May 10, 2006 - PAGE 9

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

On May 2, Marion Township election results were transmitted from one of the oldest township halls using some of the latest and greatest technology.

The township hall, located off Marion Center Road, was built in the late 1800s. The fact that a phone line had never been added wasn't a problem until 2005 when the Help America Vote Act was enacted. The legislation required a change in election technology mandating results be transferred to the Charlevoix County Building, where election results are tallied, via phone line.

During the May 2005 Charlevoix Public Schools election, township clerk Tim Matchett and his fellow election officers took the ballot box to a nearby church where they hooked into a phone line to transfer the results.

"It lengthened the result time. We were the last ones to get our results in," Matchett said.

He said candidates were waiting at the county building and the paky process didn't work out.

"We needed a phone line to get the results transferred quickly. But there's no use for a phone line at the hall, except on election day," he said.

Township officials maintain home offices from which they conduct business and accept calls further supporting Matchett's claim that a township hall phone line is uneeded.

Matchett said the monthly service fee is a waste of money.

"The (Marion Township) board (of trustees) talked about it and we all said if there's an alternative we would like to pursue it," Matchett said.

This is where the township board used its resources to solve a problem. In June 2005, the Marion Township Planning Commission granted a special use permit to co-owners of Charlevoix Wireless. Desmond Milligan and Jacob Jensen, to build an antenna on the former Hoskins Manufacturing site off M-66 to provide high-speed wireless Internet service.

Jensen explained that the transmissions through Charlevoix Wireless support Voice Over Internet Protocol or VoIP, which allows customers to utilize functions like Internet telephones, and provided Marion Township election officials the on-site phone line they needed on election day.

"And we were the first in this year," Matchett proudly said.

Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon said this was the first time wireless transmission of election results has been done in Charlevoix County.

"Everyone else uses a phone line," she said.

She said her preference is use of a phone line because there are two problems with wireless transmission.

"One, it's not secure. And two, it's not always dependable. I hope it continues to work excellent for them. I did tell them that if I don't hear from them by 8:10 p.m., by 8:15 p.m. it better be hooked into a phone line," she said.

Matchett has already contracted with Milligan to provide the wireless service for the August primary election and again in November for the general election.

This may also be the direction taken in Norwood Township, where the township hall is also without a phone line. Brannon said members of the Norwood Township Board of Trustees have been advised that a transmission solution must be implemented by the August primary election.

Using this box-shaped antenna, representatives of Charlevoix Wireless were able to assist in the election process in Marion Township. Norwood Township may have to explore this technology as well.

Bradford's relocates to Captain's Corner Plaza

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Bradford's Master Dry Cleaning's Charlevoix customers will have to bring apparel wearing a "dry clean only" tag to a new location.

After almost two decades serving the dry cleaning needs of area residents and visitors from their Hurlhut location near the street's intersection with Bridge Street, co-owners of Bradford's Master Dry Cleaners, Jeff and Brian Bradford, have moved the service store.

"We've had a positive response to the move," Brian Bradford said.

The new location, which they opened in April, is the former site of The Mariner Laundry laundromat located off M-66 in the Captain's Corner Plaza.

"The former owner wanted out. It was a win, win situation for her to sell and us to buy," Brian Bradford said.

The move brought with it more space from which to serve customers and an upgrade to the store. They completely remodeled the facility including installing new dryers and adding larger capacity washing machines, a new soap machine and upgrading to granite countertops at the service desk. They now offer wash and fold service as well.

"The facility was fairly dated. We came in and made improvements to help both our customers and our employees," Brian Bradford said.

The new site currently employs six part-time employees.

While improvements have been made, they came at no cost to existing Bradford's of Charlevoix clients, who continue with the same price table offered at the Hurlhut location.

Bradford's specializes in all dry cleaning including servicing special materials like leather, suede and fur. They also offer alteration services through local tailor, Karen Baker. The brothers recently added a high-speed production flat iron press to its line-up of machines to offer high-volume bed sheet pressing. Brian said this is a perfect fit for area hotels gearing up for a busy tourism season.

The machine has been installed at Bradford's of Petoskey but drop-off service can be done through the City street superintedent to retire May 23

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

The leader backing the work crew that keeps Charlevoix in tip top shape is leaving the roost.

John Martin, superintendent of the City of Charlevoix Street Department, has announced his May 23 retirement.

"Life's too short. There are other things I want to do yet," he said.

Martin, 63, who started with the city in 1972 as a patrolman under former police chief Jack Mol, has worn many important hats in the city. One was the fire chief's hat — he accepted that position in April 1982 and held it for 10 years. The second is that from which he'll retire this month, after over 14 years of service.

He said the move to the street department from the fire department was a natural step for him. In spite of his dedication to the fire department, Martin said his expertise prior to signing on with the city was as a contractor.

Since coming aboard, Martin has operated the growing street department with fewer staff members. His staff currently includes five equipment operators and a mechanic, only one of which he hired since becoming superintendent. The other five have been there as long, if not longer, than he has.

"We're just doing more of everything," he said. "I schedule the work and make sure it gets done."

Right now, department workers are in the throws of refurbishing benches and picnic tables for city parks and picnic pavilions, and repainting the city's 50 green garbage bins.

With cool weather quickly warming and sunny days becoming more common, the crew is also busy patching holes in city streets and gearing up for a busy mowing season. During the peak tourist season, Martin's crew grows to include 17 part-time workers who tackle beach cleanup as well as mowing and maintenance at 30 locations stretching from the city's north to south limits.

They also assist in watering the petunia baskets along Bridge Street.

In the winter, Martin's five-man team is in charge of keeping city streets and 10 miles of sidewalks clear of snow and ice.

"You name it, we do it," Martin said.

Martin, who has maintained Charlevoix for over a decade, couldn't pinpoint his greatest accomplishment as superintendent.

Instead, he said he takes great pride in the whole shiny package he's leaving behind.

"Just look around town. Over the years, you do this, you do that. We kind of make Charlevoix what it is," he said.

Martin, is a 1960 graduate of Charlevoix High School and a resident of Marion Township, where he lives with his wife, Sonja.

His plan for retirement? More work of course. Martin plans to join his son, Mike Martin in their paving business, Asphalt Maintenance Service, operated out of a site off Clark Road.

Martin will also continue in his Marion Township Planning

Commissioner's seat which he has held for over five years.

Charlevoix City manager, Mike Wiesner, received 12 applications for the superintendent's job. Charlevoix resident Pat Elliott, landscape director for Site Planning Development Inc., has been named his replacement.

"I think under John's leadership the street department, and I stress the whole department, has raised the maintenance bar in the community. For the size of the crew we have, I'm very pleased with what they're able to get done and the quality of work they perform," he said.

"Not to downplay John, but any organization always look to improve. Whether we can or not remains to be seen, but that's my goal."

A complete profile on Elliott will appear in next week's Courier.

Bouchard in Charlevoix to discuss Senate platform

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The sheriff of Oakland County stopped into Charlevoix last week to let people know why he should be elected to the U.S. Senate.

Mike Bouchard, 50 of Birmingham, has worked in law enforcement for nearly 20 years with an eight-year stint in the Michigan Senate.

"This is an opportunity to chat with people and find out what's on their minds and let them find out what my background is," he said.

Bouchard, a Republican, hopes to unseat the first Michigan woman elected to the U.S. Senate, Democrat Debbie Stabenow. But, he must first defeat Republican candidates Keith Butler and Jerry Zandstra in the Aug. 8 primary.

The foremost reason Bouchard is running is to help Michigan's ailing economy.

"Michigan is in a unique spot in the nation, by and large. There are only three states in America that have lost jobs two consecutive years, one is Michigan and the other two were hit by hurricanes," he said.

Bouchard said many people in Michigan don't realize how good the economy is in the rest of the country.

"We need that same kind of activity here," he said. "We need some kind of help from Washington and Lansing to help turn Michigan's economy around."

He added, "If kids want to leave the state, that's their choice, if they have to leave the state because there are no jobs, then shame on us."

As a member of the Joint Terrorism Task Force which includes organizations such as the FBI, Bouchard's other major concern is homeland security.

"I know we have some very real problems. I served at ground zero after 9/11 (Sept. 11, 2001) in New York," he said. "So, I know how that all plays out, and I know we've got some huge vulnerabilities that haven't been addressed."

He added, "You look at the response to Katrina — our response system is bureaucratic and overly cumbersome."

The members of the Government Accountability Office recently snuck enough radioactive material across the Michigan-Canadian border to make two dirty bombs.

"It's not a question of if another attack will happen, but when," Bouchard said.

Bouchard said he is right for the Senate seat because he has worked in the real world, unlike some politicians.

"The problem is you have a lot of people in Washington, nice people, but they don't understand a lot of these problems," he said. "Debbie (Stabenow) is a very nice person, I served with her in the state Senate, but she got out of college and immediately went into politics, and she's been there ever since."

He added, "The important thing in our system is you have farmers and police officers and doctors and teachers — a broad base of people serving in political seats who are practitioners in the real world — so when a problem comes down the pike, it can be dealt with."

As a social and fiscal conservative, Bouchard is disgusted with what he sees occurring at the federal level.

"Even the Republicans are spending too much. They're spending my kids' future away with the deficit and the kind of pork that their pouring down the drain in Washington," he said. "They're like kids in the sandbox."

He added, "We need to figure out a way to get back to work."

Bouchard said common sense is out the window, but if elected, he will work to get things in order.

"I don't just talk about doing things, I get them done," he said. "I want to help Michigan get back to work."

Bouchard has a wife and three children.

Current Oakland County Sheriff, Mike Bouchard, had breakfast, May 5 at the Flap Jack Family Restaurant with some potential voters. Bouchard hopes to best Jerry Zandstra and Keith Butler in the August primary to be named the Republican who will eventually face Democratic incumbent, Debbie Stabenow.

Government students discuss legislation project

After studying current major issues including a state-wide smoking ban, alternative fuels, and school funding and discussing their findings with state legislators in Lansing, Charlevoix High School government students returned home to share their experience with two local groups.

This past Thursday, May 4, the students met with the Charlevoix County Democratic Party.

Well informed student presenters were Chuck Mason, Shannon Dibble, Kenny Anderson and Isaac Matchett. Each explained their research, described their experiences in Lansing, fielded questions and asked a few themselves.

They also joined in the general questioning of recently announced Democratic candidate for the state house from the 105th District, Tom Bauer.

The government class project, directed by teacher AnneMarie Conway, allowed the students to study issues in-depth and then share the information with state representatives and senators.

Mason and Anderson researched a state-wide smoking ban and the current bill sponsored by Senator Ray Busham. They said their studies revealed that for over a year, the Michigan Chamber of Commerce has been influential in stalling the bill.

Referring to research by the American Medical Association and Harvard Medical School, Mason said, "There is no other way to put it, people will live better if smoking is banned."

The alarming state of public school finances was the focus of a discussion led by Dibble, a senior at Charlevoix High School.

Dibble pointed to the $900,000 cuts in the school budget in Charlevoix and the expected need to cut $1 million for the next year. Dibble and the audience exchanged comments on the various changes that have been made to Proposal A.

"Proposal A has been changed about 72 times," agreed Charlevoix County Commissioner Connie Saltonstall. "We have to restore the original funding."

When asked what can be done, teacher Conway added, "We need parents to complain."

Dibble highlighted how standards for graduation now include more core classes and foreign languages even though the budget is being cut.

"This is almost impossible," she said. "The state is not addressing the problem, and we are approaching the cliff's edge."

Alternative energy and the potential for state agriculture fascinated Matchett, who presented state legislators with a detailed analysis of the potentials of "bio-mass energy."

Using charts and statistics, Matchett advocated that ethanol based fuels for cars can be a plus for farmers who can plant more corn for the ethanol industry. Pointing to the profits being seen by Minnesota corn farmers and the boom in ethanol from sugar cane production in Brazil for alternative fuels, Matchett said, "Biodiesel and ethanol appear more practical, more stable and more renewable than fossil fuels."

Looking at wind and solar alternatives as well, Matchett addressed legislative aides in Lansing using a power point presentation.

"My concern is that we look at all the options and not do anything. That will harm the environment down the road," he said.

At the end of the evening, Saltonstall said, "These students and their teacher are role models for all of us. We all need to be more actively involved."

Chuck Mason and Kenny Anderson, students in AnneMarie Conway's government class at Charlevoix High School, spoke to a group of area residents and legislators about one of their class projects on May 7 at the Weathervane Restaurant. The project included in-depth research of current social issues and one-on-one discussions with legislators.

City of Charlevoix mayoral race may be contested

Third ward council member Shirley Gibson considers candidacy

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

The November election in the city of Charlevoix is shaping up to be a political shoot out.

Even though the election is over six months away, planning for it has already started.

There will likely be competition for two of three open council seats and the mayor's seat may be contested as well.

Mayor Norman Carlson Jr. is finishing his first term as mayor and was a city councilman for four years prior to being elected mayor in 2004. The 39-year-old father of two said in spite of the enormous amount of time and energy he puts into his role as mayor, he plans to run again. According to city clerk Carol Ochs, his petition, officially stating his intention to run, has not yet been filed at city hall.

Last week, current third ward council member Shirley Gibson picked up a petition to run against mayor Carlson. She said at this time she is unsure whether or not she will file.

Norman Carlson Jr.

If Gibson were to run and lose she would retain her third ward council seat. If she were to win city council would vote on who to appoint to her seat.

In the first ward, councilman Bill Haggard is up for reelection. Haggard has served on and off council for a total of five terms. He was not available by press time to confirm whether or not he will run.

If he does plan to throw his hat in the ring, he will face longtime former city fireman and EMT, Lyle Gennett, who last week filed his petition to run in the first ward.

Gennett, 54, said he doesn't have a beef with Haggard, he just feels he could serve first ward city residents well as their councilman.

Gennett retired from the city fire department in June 2005 after 25 years of service. He said there are a few issues he would advocate as a councilman including creation of a full-time maintenance position at city hall and moving the Venetian Festival carnival out of downtown Charlevoix to the Castle Farms property located off M-66.

There will definitely be a contested second ward race as both incumbent Gabe Campbell and newcomer Greg Stevens have filed petitions to run.

Campbell, 73, said if elected to serve the two-year term, this will be his last go around on city council.

"If I win I'll be 75 at the end of my term and I think it will be time to ride into the sunset," he said.

Campbell, who has spent 10 years as a councilman and two as mayor, said he opted to run again because constituents have approached him and asked that he serve another term.

While competitors in the first and second wards have staked their claim to be in the running for open seats and grumbings of competition for the mayors job have surfaced, third ward competition has yet to be confirmed. As of Tuesday, May 9, no candidates had filed to run for the third ward seat.

Third ward councilman Sherm Chamberlain, whose seat is up in this election, has held the slot since 2000. He said if someone else files to run against him who he feels would serve the third ward well, he won't run again.

However, if no one files or someone files to run against him who he feels brings "prejudicial attitudes" to the table, he'll run for another term. To be eligible to run for mayor or first, second and third ward city council seats, nominating petitions have to be returned to city hall by 4 p.m. on Tuesday, May 16. If more than two candidates file for any of the four open seats there will be a primary election on Aug. 8 to narrow the field to two.

Nominating petitions can be obtained from Ochs at city hall, located at 210 State St. in downtown Charlevoix. For more information, call Ochs at (231) 547-3250.

Charlevoix High School volleyball, softball coaching changes

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Two Charlevoix High School athletics department coaching changes were recently announced.

Marie Volovsek stepped down as the ninth grade girls' volleyball coach and Charlevoix High School mathematics teacher, Anne Gorney, was appointed as the new junior varsity softball coach.

According to Charlevoix High School athletic director Jim Kanine, those in the volleyball program will miss Volovsek, and the softball program is better for the addition of Gorney.

"She's (Gorney) wanted to work in that program for a long time," Kanine said. "She's been very active in the athletic program during the five years I've been here and even before me. So, I'm happy to give her an opportunity to do some coaching."

Kanine said he thinks Volovsek was an outstanding member of the Charlevoix sports organization.

"She done a good job for us. We appreciate her efforts as a part of Liz Grunch's volleyball program and we wish her well," he said.

Volovsek, who teaches physical education at St. Mary School, yoga at Southside Gym and ballroom dancing at Petoskey Community Education, said she resigned her position to spend more time with her family.

"I'll miss the girls, getting to know them and just helping them grow as athletes," she said. "I will continue to be involved as an observer and a fan."

Gorney teaches geometry and advanced math at Charlevoix High School. She has coached freshman volleyball and worked the scoreboard at girls' basketball, volleyball and baseball games.

Gorney said she looks forward to the rest of the softball season.

"It's a great sport with great kids — a great combination," she said. "I hope to accomplish solid team unity, to extend into Tony Zimmerman's (varsity softball coach) program. Tony's doing great stuff at the varsity level and it's exciting to be working under a coach who's that good."

She added, "He brings a lot of passion to it. I can learn from him and he respects what I have to say. He's an all-around great coach and great guy."

Gorney said she receives plenty of help from her assistant coach, Waja Dixon and from Toni Felter who does the score books and helps with practice.

As Gorney's team continues to improve, she is confident they will learn much from one another.

"We're coming along and we're hoping to see good things out of them in the season," she said.

Gorney hopes to teach her girls, not only to enjoy the sport, but to be passionate about it.

"That's what drives you," she said. "And, teamwork is something they're going to need for the rest of their lives."

The Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk will take place on Saturday, May 13.

The walk has raised over $100,000 for breast cancer research, hospice, Charlevoix Area Hospital and Camp Daggett scholarships.

Initially all money collected and donated during this walk went to the National Cancer Society and the walk was held under their direction. Four years ago it was decided that the money raised by the walk would be dedicated to local efforts and have gone to the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund which operates under the umbrella of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. Another option for this money, if so directed, will go into the walk's endowment fund which has an attractive tax deduction.

There are a number of ways to participate in this activity. Individual walkers can collect contributions using the walker registration form available at two locations in downtown Charlevoix — Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, located at 408 Bridge Street or Vacation Properties Network, located at 203 Bridge Street.

Registration for the walk starts at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, May 13, and the walk starts at 9 a.m.

Prizes for walkers will be given away following the walk, in East Park.

Those wishing to make a contribution may do so by sending a check to the Charlevoix County Community Fund, P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727. Print the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund in the memo line.

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club recently donated a table and rustic place settings to the annual Festival of Tables event in Traverse City.

The festival, a fund-raising event open to the public, is scheduled to take place from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, May 13 at the Grand Traverse Resort and Spa.

"It's a great time to get together and enjoy these table decorations designed by both professionals and non-professionals," said garden club member, Linda Weston. "And, there is a silent auction."

Weston added, this event is for, "just about anyone who enjoys a good lunch and wants ideas for decorating for spring."

The theme of the table donated by the garden club is, "Three uninvited guests happen upon breakfast in the woods."

The table and setting, valued by the club at $770 includes four place settings of Lotus Leaf Dinnerware, four place settings of Horn Handles Flatware, custom table linens and chair cushions, three stuffed bears, a bear picture frame, three lighted Christmas trees, a log birdhouse centerpiece and more.

The table and settings can be won in a raffle. A portion of the proceeds go to help the department of Child and Family Services throughout northwestern Michigan.

The club also uses the event as an opportunity to advertise their annual garden walk, which will occur this year on July 13.

Noncompetitive women's triathlon to combat cancer (Above) Charlevoix resident and cancer survivor Michelle Rick-Biddick receives flowers from her friend, Gaye Hodge, after completing a solo triathlon in May 2005. This year, others are joining her in Tri*4*Fun Women's Triathlon, a non-competitive sporting fund-raiser to take place at 11 a.m. on Friday, May 19.

File photo

Cub Scouts to conduct flag disposal ceremony

Charlevoix Cub Scouts Pack 11 will be conducting a flag disposal ceremony at its May 22 pack meeting.

Flags that are no longer of service to individuals or businesses in the community can be brought to the pack meeting scheduled to take place at 7:30 p.m. on May 22 at Charlevoix Elementary School, located at 13513 Division Street.

To arrange pick-up of flags, call (231) 547-6862.

Charlevoix resident and cancer survivor Michelle Rick-Biddick is coordinating a women's triathlon to boost cancer awareness, research and education.

Rick-Biddick was diagnosed with breast cancer on Jan. 29, 2004. She said an early mammogram detected her cancer and saved her life. Her hope is to get more people aware of the importance of having mammograms and yearly physicals, which just might save one more life.

In 2005, she chose to run a personal triathlon to raise funds for two cancer support groups she avidly supports: Charlevoix Area Hospital's "Circle of Strength" and the Charlevoix/Emmet County Relay for Life.

This year, she invites survivors and other supporters to join her in Tri*4*Fun Women's Triathlon, a non-competitive sporting event to take place at 11 a.m. on Friday, May 19.

A mandatory pre-race meeting will take place at 10 a.m. at Shanahan Field at the corner of Waller and Old Orchard roads.

The event will include a scenic 20K bike, a 5K run and a half mile indoor pool swim. The bike portion starts in Petoskey and winds along the shore of Lake Michigan and ends at the community pool. The run extends from the pool, along a rural road and loops back to the pool property.

Participants can register to participate in all three events individually or as a team. Registration fees are $100 for a team of two or three and $50 per individual.

This year's triathlon is a fund-raiser for two local cancer support groups in Charlevoix and Emmet counties, Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders and Circle of Strength.

Registration forms are available at Harbor Health and Fitness, located at 110 Clinton Street in Charlevoix and at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool located at 11905 U.S. 31 North in Charlevoix. Women ages 14 and older are eligible to participate.

A post-race party for participants and volunteers will take place from 2 to 3 p.m. the day of the event at Harbor Health and Fitness.

For more information contact Michelle Rick-Biddick at (231) 547-4369 or e-mail WATCH@Core.com.

Financial support for Tri*4*Fun can be sent to 7510 Dalton Road, Charlevoix, MI, 49720, attention M. Rick-Biddick. Checks can be made out to Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders or Circle of Strength-CAH Foundation.

Recovery High students assist local family in reaching goal

The recent story of a terminally ill mother's attempts to raise money to allow her and her children to return to her homeland tugged at the hearts of local teenagers who themselves have experienced hardship.

Charlevoix County Probate and Family Court operates a community based substance abuse program called Recovery High, as well as a court school in Boyne Falls called Great Lakes Academic Center. According to probate Judge Fred Mulhauser, young people involved in both programs wanted to do something to help raise money for the family.

"These kids, on their own initiative, raised almost $1,500 to help this family achieve their dream," Mulhauser said.

Tin Allen, a Recovery High foster parent and staff member at Great Lakes Academic Center, said the kids played a large role in making the spaghetti dinner benefit a reality.

According to Allen, 35 young people from Great Lakes Academic Center, Recovery High and Boyne City Alternative Education volunteered to set up, prepare and serve food for over 200 people at the event. In addition to the meal, a silent auction was held to raise funds.

"The underpinning of recovery and rehabilitation is to care about others and to realize that what you do affects how other people experience their lives. Every one of the kids who stepped forward with compassion to help this family, took a giant step forward in their own lives as well," Mulhauser said.

Danni Sherwood, program coordinator for the Recovery High program, said the $1,427 raised was presented to Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders founder, Linda Gardner, to assist Boyne City resident Daniela Emig and her children Sasha and Kevin in their relocation to Germany. The Emigs flew home on Thursday, May 4, to be reunited with their extended family.

Mother's Day Walk for Peace to take place on Saturday

The Women for Peace of Charlevoix County are sponsoring a Mother's Day Walk for Peace at noon on Saturday, May 13, in Charlevoix. Participants are asked to gather at 11:45 a.m. at the bandshell in East Park, to wear a black armband and to bring a flower. Following a short ceremony, refreshments will be served in the meeting room of the Charlevoix Public Library, located at 109 Clinton St.

Lady Rayder soccer team loses first game this season to Gaylord

The Rayder girls' soccer team, coming off two strong wins, dropped their first match of the season to Division 2 Gaylord on Friday, May 5.

Gaylord scored early in the first half on a breakaway, in the 2-1 Rayder loss. The Blue Devils then scored again early in the second half on a direct kick from the 20-yard marker.

Charlevoix rebounded and began to dominate play. The Ramsey sisters connected to get the Rayders on the board when older sister Madison assisted sophomore Ariel on a goal. The Rayders had several other chances to tie the match but couldn't get it past the keeper on 13 second half shots. Ariel Ramsey was named the Rayder Player of the Game.

"This was a good match for us in preparation for the tournaments. We played well in the second half and didn't panic. We just ran out of time to score," coach Carol Madison said.

This loss was preceded by yet another star studded shutout when the Rayders beat Elk Rapids 1-0 in overtime.

The Rayders prevailed in a physical Lake Michigan Conference match at Elk Rapids on Thursday, May 4.

Charlevoix, playing without goalie, Laura Nitchman, received an outstanding effort in goal from freshman Tammy Potter to outlast the Lady Elks. Potter turned away 14 shots, including three breakaway opportunities to record the Rayder's seventh shutout of the season.

Charlevoix managed 21 shots on the night but was unable to connect during regulation as the Elks packed the defense in. Finally, just a few minutes into overtime, senior sweeper, Stevie Murray, sent a beautiful corner kick opportunity across the goal mouth. Freshman, KC McCary, headed the ball toward the net where it was bobbled by the Elk Rapids keeper. Junior, Lori Zimmerman, put the ball away for the Rayder victory.

Charlevoix received outstanding effort throughout the roster. Potter was named Rayder Player of the Game. The Charlevoix coaches also lauded the play of Lisa Kuebler, Madison and Ariel Ramsey, Zita Anderson, Kaleigh Blanchard and Meredith Rich.

Going into the tough match-up with the Elks, the Rayders tallied a win over Boyne City on May 1.

Coach Madison said, "Boyne City brought excellent goaltending, giving Charlevoix their toughest test of the season thus far."

Playing into a strong wind, the Rayders took 11 shots in the first half, finally connecting when senior tri-captain Murray sent a corner kick across to Ariel Ramsey for the header into the net.

Boyer tied the match in the second half on a penalty kick taken by their goalkeeper, Lindsey Baic, awarded for a handball in the penalty area. Sophomore midfielder, Becca Madison, third team all-state in 2005, got the Rayders back on top to stay with a rocket shot past Baic on a drop pass from senior Madison Ramsey. The same combination worked again minutes later to put the match on ice.

Charlevoix also received excellent play from Kaleigh Blanchard up front, freshmen Bridget Peters, McCary and Rich and sophomore, Danii Bergmann in the midfield. Nitchman, stopped five shots to earn the Rayders eighth win in goal.

Charlevoix, now 9-1 overall, played East Jordan in a Lake Michigan Conference match on Monday, May 8. Results from this game were not available by press time.

Errors leading to loss damper softball team's winning spirit

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

The Rayder girls' varsity softball team fell to a strong team and a series of fundamental errors at Kalkaska, losing 11-1 in the first game and 11-0 in the second.

Despite a recent series of success, coach Tony Zimmerman said the lady Rayders continue to struggle with the issue of confidence in their ability to maintain a winning record.

He believes that the losses were only a minor setback and has faith his team will be able to pick themselves up and return their winning ways.

"We lacked focus, it is still hard for the girls to believe they belong at the top of the heap," he said.

The Rayders continued to grow as a solid team on the mound with Amber Hoffman pitching the first game, but she was unable to shake Kalkaska's strong batting abilities.

Pitching the second game, Desi Faust faced the challenge of the Blazers' ability to find the ball and hit it to the open spot.

Zimmerman said his coaching staff has continued working to bolster his team's confidence in their playing abilities as well as in themselves.

"The staff knows that they can develop into one of the better teams in the conference, the trick is getting them to believe it too," he said.

According to Zimmerman, the team held a players-only meeting after the match and they now consider themselves better prepared for whatever the rest of the season has in store for them.

"After talking awhile, they came back with the winning attitude the coaching staff has been working to instill in them, they really snapped out of it," he said.

The Rayders' next game will take place at 4:15 p.m. on Thursday, May 11 at Cheboygan. That game will be followed by a home match to take place at 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 16 against Boyne City.

CHS baseball team claims one of two at Birch Run Tourney

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

After falling seven consecutive games, the Rayders boys' varsity baseball team began to recover to claim one of two games at the Birch Run tournament.

On Sunday, May 7 Charlevoix advanced past Suttons Bay 5-3 only to fall to their host Birch Run 6-0 at the Birch Run Big Cat Tournament.

In the first game, Matt Teuscher pitched seven innings for a complete game and Shannon Gillespie and Danny Waldron each had two hits to help the Rayders defeat Suttons Bay.

Gillespie offered two runs and a double to help the Rayders solidify the win.

Cliff Jones, Teuscher and Eddie Waldron provided hits for Charlevoix in the second game of the tournament as the Rayders succumbed to the Panthers of Birch Run in pool play.

Heading into the Birch Run Big Cat Tournament, the Rayders fell to both Clio and Kalkaska.

On Saturday, May 6, in a nine-inning preview to the Birch Run tour-namment, the Rayders were held at bay by strong pitching and aggressive offense as Clio improved to 17-4 overall with an 11-2 victory.

Cliff Jones, Jon Putnam and Teuscher each had a single and a double to start a late seven-hit rally from the Rayders. Relief pitcher Danny Waldron allowed just one run in three innings against the Mustangs.

On Wednesday, May 3, Charlevoix dropped two games to Kalkaska, losing the first game 11-9 and the second 6-0.

In the opener, Kalkaska pitcher Bobby Deeds held the Rayders back in a closely contested match-up. The Blazers' Jimmy Peters (3-4) scored three runs and Cory Heier (3-4) scored twice. Andrew Farrier and Andrew Vandergriff each added two hits for Kalkaska.

Kyle DeYoung offered a homerun, a single and two RBIs and Teuscher had two hits to keep Charlevoix in the game.

Peters was the winning pitcher for the Blazers in the nightcap, tossing a one-hitter with nine strikeouts.

Deeds went 3-3 from the plate and scored three runs while Vandergriff and Peters added two hits each for Kalkaska.

Drew Klooster had the Rayders' only hit of the game.

Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof was not available for comment before press time.

The Rayders varsity boys' baseball team will play next at 4:15 p.m. on Thursday, May 11, at Cheboygan Area High School and again at 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 16 at home against Boyne City.

Crooked Tree 20th century photo exhibit

The Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey will offer the 20th Century Photographic Masters Exhibition, an exhibit of some of the most significant photographic images taken this past century.

The exhibit was made possible by loans from David and Teresa Crouse, Jay and Laura Crouse, Karen and Ron Miller and Virginia Crouse photography collections. Show doors will open from 5 to 9 p.m. on May 19. Light hors d'oeuvres will be served.

Photographic greats on display range from Ansel Adams to W. Eugene Smith, to Steve McCurry. Other photographers with work represented include Henri Cartier-Bresson, Andre Kertesz, Yousuf Karsh, William Eggleston, Jean Paul Caponigro, Edward Weston, Brett Weston, Milton Greene and Eugene Smith.

David Crouse is a broadcaster and producer with notable career highlights including television interviews with former presidents George Herbert Walker Bush and Richard Nixon. His focus over the past several years has been to purchase iconoclastic photos including original images from Life Magazine, the Associated Press, the New York Times and Time-Warner Communications.

Jay Crouse, of Sarasota, Fla., founded a fine art photography gallery, the Atlanta Gallery of Photography, in 1977 in the Southeast. He has focused his collection primarily on the works of Henri Cartier-Bresson, Andre Kertesz and William Eggleston.

David and Jay Crouse will present a Coffee at Ten gallery talk speaking on the exhibition at 10 a.m. May 23 in the Edith Gilbert Gallery at the Crooked Tree Arts Center.

Both the 20th Century Photography Masters Exhibition opening from 5 to 7 p.m. on May 19 and the Coffee at Ten at 10 a.m. on May 23 are free and open to the public.

The exhibition will be on display from May 19 through June 19. For more information, call the Crooked Tree Arts Center at (231) 347-4337.

United Way surpasses its $175,000 goal

Jennifer Archambault, co-chair for the CharEm United Way campaign to provide funding for local health and human service programs, stands by the barometer reflecting the group's success in surpassing its 2005-2006 fund-raising goal.

CharEm United Way recently announced that $187,318 has been donated and/or pledged toward its 2005-2006 campaign to provide funding for local health and human service programs.

This amount raised is 7 percent over the fund's goal of $175,000.

"We are pleased with the success of the campaign and grateful for the generosity of the community," said Michael Atchison, campaign co-chair. "The success of the campaign will enable CharEm United Way to distribute a significant amount of funds to local agencies in our upcoming allocation process."

Jennifer Archambault, campaign co-chair added, "The success of the campaign that we have just completed means that we can set an even more ambitious goal for the coming year. We will kick-off the 2006-2007 campaign in September, with the 3rd Annual Day of Caring."

The following agencies received funding from the CharEm United Way Community Care fund in 2005: American Red Cross, BASES, Bergmann Center, Big Brothers Big Sisters, Boyne City Preschool Camp McSaub, Catholic Human Services, Charlevoix Alano Club, Charlevoix Senior Center, Child and Family Services, Crooked Tree Girl Scout Council, Exceptional Riders, Holy Childhood Daycare, Hospice of Northwest Michigan, Living Room Adult Day Care, Lutheran Child and Family Services, Michigan Dyslexia Institute, RSVP, Salvation Army, Scenic Trail Boy Scout Council, Third Level Crisis Intervention and the Women's Resource Center.

The CharEm United Way Community Care fund is comprised of non-designated pledges. Agencies apply for funding by submitting a written application and making a formal presentation in front of local volunteers. The local volunteers then make recommendations to the CharEm United Way board of directors who award the grants to the agencies.

To get involved with the Day of Caring and/or CharEm United Way or to make a donation, call (231) 237-9551.

MDOT reminds real estate and property owners of sign laws

The Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) reminds real estate companies and property owners to observe the proper placement of signs advertising the sale or lease of real property along state trunklines.

"While we acknowledge the significance of these signs as they relate to the real estate industry and individuals buying or selling property, we also are keenly aware of the need to keep the right-of-way clear for the safety of Michigan motorists and pedestrians," said Andy Holmes, north region associate engineer for operations.

These signs are required to be more than 30-feet from the edge of the roadway (white line) for highways that do not have barrier curbs. For highways with barrier curbs, the signs must be more than 3-feet from the back of the curb.

Also, signs are not permitted within clear vision areas at intersections or commercial driveways, so that they do not interfere with the sight distance of a driver. Directional signs are prohibited adjacent to state highways. No signs may be placed along freeways or ramps, within the limits of freeway interchanges, or along other roadways with limited or controlled access restrictions.

Improperly placed signs will be removed by the Michigan Department of Transportation. These signs will be held for seven days at the local Michigan Department of Transportation office or maintenance garage, after which time they will be discarded.

These requirements also are formally communicated to local real estate companies each year as a courtesy.

Scenic Michigan to host May 11 sign and lighting workshop

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is sponsoring a workshop hosted by Scenic Michigan on the importance of regulating signs and lighting.

The workshop will take place at 7 p.m. on May 11 in the training room in the basement of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's building.

CMU purchases the U.S. Coast Guard boathouse on Beaver Island

New and safer adventures await Central Michigan University students, faculty and staff with the purchase of the former U.S. Coast Guard boathouse on Beaver Island.

The boathouse, which was purchased with gifts of more than $1 million, will enhance teaching and research activities conducted at the Central Michigan University Biological Station on the island. The 2,850-square-foot facility includes storage for boats and equipment.

"The boathouse is a safe base of operation for vessels used for instruction and research on northern Lake Michigan," said James Gillingham, director of the Central Michigan University Biological Station and a professor of biology. "The additional space also will attract more users from other institutions interested in instruction and research."

Central Michigan University students and faculty use boats to visit smaller islands where instruction in botany, fish and wildlife management, and biological research is conducted.

Central Michigan University offers summer classes taken by hundreds of students annually from throughout Michigan. Research by Central Michigan University students and faculty, as well as visiting scholars, is conducted in the spring, summer and early fall. Researchers collaborate with government agencies from the Michigan departments of Natural Resources, Environmental Quality, and Natural Features Inventory, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Buying and improving the boathouse property cost $1.25 million. All but $78,000 has been raised through gifts so far. Annual operating expenses, which will be paid for from an endowment funded by gifts, are projected to be about $5,000 for utilities and maintenance. The Central Michigan University Board of Trustees approved buying the privately owned property last fall if the purchase price could be raised through gifts.

"Alumni and other supporters of CMU met the challenge," said Robert Kohrman, dean of Central Michigan University's College of Science and Technology. "We were confident we could reach the goal, and our supporters confirmed that with their gifts. The college is grateful for the generosity of donors and their support for the programs and research being conducted at the CMU Biological Station on Beaver Island."

Methodist church Pioneer Club Regatta winners announced

The Pioneer Club, a national Christian scouting program, is presented weekly from October through April at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, for children in Kindergarten through sixth grades.

At the meetings participants are taught Christian values and life skills through hands-on activities, Bible study and games and are awarded activity badges for their lessons. The kids also collect pop cans throughout the season to raise money for an orphanage in Russia.

Recently, the Pioneer Club celebrated the end of its meeting season with a Regatta. At the end of the season event the club members sanded, assembled and decorated their own boat and raced them. Family and church members joined the celebration with a luau potluck dinner.

For more information about Pioneer Club, call the Charlevoix United Methodist Church at (231) 547-2654.

County Board of Commissioners buy over $3.5 million in delinquent taxes

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners adopted a resolution, April 12, which will allow for the purchase of more than $3.5 million in delinquent taxes from local townships and cities.

According to Charlevoix County treasurer, Marilyn Cousineau, by law the county must purchase delinquent taxes from its surrounding townships, but the state gives the county the option of whether or not to be the one to oversee foreclosures.

"The advantage to opting to be the one in charge of foreclosures is that we can help the people that are in real need. We have more control over, and are better able to help people with hardship cases," she said. "The state doesn't have the time or the manpower to sit down with people and find out why they shouldn't go into foreclosure."

She added, "It's easier for people to see us than to go to the state."

Cousineau said, by allowing the county to purchase the delinquent property taxes from townships, the county can then make sure all local government entities get their money.

"The townships don't pay us back," she said. "We pay the townships, the schools and the libraries so those entities are not out any money and then we collect the money from the taxpayers that haven't paid."

Cousineau said the request for purchase this year is $3,525,749.32.

"It was up about $60,000 over last year," she said.

Chairman of the Charlevoix County

Board of Commissioners, Vic Patrick, said the county's purchase of the delinquent taxes doesn't really affect the taxpayer citizen.

"Some counties have to borrow money to do it, but we're fortunate enough not to have to," he said. "We've got money set aside in the budget to do that."

The tentative breakdown for townships with delinquent property taxes from 2005 are as follows: Bay $119,520.78; Boyne Valley $313,090.20; Chandler $29,545.86; Charlevoix $184,302.43; Evangeline $109,102.76; Eveline $274,054.95; Hayes $245,341.95; Hudson $76,881.82; Marion $95,663.82; Melrose $236,234.27; Norwood $91,046.74; Peaine $142,718.60; St. James $199,114.77; South Arm $176,523.94; and Wilson $189,778.92.

The delinquent taxes of the following cities were also approved for purchase: Boyne $543,949.14; Charlevoix $267,111.58; East Jordan $227,998.20; and the Village of Boyne Falls $4,318.68.

Property taxes are allowed to go unpaid for up to three years before foreclosure is sought.

"We have brochures here in the office that explain the process," Cousineau said.

The treasurer's office is located at 301 State St. in Charlevoix.

All figures included in the breakdown for townships and cities with delinquent property taxes are posted on the Charlevoix County Web site, www.charlevoixcounty.org.

Voters to consider road millage

ELECTION 2006

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

During the May 10 meeting, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners voted unanimously to allow residents to vote on a proposed county-wide road millage on the Aug. 8 ballot.

If levied, the 1 mill would generate approximately $1.9 million a year —

$1.4 million would go to the county while the remainder would go back to the respective contributing cities.

Manager of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, Pat Harmon, said before the millage goes to a vote, he and his office will put together a plan on how the money would be spent.

"This millage would generate roughly $7 million over the five-year period for the county primary system," Harmon said. "Are we going to make everybody happy? No. But, I think we can show the constituents and taxpayers of Charlevoix County that if we spread it around and improve some roads in the county in that five year period, there will be a better chance it will be renewed."

It costs roughly $250,000 to repair or rebuild one mile of the 154 miles of primary roads in the county for a total of $38.6 million.

Harmon said the state gas tax is fixed and the road commission only gets a portion of it to cover its operations.

High gas prices hurt Michigan's 83 road commissions in two ways, Harmon said. One, the cost of operating machinery to build and repair roads increases, while the amount of gas consumed by taxpayers decreases. And since the gas tax doesn't rise with gas prices, operating funds generated for road commissions are dwindling.

"Three to four years ago we went to the state level and asked if they would raise the gas tax, and they said, 'Absolutely not,'" Harmon said. "And that was back when gas was only $1.68 or so."

He added, "No politician is going to raise taxes on gas, it would be a career suicide."

Harmon knows the last thing people want is another tax increase, but if voters pass the millage, nearly 30 miles of road could be improved.

"I see things crashing around us and they (federal government) are spending $10 billion a month overseas," he said. "We can't sit around and wait for them to help us. This money is not going to fall from the sky."

Second district commissioner, Randolph Frykberg said, if the board didn't agree to put the issue on the ballot, the county could have gone nearly a year without road funding.

"If we wait even until November, we lose one year of possible funding," he said. "We're not making the deci-

Planters gear up for May 25 Operation Petunia event

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

A Charlevoix institution for nearly a quarter of a century, the phenomenon known as Operation Petunia will soon be at hand.

Planting of the five miles of colorful annuals is scheduled to begin at 5 p.m. on Thursday, May 25 from city limit to city limit, followed by a picnic for volunteers at 6 p.m. in East Park.

According to Charlevoix resident and business owner, Vince Carrier, sprucing the city with petunias is vital to Charlevoix's image.

"It means a lot. It's an opportunity for the community to pull together," he said. "When I travel to different areas and talk to different people, they say, 'Oh wow, you have all those petunias along the road, that's really nice.' It adds character to the town of Charlevoix."

Carrier has helped plant petunias and till the flower beds throughout the years and the boy scout troop with which he is affiliated helps with trash pickup and planting.

"It's an awesome way to watch the community service groups work together on this project," he said.

The blooms are watered nearly every day following planting for a total of nearly one million gallons of water per season. The constant watering is necessary to prevent the flowers from dehydrating due to the extreme heat at their location alongside busy Bridge Street.

Operation Petunia averages a turnout of 1,000 volunteers planting 1,000 flats of petunias.

Downtown shop owner, Terry Amick, said he enjoys how the flowers color the streets.

"I think a lot of people in town love planting them," he said. "And, I think it's neat to see the petunia truck go through town and water them."

Be sure to get your picnic coupon on planting day from your block captain who will be donning an orange vest. Each coupon is good for a hot dog, chips, cookies and a drink.

Appropriate clothing and hand trowels are recommended.

Anyone wishing to help keep Operation Petunia a reality can send donations to: Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Inc. P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720. For more information, call (231) 547-2561.

sion on whether it would be funded. We're just making the decision of whether or not it should be put on the ballot for the public to decide."

No township, city or village within Charlevoix County could exempt themselves from this tax if it passed.

However, Frykberg said, "The cities, if they wanted to compensate because the local people didn't want it, they could roll back their general fund that's now funding their streets."

Frykberg said the reason the county commission hadn't introduced the issue of the millage at an earlier time was because the road commission hadn't asked them to do so.

Charlevoix County resident, Bob Taylor, said "I have a good feeling for more money on roads, but I have concerns on what roads it's going to be spent on. In my township we provide an extra millage on roads."

While he is concerned with where the money will be spread around, Taylor said, "You've won me over as soon as you said everybody gets their chance to vote."

Harmon said money is taken from the gas tax and used to fund other programs at the state level.

"What's left is distributed back to MDOT (Michigan Department of Transportation) and such," he said. "This millage would not go to Lansing, this millage would stay in Charlevoix County."

Anyone with input should go to their township, city or village officials so those officials can discuss the ideas and concerns with the road commission.

"There are just so many places in this county where we could spend the money," Harmon said.

Elliott named superintendent of the city street department

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

May 23 retirement of outgoing street department superintendent, John Martin, city manager, Mike Wiesner, selected 34-year-old Charlevoix native, Pat Elliott.

Elliott's first day was Monday, May 15.

"He appears to be a natural leader and we certainly need leadership in that position. He works in a lot of areas now, very similar to what we do.

He seems to be a very hard working individual," Wiesner said.

Elliott, the son of Charlevoix residents Boh and Carol Elliott, currently lives in Marion Township and is a 1990 graduate of Charlevoix High School. He went on to earn his associate's degree in horticulture from Ferris State University and studied landscape architecture at Michigan State University.

Since completing his studies, Elliott has worked for Site Planning Development Inc. and is the past landscape director there.

As a bachelor, he said he has the time to dedicate toward quickly learning the ins and outs of his new position. In working with Martin's experienced crew, he said the transition should be seamless.

City staff will join Martin's friends and family at a farewell gathering to take place from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. on May 23 in city council chambers at city hall. Refreshments will be served.

OPINIONS

Kudos to Keeper of the Light on bumper sticker fund-raiser

Bumper stickers come in all shapes and sizes with messages ranging from advertisements for politicians and businesses to catchy slogans.

We've seen the good the bad and the downright ugly when it comes to these sticky expressions and want to congratulate the Charlevoix Historical Society's Charlevoix Keeper of the Light Committee on its fantastic sticker design.

You may have seen these snazzy stickers dressing up car bumpers around town. The sticker depicts an image of the town's trademark lighthouse along with the letters CVX, the Federal Aviation Administration's three-letter airport code for the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

The first batch of stickers went on sale for $5 each in early April and sold out in a matter of weeks. The second order of stickers is now available at the Harsha House Museum store, located off State Street in downtown Charlevoix.

The best part about this fund-raiser is that you're not only gussying up your ride, you're helping restore what we feel is one of Charlevoix's greatest assets, the South Pier Light. All proceeds from the sale of these stickers are allocated to the lighthouse restoration project.

The local lighthouse became an orphan when the United States Coast Guard announced it would be included in the release of excess lighthouses to save money. The City of Charlevoix has applied for ownership of the Charlevoix South Pier Light. Once the transfer of title takes place, in about two years, there will be a partnership between the city, as owners, and the Charlevoix Historical Society, as stewards.

In the meantime, the city, along with the Charlevoix Historical Society, have applied to enter into a historic lease with the Coast Guard which will give them standing to qualify for state and federal grants to help fund the restoration. Funds raised from the sticker sale and an associated candle sale will be used to match the grant money.

The Coast Guard will continue to operate the light as an aide to navigation and the Army Corps of Engineers will maintain the pier.

For more information about the sticker fund-raiser or a complete list of lighthouse restoration giving opportunities, contact David Miles or Steve Goslee at (231) 547-0373.

Lawn mowing and spraying? You could be missing out

Roger Knutson

'Ear to the ground'

It's that time of year when decisions about the lawn have to be made.

I'm generally of the opinion that the lawn should be as little work and trouble as possible, so I search for approaches that suit my previous prejudices. A lawn that need not be mowed would be a real plus, but guests might object to wading through knee-high vegetation.

In my search for justification, I approached the dictionary. It offers several definitions for lawn. "Ground covered by grass and not tilled," is one of those. An archaic use of the word "lawn" for the open space between woods is even more promising. Maybe I could have that sort of ancient lawn and still use the word when I talk to my neighbors.

Part of my reason for not wanting to mow is based on simple sloth, but at least some of the reason is botanical. Mowing too closely or too early would remove some of the diversity that my lawn already has. Each spring there are two dining table-sized patches of antennaria, commonly called Pussy Toes because the 6-inch high flower stalks have little clusters of furry flowers that feel exactly like the toes of new kittens. I'd hate to miss those. Nearby, the Pussy Toes is a small and growing patch of wild strawberries, and if I mow there we will miss the dozen or so superbly sweet fruits that aren't ripe until June. There are two places where wild mint grows, and if I don't mow there, by July there are just about enough leaves for a couple of genuinely fresh mint juleps. And finally small new plants of yellow primroses are growing and beginning to bloom from seed dropped by a row of older primroses along the walk. I can't imagine cutting those off.

Dandelion flowers are especially obvious this time of year and that has led to suggestions that it would be neighborly to spray the lawn and get rid of those pesky, durable, golden flowers. Spraying would be even more costly to my sort of lawn than excess mowing might be. I have a rapidly spreading patch of English daisies, looking like short, miniature chrysanthemums. These are common in a lot of older lawns around town. They are so low-growing that they can tolerate mowing, but spraying for broad-leaved plants would do them in. The violets would also be eliminated by spraying, even though mowing seems only to encourage them. Chickweed (an unfortunate name, since the small flowers are quite attractive) grows along the house foundation. There are at least three different kinds of veronica or speedwell, with tiny blue or white flowers, blooming almost everywhere in my lawn. This is also a weed by most definitions, but an attractive one if you can get close enough to see the hundreds of small flowers. And finally, at least two patches of a low-growing cranesbill or wild geranium enrich my lawn's diversity. I'd hate to give up any of those for the solid golf-green-like appearance that spraying would help produce.

Check your lawn before ordering an annual spray job. There may be wonders lurking there.

Council platform

Editor: I am running for First Ward Charlevoix City Council for a number of reasons.

One is the issue of the Venetian Festival carnival. During my years working as a shift commander at the Charlevoix Fire Department, I have watched carnival workers cut limbs from trees in the parking area to make room for the rides to be set up. And I've witnessed used motor oil dumped into the street. Both of these situations were reported. I've returned to the station during the week of Venetian after a structure fire and found carnival semis blocking the fire department entrance.

I have concerns regarding the city hall custodial issue. Since city hall was first built, there hasn't been a good maintenance program. In the past, someone has been paid 12 to 15 hours a week to clean city hall. Presently, a cleaning company is contracted to clean the building. Due to the lack of a maintenance person in the past, a large sum of money has been spent on the old boiler alone. After finally bringing the building back to a state in which the people of Charlevoix can be proud of, they still do not have an adequate maintenance program. I propose for someone to be hired to maintain this building properly and keep it in the state that the citizens can be proud of for many years to come.

I will also work to help keep property taxes as low as possible.

Protest ban has merit

Editor: In response to Benjamin Gohs' column (entitled, "Funeral protest ban questions freedom of speech," which appeared on page 4 of the May 10 edition of the Charlevoix Courier) concerning the freedom of protesters to jeer our fallen heroes, I believe our elected representatives are on the right track. They are by no means prohibiting the exercise of free speech.

The protesters must stay at least 500 feet away and can still spread their hate message. They are only saving an already grieving family from further pain and suffering at the hands of individuals whose only purpose is to taunt distressed loved ones. We already limit where you can exercise these rights. Going by the same philosophy he used, we should also be allowed to yell "fire" in a crowded theater. It's my right correct? No.

I think our founding fathers would be proud of the actions taken by our representatives. I know as a citizen, I am, and if it were put to a vote, I'm sure it would pass in our democracy.

Continue PA program

Editor: The reality of the budget cuts the Charlevoix School system is facing is truly sad.

As a parent of two former performing arts students, I would urge the school board and administration to seek all possible creative ways to continue the performing arts program. I absolutely know performing arts made a major difference in my children's lives.

What parents and students of performing arts know and the public might not know as well, is that the program is broadly educational. Drama is but performing arts' public face.

All performing arts students are exposed to debate and those who pursue it, by joining the debate team, learn invaluable research and speaking skills.

All performing arts students participate in speech events, acquiring speaking skills which will serve them well throughout their lives. In the process they are exposed to a broad range of great literature, students from across Michigan and a range of contemporary issues.

Every performing arts student learns how to research and make presentations.

Similarly, during the drama competitions in which all students participate, great works of the theater are presented by other students from around Michigan.

As performing arts parents we have watched shy students find their voice, become intrigued with major issues of the day, discover talents they might not have otherwise found, and been encouraged to work hard in their other academics in order to continue to participate with their teammates.

I sincerely hope the school board and administration will find a way to continue this outstanding program.

Column response

Editor: Benjamin Gohs' column last week regarding the current freedom of speech bill coming up for Gov. Granholm's signature had some merit. He is an excellent writer. However, I tend to disagree with his premise that freedom of speech is endangered for those who protest at soldiers' funerals. I can see this unfortunate trend to protest could eventually grow to include weddings, births, graduations, holidays and any other special occasion on our calendar.

As I see it, it's the time and the place that is at issue, not the topic. That's what the writers of the Constitution believed our old fashioned, Town Square was to be used for — free speech. Let's keep these controversial issues there, where they belong today, in the newspapers, on the Internet or on television, but not at a soldier's family funeral.

Stop illegal immigration

Editor: As times change, so do the ways we express ourselves as demonstrated by the labels used by the mainstream media regarding immigrants such as

"legal, illegal, illegal alien, undocumented, unregulated, temporary or guest worker." They are trying to sway us one way or another, by presenting half-truths, selected or incomplete information, directing us to their viewpoint. But no matter what label is used, it doesn't change the fact that anyone who enters the United States uninvited or illegally has violated our laws, is a criminal and should be treated as our laws direct.

Dozens of illegal aliens will cross America's borders in the time it takes you to read this letter, nearly 2,000 a day and over 500,000 this year alone. Already there are more than 11 million illegal aliens in America and hundreds of thousands are from terrorist nations or nations that sponsor terrorism, possibly planning the next attack on America. There are thousands of criminal aliens walking our streets and hundreds of thousands more who have been ordered by the courts to leave America, but are still here. Our United States has historically welcomed immigrants who are willing to live by our rules, work hard and become truly American.

The United States cannot continue to absorb the huge number of illegal aliens who milk the system for government services, free education and free benefits. The immigration bureaucracy in Washington is unable to adequately monitor incoming legal aliens, never mind the millions of illegal aliens already living in the United States and the current level of immigration — legal and illegal — is siphoning billions of dollars from the American economy through crime, terrorist acts, abuse of government services and abuse of government benefits.

Congressman Tom Tancredo, the 6th District, Colorado, introduced House Resolution 946, the Mass Immigration Reduction Act. This legislation puts a temporary moratorium on all immigration, legal and illegal, until our United States can integrate all current legal immigrants and removes all illegal immigrants. This action is critically important for the future of our nation.

If you feel as I do that "enough is enough," then write, e-mail, fax, or phone your representatives in Washington D.C. and tell them to support House Resolution 946 before it's too late and another 9/11 (Sept. 11, 2001) occurs. Your voice could be the one that makes the difference.

Both organizations distribute the poppies each year to gain funds to assist hospitalized veterans and their families. The poppies are made by disabled, hospitalized veterans, who earn a small amount by making the poppies. The veterans groups purchase the poppies from those hospitalized veterans and distribute them nationally.

The donations from the public for the poppies are used locally to assist veterans and their families.

Although both groups sell the poppies in May as a memorial to those veterans who have served our country, they are made differently and each group has its own charities to support.

Scholarships for Camp McSaubu exceed 2005 count

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

The City of Charlevoix Recreation Department's Camp McSaubu is rebounding from its 2005 season when few scholarship opportunities were available and will offer 90 scholarships for upcoming camp sessions.

"Since we started the camp 31 years ago, our philosophy has been to provide an opportunity for all kids that need the camping experience to come to Camp McSaubu," City of Charlevoix Recreation Director Ike Boss said. "We don't want to turn anyone away that needs to go."

In 2005, scholarship opportunities at Camp McSaubu were reduced when CharEm United Way cut back its funding to the camp from 20 scholarships to five.

At that time, representatives of the local chapter of the United Way said camp cuts were directly related to a 39 percent decrease in donations to the organization. In 2004, they received $217,000 and in 2005, $138,000 came in.

The camp started in 1975. Since its inception, the United Way had been the primary source of scholarship funding. Boss said he had seen small changes in the amount of money allocated to the camp, but never a hit like that.

The importance of those scholarships moved Boss in new directions to search for revenue sources.

For the coming season, a $5,000 grant request was awarded by the Department of Human Services, the Charlevoix Lions Club gave the camp $480 and Vacations Property Network gave the camp $1,700 of the money it made at its annual golf outing.

Another grant request through the Charlevoix County Community Foundation is pending.

The current funds allow for 90 scholarships this year and if the community foundation grant is awarded, that number will jump to 110 scholarships. The camp serves about 540 campers each year.

Boss said grant requests are steadily being submitted. "Money is tight for people right now. Requests for scholarships are already up over last year," he said.

The eight-session camp, which is open to kids ages 5-12, starts June 19. Camp sessions are scheduled to take place June 19-23, June 26-30, July 3-7, July 10-14, July 17-21, July 24-28, July 31 to Aug. 4 and Aug. 7-11. The camp runs from 9 a.m. to 3:15 p.m. Monday through Wednesday and from 9 a.m. Thursday to 11:30 a.m. on Friday. Pre and post camp care is offered for $30 a week.

Each session is open to 70 campers, which equates to a maximum of 12 campers per counselor.

The weekly camper cost is $80. Camp counselors this year will operate under Sara Parrish, the 24-year-old camp director and special education instructor for Charlevoix elementary and middle schools. Camp counselors are Amy Dreth, Lauren Silberhorn, Adam Wood, Mitchell Klooster, Amber Klooster and Jessica Pettis.

Parrish said the camp experience, which teaches participants teamwork skills, gun safety and archery is invaluable to campers.

The camp has added new archery equipment and tents this year allowing campers ages 9-12 the opportunity to spend Thursday night camping outdoors on the McSaubu property.

The camp is still in need of platforms for the tents and steps to connect the soccer field and the camp site.

Camp McSaubu is located on Charlevoix's north side off Mt. McSaubu Road.

For information about the scholarship program, to donate, or to register a child for the camp, call Boss at (231) 547-3253.

Charlevoix County Commission race heats up Five seats to be contested at Aug. 8 primary election

ELECTION 2006
By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

All but one of the six Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners' seats will be contested at the upcoming Aug. 8 primary election.

By the 4 p.m., May 16 filing deadline, the only commissioner who will receive no competition in the primary is sixth district commissioner, Shirley Roloff.

First District:

Hayes and Bay townships; City of Charlevoix (north of the bridge); Charlevoix Township (north of the bridge)

First district commissioner, Connie Saltonstall, the unaffiliated incumbent whose term runs through Dec. 31, will face the winner of two Republicans, Josh Barnes and Shirlene Tripp, who are vying for her seat at the Nov. 7 regular election.

Connie Saltonstall

Saltonstall, 60, of Charlevoix, plans to continue working on the unfinished portions of the platform upon which she ran in February.

"We've reversed the smoking exemption, but we still have to work on the roads, specifically the Boyne City Road," she said.

Saltonstall said she supports the county-wide road millage, but hopes to secure funding for Boyne City-Charlevoix Road.

"Boyne City Road has the highest traffic count and is in the worst condition," she said. "And although the road commission said it is a priority, they have no money in the budget through 2010 for Boyne City Road."

Saltonstall enjoys the work because, she said, "I find the information and the challenges extremely interesting and I think it's a valuable service for the county."

and planning commission member in Hayes Township for a total of nearly 30 years.

Shirlene Tripp

"One of my big things as I went around with my petitions was to get at least 50 percent of the registered voters out to vote," she said. "I think it's a shame that we have so few calling the shots. I asked everybody to talk to family and friends about voting, and I don't even care how they vote. Just please go vote."

Tripp said the biggest reason she hopes to be elected is so she can work with people.

"I've always had jobs working with people and there's never a dull moment when you work with people, you just have to learn to laugh a lot," she said.

Josh Barnes

Barnes, 78, acts as director of Summa Industries. He founded Spectrus-Lexa Lite, served as a county commissioner and mayor of Charlevoix and recently filled in as interim commissioner when his daughter, Valerie Snyder, moved to Las Vegas, Nev. in March 2005.

"I hope very much to make the county run smoothly and avoid lawsuits and obey the letter of the law as well as the intent of the law," he said. "I hope to add my engineering skills to certain committees and of course I am relatively skilled in corporate management."

Barnes added, "The overall picture of serving in local government is that you're right in the grassroots."

While he doesn't see any problems with Saltonstall's job as commissioner, he believes he is the right person for the job.

"I supported her last time and I think she has great long-range plans, but I think we need to get things done today."

Second District:

Evangeline Township; and City of Boyne City

If elected, this will be second district incumbent, Randolph Frykberg's third term. Frykberg has 30 years combined experience in local units of government and is currently manager of Boyne City. He has also served on the state's air pollution commission, the Great Lakes Basin Commission Advisory Board and 40 years on the National Ski Patrol.

At age 59, Frykberg has also served as a municipal operations consultant, zoning administrator and a planner.

"It's the hand of government that's closest to people," he said of the county commission. "You can get some things done and see results quicker than at any other level of government."

Frykberg hopes to move ahead with an analysis of whether the county needs an administrator or executive.

Chris Christensen, a 34-year-old real estate agent in Boyne City, hopes to unseat Frykberg in the Republican primary.

Christensen served in student government during college in Petoskey and currently serves on the Antrim/Charlevoix/Kalkaska Association of Realtors.

"I want to give people a choice," he said. "I feel like government is the responsibility of the people, by the people, for the people, and someone needs to step up and do it."

He added, "And maybe they need some fresh ideas on the board."

Christensen said he was at a meeting where Frykberg spoke about the importance of placing the proposed county-wide road millage on the August ballot.

"He said if the board didn't give the people the choice to vote on it, then the commission would be making the decision for them," he said. "So I went home and stewed over it for awhile and decided that, yes, I needed to make a decision."

Third District:

Boyne Valley, Chandler, Hudson, Melrose and Wilson (south of BC/EJ Road) townships

Incumbent Ronald Reinhardt, 66, hopes to defend his seat against fellow Republican, Alex Greficz, so he may continue representing his constituents and the agricultural sector for a third term.

The third district commissioner served as a trustee and then as supervisor of Wilson Township. He served on the soil conservation board with nearly 20 years on and off the planning commission.

"There's something coming out of the (Charlevoix County) planning commission for open space (preservation). I'm very interested in that," he said. "Hopefully, it may thing comes before the commissioners to hold down urban sprawl, we can make sure we keep a rural characteristic to the county as much as we can."

He added, "I think this board has worked very well together. We don't always agree, but that's the way it should be so we hear both sides of an issue," he said.

Greficz, a 69-year-old Hudson Township resident, is a retired Otsego County Veteran's Affairs Director. He has volunteered with groups including, the American Legion, VFW, AmVets and the DARE program.

As a husband, father and grandfather, Greficz said he would like to see citizens get some of their benefits back.

"I would like to see our young people, middle-aged and elderly, whether they are veterans or not, get more benefits," he said. "Our government has taken them away from the citizens."

While he doesn't believe in slinging mud, Greficz did say there will be some changes to the commission if he is elected.

"I think we have to really get serious about our road commission," he said. "We have a lot of potholes, though that's not at the top of my list because we have a good road commission and crew."

He added, "They do a great job, but it seems like we need to get more money for them."

Fourth District:
South Arm Township; and City of East Jordan

Fourth district commissioner and chairman of the board, Victor Patrick, hopes to defend his seat against fellow Republican, Joel Evans.

Retired as a Department of Natural Resources officer, diver for the Michigan State Police and deputy sheriff of 10 years in Muskegon, 68-year-old Patrick has enjoyed his 10 years working for the people of Charlevoix.

"I just like to see that things are carried out and to see that everyone gets a fair shake," he said.

Patrick said upcoming commissioners must possess dedication to be effective.

"It takes one hell of a lot of time. It's in no way, shape or form a part-time thing," he said.

Retired from his business, Building and Home Center, Evans, 65, has served as South Arm Township supervisor and on the East Jordan school board.

"I guess I like the politics of it. I always think I could do a better job than what's being done," he said. "I really enjoy working with the public and there's been a lot of people encouraging me to run for the commission because they're not happy with the existing commissioners."

He added, "Common sense is not used enough and (it) tells me as a board member not to be influenced or intimidated by any person or political party or personal agenda."

Evans hopes to improve communication between the county commission and the citizens.

"Hopefully we can get some peace between the commission and the (county) departments. There's too much hickering and fighting," he said.

Fifth District:
Eveline, Marion and Wilson (south of BC/EJ Road) townships

Fifth district commissioner and Boyne City Public Works director, Dennis Jason, hopes to garner a third term in the upcoming election. He has served for more than 30 years on the East Jordan Planning Commission and several different county boards including the Northwest Regional Planning and Development Commission and the transit committee.

Jason said he enjoys, "Answering problems and coming up with solutions."

"I don't think that our decisions are 'We and they,' and I don't think they're party affiliated, even though I'm running as a Republican," he said. "I don't think the issues are drawn on political lines. I think they're drawn on needs and services."

If reelected, Jason hopes to work on the issue of a county executive.

Retired army veteran and current Charlevoix County Veteran's Affairs director, Boh Drebenstedt, 61, has a master's degree in hospital and nursing home administration and has served as a trustee, clerk and zoning administrator in Marion Township.

He also volunteered at Charlevoix Area Hospital and works as a me-

"Communication is vital to avoid the lawsuits we've had because (the county) wouldn't come to the table and discuss the matter with the people who brought those lawsuits."

Drebenstedt said his only agenda is to do right by the county.

"I won't be a special interest person. I will work for the voter," he said. "I have the courage to see a problem through, just like the age old problem of Boyne City Road. Even though it's not in my district, I would like to see that road complete."

He added, "I think we can look over our overall budget and come up with means to fund the differ-

City of Charlevoix (south of the bridge); Charlevoix Township (south of the bridge); Norwood, Peaine and St. James townships

Sixth district commissioner, Shirley Roloff, 70, has served on the commission for nine years and previ-

"It's a way I can give back to my community," she said. "I just believe that we, each one of us, has a duty to do, and I enjoy it."

Small Hands, Big Art exhibit to benefit local school

Charlevoix Children's House student artists will be featured at Small Hands Big Art, a collaboration between Gallery On Main in Bay Harbor and the Montessori school. This children's art exhibit runs from May 24 to May 30. The exhibit, which is the first such event for the school, will also include a silent auction fund-raiser on May 25.

Whether any of them will be the next Picasso is pure speculation, but you will have the chance to invest in the artwork of some budding creators.

Small Hands Big Art, a collaboration between Gallery On Main in Bay Harbor and the Charlevoix Children's House Montessori school, is a children's art exhibit which runs from May 24 to 30. The exhibit, which is the first such event for the school, will also include a silent auction fund-raiser on May 25.

"This is our first fund-raising event held at the gallery," said gallery manager, Larissa Flynn.

Flynn, who is also a parent of a Charlevoix Children's House student, said she and school director, Barb Godwin, wanted to expose the students ages 2 to 6 to the artistic process while helping the school with needed funds.

"I have always been a big fan of children's artwork," she said.

Children's house students viewed original works of art which were placed in the Montessori school and from them gained inspiration to create their own works.

"By placing artwork in the school, we were able to expose the kids to many different mediums and let them spring off what they were seeing in the gallery to create their own," Flynn said.

The approximately 15 pieces of children's artwork have been professionally framed and will be sold to the highest bidder at the May 25 silent auction.

Some of the mediums used include real watercolor and ceramics.

"Instead of just being given crayons and coloring book pages, they've been given the real deal — real oil pastels, clay, glaze and rice paper," Flynn said. "All the materials that fine artists would use, they used and they seem to have enjoyed themselves based on the work that's been produced."

The funds raised will go toward helping the school install new flooring, a new roof and toward the purchase of classroom materials.

"Any little bit (money) helps to move the school forward and maintain the building," Flynn added.

The silent auction will take place from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 25 at Gallery on Main, located at 4184 Main St. in Bay Harbor. Call (231) 439-2745 for more information.

All three city council ward seats contested

ELECTION 2006

By JULIE WITTHQFT
Editor

Talk of a contested race for the mayor's seat in the City of Charlevoix was quieted last week when Shirley Gibson, rumored mayoral candidate and third ward city council member, announced that she won't be running in this election.

Gibson, 58, said she received the petition signatures needed to nominate her to run but opted against it for political reasons.

"I don't want to lose my vote in the third ward," she said. "I will run for mayor one day. And I hope Boogie (mayor Norman Carlson Jr.) runs against me. I'd like some competition with him," she said. "I will be the first female mayor, just not this time."

Gibson's decision means current mayor, Norman Carlson Jr., will run unopposed at the Nov. 7 general election.

Norman Carlson Jr.

Carlson is finishing his first term as mayor and was a city councilman for four years prior to being elected mayor in 2004. The 39-year-old father of two, who owns and operates the local building company Carlson's Home Improvements, said he spends between 15 and 20 hours a week fulfilling his mayoral duties. His time is spent attending meetings of nine different city committees on which he holds a seat, as well as going to city council meetings.

He said his decision to run again is not based on any one project or issue he wants to participate in. In fact, he said he's hoping for a quieter term.

"I hope we've gotten through all the hard stuff — we've gone through quite a bit in the last year. Issues with (city manager) Mike (Wiesner who was retained in a tie vote proposing to remove him), getting the park and harbor on its way, finishing city hall, hiring a new police chief," Carlson said.

"I think I work well with council and the city manager. I think we're at a good point right now. And I hope we can continue that on through all the city projects that come our way."

Upcoming projects he pointed to include updates to the city code and zoning ordinance, charter amendments, balancing the city budget, establishing cooperative relationships with surrounding townships and retention of a local Coast Guard cutter.

First Ward

Incumbent Bill Haggard filed his paperwork to run for reelection late last week. Haggard, 69, is a Charlevoix native who with his brother, John Haggard, owns and operates Haggard's Plumbing and Heating. He is married to Laurie Gilbert.

He has served six years on council during this most recent stint and served six years on council in the 1980s.

He said if elected, this will be his last term. In 2004, he said the term to expire in November would be his final term. However, the marina project has kept him on board.

"I would like to make sure the waterfront is finished up right. I want to see that through. Everything else is running pretty smooth right now," he said.

Haggard will face former City of Charlevoix Fire Station shift commander and EMT of 25 years, Lyle Gennett.

Gennett, 54, said he doesn't have an issue with Haggard, he just feels he could serve first ward city residents well as their councilman.

Gennett retired from the city fire department in June 2005 after 25 years of service. He said there are a few issues he would advocate as a councilman including creation of a full-time maintenance position to service city buildings and moving the Venetian Festival carnival out of its Mason Street location to another unspecified spot in Charlevoix.

Lyle Gennett

Gennett is married to former Charlevoix Elementary School counselor, Gayle Gennett and has two daughters.

Second Ward

Incumbent Gabe Campbell, 73, has filed to run for reelection. If elected to serve the two-year term, this will be his last go around on city council.

Campbell, who has spent 10 years as a councilman and two as mayor, said he opted to run again because constituents have approached him and asked that he serve another term.

"I think we have to keep working to keep a local Coast Guard cutter. And I would like to see some steps taken toward getting a committee to oversee the electric department — deregulation is coming and we need to keep on top of it," he said.

Campbell is also interested in seeing city government explore its role in improving the downtown business climate.

"It's looking kind of scary downtown right now," he said. "I think a lot of folks think once the park and marina project is done, business will improve. But I think that will just make things look nicer. Boyne City is thriving and we're not. We need diversification of businesses down there. We need year-round businesses," he said.

Campbell's neighbor, Greg Stevens, 49, is running against him this term.

He said he has no beef with Campbell, he's just looking to serve the community.

"I don't have an ax to grind with him at all," Stevens said. "I would just like an opportunity to serve the people here. There's a lot going on right now in the city. And I've always believed you only get out of the community what you put into it."

Stevens, who moved into the City of Charlevoix, from Charlevoix Township, two years ago, has attended most council meetings since then to stay informed.

Like Campbell, he said city council needs to assist in the effort to improve the local economy. As he gathered signatures for his nominating petition, Stevens said this was the number one issue raised by those he spoke with.

"People in Charlevoix really want to keep the town the way it is. But there lived in Charlevoix since he was 13.

He has served on the City of Charlevoix Housing Commission, since being appointed in June 2005. His past political experience also includes five years of service as president of the Northwest Academy Board of Education.

Third Ward

Incumbent Sherm Chamberlain, 55, will run against Charlevoix native Tonia Wells for his third ward seat. In a recent interview Chamberlain said if another candidate, who he supports, were to file, he wouldn't run.

His decision to run again was based on the fact that at the time he filed, no other candidates had filed for the ward and calls he received from constituents urging him to see the marina and East Park renovation project through. According to the city's preliminary project schedule, construction will begin with sea wall replacement preparation on July 23.

"The general consensus was we

School board takes steps toward budget cuts

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The Charlevoix Public School Board voted 6-1 in favor of directing the administration to remove selected items totaling $928,300 from the 2006-2007 budget.

Shawn Biddle

The original projected cuts needed to maintain a balanced budget disclosed at their May 8 meeting were $871,517. Some board members asked that the matter be tabled until Monday, May 15 in order to examine further cuts more closely.

"It's important to note that they did not adopt a budget last night (Monday)," said Charlevoix Public Schools business manager, Shawn Biddle. "They directed us to take these items out for us to prepare the '06-'07 budget. They set some parameters for us."

During the meeting a new proposed budget was unveiled which, it passed, would have resulted in an additional $435,100 in cuts.

"The majority of the board felt that those additional cuts would take away from the programs that we offer and they decided they want to preserve our core academic program as long as we can," she said.

While the motion to approve $928,300 in cuts was passed, the motion to approve $1,363,400 died when the motion wasn't seconded.

Some of the major projected cuts on the failed proposal included eliminating an administrative position for a savings of $76,000, eliminating an athletic transfer for a savings of $136,000, eliminating teaching supplies for a savings of $53,600 and eliminating a clerical position for a savings of $50,000.

Though there were times where the entire room was silent, three citizens spoke during the meeting concerned with the future of the performing arts, French and certain vocational education programs.

Board president, Dennis Halverson, was the lone nay vote.

"This has done nothing to change my mind. I don't like that there has to be a (near) zero fund balance," he said. "I think it's putting the district in the position where I think isn't financially responsible — I don't want my finger prints on it."

Biddle said all figures on the proposed budget are tentative because there are so many variables in the budget.

"For instance, we won't know what our per pupil foundation allowance amount will be until October, so there are a lot of unknowns going into the '06-'07 budget," she said. "At the June board meeting, I will present the actual '06-'07 budget. I will go into the line items and apply the cuts that were approved and present a budget for them (school board) to approve."

Halverson asked what the cost of operating block scheduling was compared to the cost of traditional scheduling.

Biddle said, "They gave us a directive to put together what we think the additional cost is to operate block scheduling."

Biddle cautioned that the budget is merely a projection of what the board knows as of June 30.

During the meeting, Biddle gave an overview of why the schools are in fiscal distress.

"We had six years of budget problems in the state and they are the worst budget problems that we've had since World War II," she said. "We've had declining general fund revenues and very slow growth in the school aid fund."

She added, "Causes of the problem with the budget in Michigan are the weak economy, specifically our reliance on the automotive industry, stock market decline which has a direct impact on the retirement rate which schools are required to pay, tax cuts that have been permanent which were originally part of Proposal A and a structural imbalance between revenues and spending."

Superintendent of Charlevoix Schools, Dr. John Sturock, echoed his previous statement, "State law says you can't run deficit spending. That budget has to be balanced by June 30 — revenue has to meet expenditures."

Citizens committee makes recommendations

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

Rate increases were a large part of preliminary recommendation discussion by the City of Charlevoix's Citizens Advisory Committee whose aim is to assist in solving the city's looming budget crisis.

"I want to propose a win, win situation for the people of Charlevoix and for city council and city staff," said Don Voisin, chairman of the citizens advisory committee.

These initial recommendations made by the committee will be polished and included in a complete package of advisements to be given to Charlevoix City Council in June.

City of Charlevoix mayor Norman Carlson Jr. first proposed the formation of this advisory committee when he was elected in 2004.

Budget projections show the city will be short about $50,000 in its general fund by 2008.

Currently, city manager Mike Wiesner said the city is supplementing the general fund with infrastructure dollars to get it to the break even point. Over the past two years, $220,000 has been turned over to the general fund from the infrastructure millage.

In a previous interview, Carlson said that instead of city administrators making the decision to increase taxes or hike service fees, the advisory committee will make recommendations as to where the city can cut corners to make up the shortfall.

The group has met since November 2005 to review operating procedures and city department budgets to try and find avenues to trim costs.

While members of the committee have questioned whether their work is for naught, committee member Ken Staley offered reassuring words last Wednesday night, May 10.

"Don't think you're sitting here hopelessly, not influencing things, because you are," he said.

On May 10, the group formulated preliminary recommendation motions based on presentations they heard from Nov. 21, 2005 through Feb. 15. These included recommendations for the Charlevoix Municipal Airport, Brookside Cemetery and the City of Charlevoix Fire Station.

Charlevoix Municipal Airport

The first department they discussed last week was the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

"The airport needs to break even, everyone had that same consensus," Voisin said.

Currently, operating the airport requires a $25,000 transfer out of the city's general fund to break even.

Committee member, Tom Conlan, made a motion and received unanimous support that this transfer be discontinued.

The committee backed up its motion by proposing some possible sources of increased revenue.

Committee member, Curt Thompson, made a motion and received unanimous support that all fees at the airport, including parking, should increase annually at least at the rate of inflation.

"If you're parking a single engine airplane on the ramp at the airport, it should cost at least as much as it does to park a car downtown on Bridge Street," committee member, Chris Papineau, said.

To park a car in the average lot at the airport, it currently costs $2 per day, $3 overnight, $15 per week, $45 per month, $75 for six months and $150 annually.

City treasurer Rick Brandt said annual fee increases at the airport aren't derived from a set formula, but are based on a comparison of fees in surrounding communities.

He said increasing fees along with the inflation rate is feasible in some instances and was done in the 2006-2007 budget for all fees with the exception of parking.

"We were waiting on their (the citizen's committee's) recommendation (for parking fees)," Brandt said.

Staffing the airport has also been a hot issue. Discussion Monday night, May 15, of hiring a part-time airport manager who would also handle human resources responsibilities was trumped by Charlevoix City Council.

When this concept first arose in February 2006, the proposed wage for the airport/human resources manager, was $42,214 with fringe benefits costing $29,972.

Former airport manager Jim Shull, who worked there for a little over a year, said his job took about 16 hours per week. He resigned in early March and since then, Wiesner has overseen airport operations. Shull also fulfilled other responsibilities for the city.

Shull's predecessor, Karyn Brooks, made $25,025 for 2004-2005.

Papineau's motion to investigate the possibility of hiring a part-time contractor to manage the city's interest at the airport or adding the responsibility to the duties of existing department manager was unanimously supported by the committee.

The committee also recommended that the city curb spending at the airport.

They discussed grants and the city's matching cost. Voisin made the motion that the city make no land purchases, specifically the Louiselle and former Waste Management properties located off Old Norwood Road in Charlevoix Township, until the airport funds hal-ance or unless the property purchase is mandated by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

In some instances a grant from the FAA will fund a portion of a project's cost with the balance coming from the city's coffers.

"There's nothing free," committee member, Birdie Whitley, said.

On April 3, Charlevoix City Council approved a professional service agreement to work on a grant application to purchase the properties off Old Norwood Road. This application must be submitted by July 15 and requires city council's final approval.

Brookside Cemetery

Service fee increases and protection of the perpetual care fund topped the list of citizens committee recommendations for Brookside Cemetery.

City council approved repairs to Brookside Chapel, using money from the cemetery's perpetual care fund, came under fire.

Citizens committee member John Elzinga made a motion stating, "No perpetual care funds should be used for repairs at Brookside Chapel. Perpetual care should be used for nothing more than cemetery care and maintenance."

Committee member Ken Staley, who supported the motion, said, "The real crux of the matter is the way the perpetual care fund is intended to be spent. I have no objections to historic buildings or requesting grants to restore them, but I look upon that fund for maintaining the grounds and making minor repairs when lots are no longer sold and no income in coming in. Council should insist on funding from other sources."

Whitley, who is an ardent supporter of the Brookside Chapel renovation project was the lone dissenting vote.

"We do a lot of frivolous things in this city. That is one of my pet projects. I know the majority of the community doesn't agree with me — I'm representing older Charlevoix on that," she said.

Whitley did support a second motion, made by Voisin, that city council consider all avenues of trying to save Brookside Chapel including applying for grants, getting loans, discussing a preservation partnership with the Charlevoix Historical Society and private funding.

While the group wants to keep the perpetual care fund in tact, they also want to make sure revenue sources grow to where the cemetery can be self-supporting.

Committee member Tom Conlan made a motion, that received unanimous support for cemetery rates, including the perpetual care fund fee, to be adjusted annually to account for inflation.

"The long-term goal of the perpetual care fund should be to enable the city to operate the cemetery on a break even basis," he stated in his motion.

Fire and EMS

The final department the group reviewed last Wednesday night was the City of Charlevoix Fire and EMS. The hot topic during this talk was creation of a combined Charlevoix Township and City of Charlevoix fire and rescue authority.

While township fire chief and citizens committee member, Curt Thompson, said wages would make the authority concept impossible to achieve, committee member Pete Phillips still made the motion that the city look into it.

The motion made by Phillips, states, "The city council should consider the cost effectiveness of establishing a working relationship with Charlevoix Township. And look into the possibility of establishing a combined township/city joint fire rescue authority."

A second motion, made by Conlan, which received unanimous support was, "As a term of employment, all permanent fire and rescue personnel have paramedic qualifications. Those currently employed by 2007 and new hires within two years."

The third motion was to increase ambulance run rates according to the rate of inflation to maximize reimbursement and address the city's issue with collection.

The group will meet again at 6:30 p.m. today, Wednesday, May 17 to discuss preliminary recommendations for city attorney costs and the street department. The public is invited to attend.

The committee's membership includes both city residents as well as those with a vested interest in the city, including business owners.

A Gold Mine in Bedroom Drawers

Newsweek: People are selling their old scrap gold that is gathering dust for its cash value because gold prices are so high. With the price of gold at a 25 year high (over $650.00 per ounce), it makes sense. GoldKit.com, a gold recycler, offers free insured recycle kits so people may cash in their scrap with 24 hour service and guarantee satisfaction. ACE celebrates expansion at grand reopening

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

ACE Hardware of Charlevoix will celebrate the grand reopening of its expanded store following a renovation project that dramatically increased its retail space.

"There are still things Charlevoix needs that aren't here. We had to go bigger to accommodate the people here," said Mark Greyerbiehl, who with his wife Vicky, owns the local ACE Hardware.

"There were multiple category holes we felt we could fill to help people get the products and services they need," Vicky added.

In 1997, the Greyerbiehls moved to Charlevoix with their three children, Mike, Kevin and Kelly to enjoy semi-retirement. They bought the local ACE Hardware store, which was located off Bridge Street at that time.

They thought the move to Charlevoix from the Highland area, where they owned an ACE Hardware for over 10 years, would mean a slower pace of life.

Since then, they've found meeting Charlevoix's growing needs is anything but sluggish. Providing rental equipment for construction and event projects, and extended product lines required a larger store. They moved to their current location at 06675 North M-66 in February 2003 and have now added 6,000 square feet of retail space there. This brought the store's total retail space to 15,000 square feet.

Over 15 contractors, the majority of which are from Charlevoix, worked on the addition. Construction started in October 2005 and was completed last week.

Mark said the expansion created an opportunity for small engine service of lawnmowers, snowblowers, weed whips and chain saws. Product offerings were also expanded to include hot tubs, paintball supplies including providing tank fill services, underground pet fencing, increased house wares, Stihl chain saws and weed whips, a new line of mowers and snowblowers and more lawn and leisure outdoor furniture.

The new and expanded product lines and services made way for employment opportunities for at least two full-time workers and a few part-timers as well. Store managers are Shane Coel and Jason Corwin. Greyerbiehl said he feels the high level of customer service his employees deliver is part of what sets his store apart from its competitors.

"When you come in and see someone in ACE red, we want you to know you can get service immediately and you'll get the right help," Mark said.

The grand reopening party will include free refreshments, a ribbon cutting, Weber grilling demonstrations, giveaways and door prizes. The event will take place from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. this Saturday, May 20 and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sunday, May 21.

Tuesday, May 9, losing the first game 11-7 and winning the second 4-2.

Amber Hoffman started the first game by pitching three strikeouts and two walks.

After quickly falling 11-1, the lady Rayders began to rebound as they scored six runs in the last two innings, but were unable to recover from the deficit.

Desi Faust (2-3), Sally Haselschwardt (2-4), and Caitlyn Mitchell (2-4) each offered their hitting skills as Charlevoix attempted to recover.

Coach Tony Zimmerman said he would have liked to have seen more aggressive play from his team.

"We did not play well defensively and didn't start hitting until the fifth inning," he said. "We had our chances but we just couldn't get the hits that we needed."

In that evening's nightcap, Faust allowed only four hits and offered up three strikeouts and three walks.

The Rayders continued to improve on their hitting as Hoffman (1-2) and Lauren Mielke (1-2) provided strength from the batter's box.

After giving up two runs in the second inning on errors, the lady Rayders stepped up their defense to shut down Traverse City's hitting machine for the rest of the game.

Charlevoix continued to hold back on offense until late in the game as they quickly rallied to score all four of their runs in the fifth inning.

Zimmerman said he was proud of his team's perseverance and ability to fight back.

"This team never gives up and that is what makes this so fun for us," he said. "We make mistakes but we play hard until the end. I am very proud of them."

The Thursday, May 11 game against Cheboygan was canceled on account of rain and will not be made up.

With 10 games and less than two weeks remaining in the regular season, Zimmerman said he is looking forward to the challenges of the upcoming post-season.

"We're heading into a tough couple of weeks, this will be a good opportunity to get ready for districts," he said.

The Rayder varsity girls' softball team will play next against Suttons Bay at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 18 at home and then at 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 19 at home against Harbor Light.

Heading into the Lake Michigan Conference championship which was rained out on Friday, May 12 in Grayling, and again on Monday, May 15, the Charlevoix Rayder tennis team tied one match and won another.

The team locked horns with Elk Rapids in a 4-4 tie on Wednesday, May 3 and beat Boyne City 7-1 on May 5.

Coach Erik Lundteigen said he's confident that his tennis players will make a strong showing at the conference showdown.

"This is a big week for us. The team's solid. We've made improvements and I'm very optimistic heading into the conference and regional tournaments," he said.

In two previous matches this season, Elk Rapids beat Charlevoix. Lundteigen said his team had numerous opportunities to take the Elks in last week's match but things just weren't going the Rayders' way.

Soccer team continues winning streak on the road to playoffs

The Rayder girls' soccer team continued its winning tear with three wins and a tie.

On May 8, the team showed its offensive prowess, shutting out the East Jordan Red Devils 10-0.

Charlevoix was able to start and play their reserves in the conference win. Freshmen led the way with goals by Kris Broman (2), Nicole Cyr, KC McCary, Meredith Rich (2) and Katie Withrow. Also scoring were Danni Bergmann, Kaleigh Blanchard and Teresa Potter. Assists went to Bergmann (2), Molly Branicki, Cyr (2) and McCary. Freshman, Tammy Potter, earned the Rayder's eighth shutout of the season in goal.

The Rayders then traveled to Suttons Bay for a tough non-conference match on May 9 where they battled Division 3 Suttons Bay to a 1-1 standoff.

The Rayders managed 21 shots to 9 for the Lady Norsemen but were unable to connect on several good opportunities.

Sophomore, Becca Madison, led the Rayders throughout the night from her center midfield position. Seniors, Stevie Murray and Lisa Kuebler, played strong defense in front of fellow senior, Laura Nitchman, who was in goal.

The match began fast and furious on both ends. After Charlevoix missed a couple scoring opportunities, Suttons Bay was able to beat the defense on the right side and connect on a breakaway goal.

The Rayders finally answered with six minutes left in the half, when the Ramsey sisters connected again, with sophomore, Ariel Ramsey, sending an assist across to Madison Ramsey for the goal.

Also playing strong games for Charlevoix were midfielders McCary, Zita Anderson and Bergmann. Becca Madison was awarded the Rayder Player of the Game award for her tireless efforts in the midfield.

"This was an excellent test for us as we approach the state tournaments," head coach, Carol Madison, said. "Suttons Bay is a good team and we play them again at home. We were able to control the game but need to get better at finishing."

In a typically hard fought battle between rivals, Charlevoix prevailed in a 2-1 win over Harbor Springs on May 11. Sophomore all-stater, Becca Madison, got the scoring started midway through the first half with a beautiful left footer from 25 yards out into a strong wind. Although Charlevoix outshot the Rams 20-7 on the night, the first half ended at 1-0.

The Rayders continued to apply pressure on the Rams' net to open the second half. In transition, a Charlevoix defensive miscue resulted in an own goal and Harbor tied the score. The Rams, buffeted by the goal, came on strong for several minutes until the Rayders again settled down and began to control the play. Following a trip just outside the Rams' penalty box, Becca Madison again connected on a direct kick to put the Rayders up to stay.

Charlevoix's senior tri captain, all-stater Stevie Murray, played excellent defense throughout the night and was awarded the Rayder Player of the Game award. The Rayders also received good defensive efforts from senior tri captains Nitchman and Kuebler, and outside back Emily Foster. The mid-field was controlled by the Rayder's Becca Madison, McCary, Anderson, Blanchard and Bergmann. Senior striker Madison Ramsey created several good opportunities with her aggressive play up front.

On Monday, May 15, the Rayders, ranked eighth in Division 4, improved to 10-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference and 12-1-1 overall with a 8-0 home win over Grayling.

Goals were scored by Ariel Ramsey (3), Blanchard, Becca Madison, Rich, Potter and Branicki. Assists went to Blanchard (2), McCary (2) and Bridget Peters.

Nitchman and Potter shared the shutout in the net with Potter making one save on the night.

Potter and Megan Cross, returning from injury, shared Rayder Player of the Game honors.

Charlevoix travels to Traverse City at 10 a.m. on Saturday to play second place Traverse City St. Francis Liberty in a key league match-up.

Rayder baseball takes one loses one at double header

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

On Tuesday, May 9, the Rayder varsity boys' baseball team ended their recent losing streak as they split their double-header against Traverse City St. Francis, losing the first game 3-1 and winning the second 4-0.

In the first game, Matt Teuscher pitched a full game with two strikeouts, no walks and only six hits. Charlevoix was unable to tally the win despite a strong showing at bat — Shannon Gillespie and Eddie Waldron each hit singles, Cliff Jones hit a triple, Jon Putman a double and Danny Waldron a single and an RBI.

The Rayders remained tied until the top of the fifth inning when St. Francis was able to capitalize on a handful of Charlevoix errors.

After the first game, coach Allen Telgenhof said that his players were stymied by a pair of well-matched pitchers and Traverse City's solid fielding abilities.

"We hit the ball well, but we just couldn't seem to find the open spot," he said.

In that evening's nightcap, Eddie Waldron capped a solid game from the mound by pitching a shutout with 10 strikes to lead his team to the win.

The Rayders hitting machine took charge of the game — Jones had two hits and two RBIs, Putman had two hits and an RBI, Teuscher had two hits and an RBI and Gillespie nailed one in the fourth inning to carry their team to a 4-0 lead.

Telgenhof said his team continues to impress him with their growth and determination.

"Cliff Jones is our most aggressive base runner, he gets the whole team fired up," he added.

Thursday's game against Cheboygan was canceled due to rain and will not be made up.

The Rayder varsity boys' baseball team will play next against Suttons Bay at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 18 at home and again at 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 19 at home against Harbor Light.

The Charlevoix Public Library will be closed on Wednesday, May 24 for a computer server upgrade.

The Charlevoix Public Library is part of the PAC2 library consortium, which is a consortium of libraries that share a database. This database is the collection of all libraries' holdings. The consortium allows citizens access to over 245,000 unique titles compared to 36,000 unique titles that the Charlevoix Public Library owns.

"The consortium server is now four-and-a-half years old and is housing almost triple the number of records," said Valerie Meyerson, library director. "The upgraded server will not only allow for future growth but it will enhance library services as well. If our patrons want a quick reminder that their books are almost due, we will have the ability to send an e-mail."

During the upgrade process the library has no access to the database, thus cannot check anything in or out or look up items in the electronic catalog.

"The library board of trustees decided this would be a good day for a staff in-service session," said board president, Mary Ann Chew.

For more information about the temporary closure or to inquire about library services, call (231) 547-2651.

Looking back at a Charlevoix High School all-star

Marilyn Boss
'Days gone by'

I received a request at the Courier from Cal Maison of Traverse City's Blair Township, to write a story about former Charlevoix athletic all-star, Bob Carey.

Cal said he considers Bob to be, "The best athlete to come out of Charlevoix."

Bob and his twin brother, Bill Carey, attended Charlevoix High School at the same time that I did. They graduated in 1948, and I graduated in 1950. I remember them as great basketball players, as I was an avid basketball fan.

I am going to tell some of what I remember of them, before I write about the information Cal sent. Some of this information was taken from their class yearbook, "The Rayder, 1947-1948." In the senior annual, Bob was listed as participating in these extracurricular activities: Football, basketball, track, the Christmas Ball, Junior Play, class officer, the yearbook, Junior Hop, band and operetta. Bill's extra activities were: Football, basketball, track, Christmas Ball, Junior play, band, operetta, class officer, the yearbook, and the "Crimson Flash" school newspaper. Bob was vice-president of his class, and Bill was treasurer. Their class motto was "Seizing Ever, Ceasing Never."

In the class prophecy in the 1947-48 annual yearbook, Bob's prophecy was, "Watching the kids, while Dona (Sternberg) does the coaching." Dona was his girlfriend at the time. Bill's prophecy was, "Coaching at the University of Michigan."

In his class will, Bob left his basketball ability to Jerry Gibbons, also a ball player, and a classmate of mine. Bill left speech class to the speakers.

Bob was voted most sophisticated boy, and Bill, the best dressed. They both were voted "most athletic boys." Bob's nickname was "Big Bob." Bill's was "Hump." Bob's ambition for 1968 was to be the owner and manager of his own athletic club. Bill's ambition was, "To be a member of the 'Downtown Coaches Club.'" Bob's suppressed desire was to play professional baseball, and Bill listed his desire as a vocation. Bob's most cherished possession was his pricey suit ($67.50) and overcoat ($53). Bill's cherished possession was his memories of school days.

The two boys excelled in basketball, and in the 1947-48 season, the team went to the semi-finals of the State Championship, and were beaten by Milan in triple overtime. Milan was then defeated in the finals by St. Peter and Paul of Saginaw. I went to the game with my grandfather. It was sad to see them get so close to the championship, and then lose in the last minute.

Four Rayders topped the 100-point mark in the 22 games completed that season. Bob led teammates with 364 points. Bill had 167, Ross Case, 158 and Pat Martin, 124. These four Rayders were all-conference first team choices. Cliff Lagerman was a defensive artist, and scored 91 points; in spite of a delayed starting assignment.

The 1947-48 Charlevoix basketball team included: Bill Carey, Dave Smith, Dick Donaldson, Cliff Lagerman, Pat Martin, Don Burke, Warren Shadko, Don Coney, Bob Carey, Bob Shanahan, Dave Hardy and Ross Case.

Cal sent me a page from a Michigan State College book, and also sent some facts on Bob. Bob's picture is in the book, and he's listed as Athlete of the Year for 1949-50. I am going to quote from this book, as they listed his accomplishments.

"A rarity of modern times, Bob

Bob Carey

Carey (football 1949-1951, basketball 1950-1952, track 1950-1952), not only lettered in three sports but was a standout in all three. He excelled as a 1951 consensus all-American end in football, three-year starter at center in basketball, and top-ranked shot put in track and field (1952 Big Ten champion and NCAA third place finisher). Tied with two other past Spartans, his name still tops all other Michigan State receivers with eight touchdown receptions in one season. Even though his football responsibilities meant he would report late for basketball, he ranked third in team scoring as a junior and second in team scoring as a senior. Entering the professional ranks upon graduation, Carey played six seasons in the National Football League, four with the Los Angeles Rams and two with the Chicago

Bears. His twin brother Bill also lettered in football (1949-1951) and basketball (1951-1952), while older brother Chuck Carey lettered as a member of the 1940 football team. The Carey's were from Charlevoix, Mich., where their high school coach was Ray Kipke, a star of the 1923-1924 MAC football teams."

I want to thank Cal for the information he sent. I enjoyed writing about Bob, bringing back many memories of those days at Charlevoix High School. Bob passed away, but Bill is still living in Charlevoix.

"God bless you, Bob, wherever you are," Cal wrote at the end of his letter.

Black bear caught in city limits

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

A 150 pound black bear stretching 6 feet in length, believed to be looking for its breakfast, stumbled into downtown Charlevoix early Monday morning, May 22.

A cooperative effort between representatives of the City of Charlevoix Police Department, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office and the Roscommon and Gaylord offices of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, brought a peaceful end to the six-hour standoff.

"It was a success — safe for the bear and safe for the public," said Mark Sargent, management unit supervisor for the Gaylord office of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

According to city police chief, Gerard Doan, first word of the bear roaming the city came via a 911 call made around 6:30 a.m. from a resident reporting the bear wandering through their backyard in the 300 block of Antrim Street.

"The bear was most likely looking for food. It had also been spotted going through a garbage can," he said.

From that time on, law enforcement officials cordoned off several city streets to reduce the chances of human-bear interaction.

Representatives of the aforementioned groups were able to locate the bear, which after being spotted proceeded to climb a tree near an Antrim Street residence.

At around 9:30 a.m. the bear showed signs of fatigue, climbed out of the tree and proceeded to run from its Antrim Street location, through residential areas and into another tree located in a group of homes near the intersection of Park Avenue and Sherman Street.

According to Sargent, Brian Mastenbrook, also with the Gaylord office of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Mark Boersen, of the Roscommon office, teamed up to remove the bear.

Rivulet developers pull site plan review request

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Residents opposed to a hotel/resort condominium project are holding their breath after tallying a win in their fight against a proposed development.

"I'm not as overjoyed as you might think I should be. I think they are going to reload and bring forward another proposal. I'm hoping that might be more suitable. But it might not be. But the first act ended well," said Steve Hansen, a property owner whose parcel abuts the Pine River Lane Rivulet Pointe development site.

On May 16, Jack Turner, the attorney representing Rivulet Pointe landowners Peter Carey, Julie Bandfield and Randy Carey, sent an e-mail to attorney for the City of Charlevoix, Jim Young, withdrawing his clients' site plan review request.

Turner declined to comment as to why the Carey-Bandfield request was withdrawn. Calls made to Randy Carey and the property real estate agent, Nancy Carey, weren't returned by press time.

Over the past four months, the development in question, Rivulet Pointe Hotel Resort, has been met with both support and opposition.

The development plan shows a 12-unit resort hotel to be built at 115 Pine River Lane, overlooking the Pine River Channel.

The proposed $10 to $12 million resort hotel, to be developed by Carr Acquisitions of Gaylord, would span over 30,000 square feet and would have 24 underground parking spaces. The lot is 7 tenths-of-an-acre of land and is zoned commercial. The city's zoning ordinance allows for hotels/motels in the commercial district.

On Feb. 13, the city's planning commission determined that the proposed project is an allowable use by right in use a tranquilizer gun and successfully subdued the bear with a dart.

DNR tranquilizes and relocates black bear roaming the City of Charlevoix

Doan said the bear did not fall from the tree, but about 20 minutes after being hit with the dart, slid down as the serum began to work its magic.

He added that bear sightings have also been made in the Norwood area and this could be the same bear.

"There's a good chance this is the same bear. But we really don't know," he said.

Regardless of where the bear came from, it now has a new home. The bear was tattooed for future tracking, caged and released in the Pigeon River State Forest, located northeast of Gaylord.

The bear scare, which drew dozens of onlookers, was over at around 12:30 p.m.

This is the second black bear that has ventured into the City of Charlevoix in the past six years. The first came through at around 1 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 18, 2000. Department of Natural Resources representatives were unable to tranquilize this bear and shot and killed it.

"I'd rather have a happy ending like this than to have something tragic happen," Doan said.

He added that residents who see bears in residential areas should call 911 and observe the bear to give the dispatcher an approximate location. "But don't approach it," he said.

At around 9:30 a.m. a black bear that made its way into the City of Charlevoix briefly descended from a nearby tree at this residence, located at 209 Antrim St., only to return to another tree minutes later. The bear was captured at around 12:30 p.m. and released in the Pigeon River State Forest.

Click it or Ticket infringes on personal choice

Benjamin Gohs
'Staff writer'

The "Buckle Up or Pay Up, Click It or Ticket" safety belt enforcement mobilization runs, May 22 to June 4 with 800 zones conducted by 234 agencies.

I won't argue whether seat belts do more good than harm, there is enough junk science on both sides of the issue to reassure the already convinced.

I don't blame police for costs incurred in extra man-hours or for the $65 tickets they dole — cops merely enforce the intrusive legislation.

The state's so-called concern is saving some of the 1,100 lives lost, and resultant costs incurred, on Michigan roads each year — 40 percent of which are alcohol related. Meanwhile, 450,000 smokers, 370,000 grease eaters and 100,000 hoozers die annually, and cost us exponentially more.

Committed in excess by the uninsured, these choices can burden society, but outlawing them is arbitrary and insulting — was our government really created to protect us from ourselves? If we're not privy to basic freedoms, what hope do we have for the rest?

If Big Brother wants to save innocent lives, then stop letting drunk drivers keep their licenses and stop merely slapping child molesters on the wrists.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Association (NHTSA), integral in implementing our seat belt law, admits there was, "Not a sufficiently wide base of sponsors to convince legislators that there was political safety in supporting the bill."

Lobbyists paid for by special interest groups from the auto and insurance industries "Coordinated grassroots effort(s) to build political comfort for legislators," a National Highway Traffic Safety Association press release states.

The Michigan Petroleum Association (MPA/MACS) was also instrumental in promoting the "Click It or Ticket" campaign — It's not like they expected the state to play stupid while fuel distributors gouged Michiganders at the pump.

"Their (MPA/MACS) basic self-interest is dead customers won't buy any more gasoline," states the National Highway Traffic Safety Association. And of Melody Farms Dairy they said, "Who drinks their product? Mainly, kids drink their product. Seat belts and safety seats save kids, and saving kids is good for business."

After all, "Click it or Ticket," is a much better slogan than "Please don't die. Corporations want your money."

The National Highway Traffic Safety Association advises lobbyists in other states to, "Quit pushing the message that the law will help the state qualify for federal funds."

Oh, didn't I mention the federal government is offering $500 million to be divided among states with seat belt laws?

Legislation on personal behavior increases by the day. Yet, when concerns are voiced, we're told that it's necessary to ensure our safety.

Eighteenth Century colonial sympathizer, William Pitt, said, "Necessity is the plea for every infringement of human freedom: It is the argument of tyrants; it is the creed of slaves."

Officials say the tickets will promote compliance, not punish. Sounds like nothing more than a $65 tax on personal choice. And since I can't afford $455 a week to exercise my God-given right to liberty, I'll continue to huckle up.

Anyone tired of being treated like a child can contact their legislators by visiting: www.michigan.gov.

Writer's inside look at local group of cancer survivors

Gayle Gennett
'A look at life'

I recently saw first hand the positive things that can come from cancer — courage, comfort, compassion and camaraderie.

I had the heartfelt opportunity this past week to volunteer at the TRI 4 FUN Women's Triathlon. The event's main purpose was to create a positive atmosphere of support and raise money for two cancer support groups in Charlevoix and Emmet counties: Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders and Circle of Strength.

Forty registered participants took part in the triathlon which covered territory from Bay Harbor through the back roads of Charlevoix. It was a community-wide effort spearheaded by its creator, Charlevoix resident Michelle Rick-Biddick.

Michelle had always wanted to participate in a triathlon before reaching the ripe old age of 29. The years flew by and with each new birthday the thought would return. "This outdoor enthusiast, who relished life and followed a healthy lifestyle, was about to enter unfamiliar territory at the age of 48 when diagnosed with breast cancer. The time had come to reflect on her life and take charge of her future.

With no family history of cancer, her family and friends learned that cancer isn't choosy when it decides who it will strike next. Her inspiration to fight for her life came from her family and her good friend and mentor, Donna Moll. Donna had befriended Michelle when she first moved to Charlevoix. Little did she know that Donna's own survival of cancer would become her beacon of hope in the midst of her own diagnosis.

At 79, Donna Moll is a cancer survivor whose optimism and energy belies her age. Donna biked across the United States this past summer participating in a cancer fund-raising event and garnered the honor of being the oldest participant in this recent triathlon.

The event also welcomed the "Survivor Team" made up of Kim Stevens, Gay Pung and Diane Gorkiewicz, three courageous women who have supported each other in recovery with their tenacity.

Diane needed to pull out at the last minute due to a non-cancer related illness. I spoke with Diane and listened as she echoed Michelle's sentiments. She said the triathlon is a united effort to bring fun to a cause and celebrate survivorship. Her own diagnosis of breast cancer in November 2000 encouraged her to help others. Her best advice is, "Go with your feelings. Be your own advocate for your own health. If you discover a lump follow it up with a mammogram." Unlike the other women I had met, Diane did have cancer in her family history so she became diligent regarding her health care.

The triathlon held a special importance to Kim as it was the six-year anniversary of her diagnosis. It was May 18, 2000, when Kim, who like Michelle had no prior cancer confirmed in her family, was given the surrealistic news. Tears filled Kim's eyes as she relived the moment when after a routine mammogram, doctors in-

One of the teams participating in the May 19 TRI 4 FUN Women's Triathlon to raise money for two cancer support groups in Charlevoix and Emmet counties: Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders and Circle of Strength, was comprised of three local cancer survivors and friends. formed her tumors had been discovered. Biopsies later confirmed that the tumors were benign. At 39 years of age, Kim underwent a modified radical mastectomy and reconstructive surgery.

At the May 19 TRI 4 FUN event, Kim's family was very supportive of her first 5K triathlon run. Her husband, Rod, who is a runner, acted as her personal trainer, while her mom was present as a volunteer at the event. Kim shared that women diagnosed with cancer may question, "Why me, but after the anger and hopeless feelings, the best route to take is action. Discussion, education and support are the keys to facing this horrific disease." Kim said if there's one thing she would like my column readers to remember it is, "Don't take life for granted."

Kim's ongoing friendship with Diane inspired Diane to establish the Circle of Strength program at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Encouragement and finances made available from the hospital's foundation provided educational materials and financial help for women needing mammograms, wigs, warm caps, breast pillows and further emotional support.

Best of all, the friendships that are forged by meeting others whose lives have been touched by cancer become permanent.

What I saw again and again at this triathlon was the importance of family support. There were daughters, sons, husbands and close friends whose lives had all been touched in some way by someone with some form of cancer.

Gay, also a member of the "Survivor Team," was diagnosed with breast cancer 14 years ago, at age 48. She too had no prior family history of the disease. Gay's first support besides her family was the Reach to Recovery Program for Breast Cancer Survivors. She has now joined Michelle Rick-Biddick, a cancer survivor and organizer of TRI 4 Fun Women's Triathlon tackles the bike portion of the event on May 19.

Diane and Kim with Circle of Strength whose focus supports all types of cancer. Her advice to others is, "There is hope after cancer. Early diagnosis is the key, self breast exams are extremely important. You can't let cancer control your life." Ironically, she is now providing support in return for her husband who is a pancreatic cancer survivor.

I continued my mission to find support for cancer survivors while at the triathlon. Dan Gardner, president of the Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders, attended to offer his support.

The May 19 triathlon brought in $8,700 to assist individuals in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. From this event, 100 percent of the funds raised will stay in the community. Both Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders and Circle of Strength assist in financing mammograms, research, awareness and medications. They also provide gas money and hotel rooms if needed.

It's people like Michelle and Dan who see the need and put words into action. As Michelle put it so aptly, "One step, one pedal and one stroke at a time, for a cure." It was my pleasure to be a volunteer at this fund-raiser and to know that if this disease should strike there's hope and support for me, my family and yours.

Peace Officers Memorial

Editor:
If you did not attend the Police Officers Memorial on Tuesday, May 16, in East Park, you missed a very inspiring and impressive program.

This was a ceremony honoring the six Michigan officers who died in the line of duty this past year as well as retired and active duty police officers along with all active members and veterans of the U.S. Armed Services.

Guest speaker, Capt. Tim Rod, from the Michigan State Police, 7th District, delivered a most profound speech honoring all law officers and service people.

This was an opportunity for all the community to say "thanks" to all these brave people, past and present. It's too bad there was only a handful of people attending this ceremony. To the ones that didn't attend — shame on you.

Let's all grow a row for our neighbors.

Well, it appears that spring has finally come to northern Michigan and with it the thoughts of many people turn to gardening. Are you one of those people who love to do the gardening but can't possibly use all the produce that results from your hard work? Are you overrun with rhubarb this spring and need to find it a home? Have you considered planting an extra row or two in your garden and donating the results of your labor to a local pantry?

Petunia truck takes home Mayor's Trophy at Holland Tulip Festival

For the first time in 17 years, Dale Boss was able to enter the Charlevoix petunia watering truck, pulling the 37-foot nautical Charlevoix parade float, in the Holland Tulip Festival parade on May 13.

In 1988 and 1989 Boss entered the float, but they made a regulation not to allow trucks in the parade after that. Through the efforts of Chris and Barney Way, the parents of Miss Charlevoix, Kari Way, the float was accepted this year.

The Holland Tulip Festival is the largest parade in the State of Michigan, excluding the Detroit parade at Thanksgiving. Holland had 181 entries, with thousands of people in attendance along the two-and-a-half miles of tulip lined streets.

Kari Way, Miss Charlevoix and Brittany Niswander, the first runner-up, were on the float. To Boss' surprise, about five minutes before the parade began, he was awarded the Mayor's Trophy for the best unit there, in the non-commercial category. There were around 100 units in that category.

"It is quite an honor to have a little town win the top award with all the competition that was there," Boss said.

Two tall Dutch girls, dressed in costumes, walked ahead of the Charlevoix unit, with a large banner stating that the Charlevoix entry had won the Mayor's Trophy.

Boss said the bubbles flying in the air from the two bubble machines, and ragtime piano music were a hit with the huge crowd.

Howard Elzinga: May 26, 1915 - May 19, 2006

Howard Frank (Slim) Elzinga, of Bay City, died Friday, May 19 at Brian's House Hospice. Howard was born May 26, 1915 in Atwood, to the late Henry and Mary Lou (Anderson) Elzinga.

Howard graduated from Central State Teachers College (now Central Michigan University) in 1939. Howard was a versatile four-sport athlete who earned 13 varsity letters. He was inducted into the Central Michigan University Sports Hall of Fame in 1987 as well as listed in 1969 All-time Great Central football team as a "tight-end".

Howard was a veteran of World War II, serving as a U.S. Navy pilot from 1942 to 1945. During that time, he was awarded a Purple Heart, two Air Medals and a Distinguished Flying Cross.

On Sept. 16, 1943, he married the former Jeanne Jeannotte in Brunswick, Maine. Jeanne preceded Howard in death on Oct. 27, 2004 after 61 years of marriage. Howard was a teacher and coach in Mio, Pigeon, Grant and Zeeland, before accepting a teaching/coaching job at Bay City Handy High School. There, he served as a teacher, coach, athletic director and guidance counselor. He retired from Bay City Public Schools in 1977. At that time, Howard and Jeanne moved to a home on Antrim Dells Golf Course in Atwood, residing there until Jeanne's death in 2004.

Howard enjoyed golfing, fishing, hunting and playing poker as well as trips to the casino. He was a lifetime member of the Elks.

Howard is survived by five sons: Kent, Chris (Kathy), Russ (Gayle), Mark (Cindy Thompson) and Beau (Cindy); eight grandchildren; Jason, Jared, Joshua, Brandon, Nicole, Ashley, Alexandra and Ian Elzinga; two sisters-in-law, Mil Elzinga and Betty Jeannotte; nephews and nieces, Greg and Chip Elzinga, Beth Boudreaux and Jim and Jeanne Jeannotte.

Howard was also preceded in death by his sister, Betty Elzinga; brother-in-law, Russell Jeannotte; and most recently by his brother, Ed Elzinga, who died on May 8.

At Howard's request, cremation has taken place.

A memorial service honoring Howard's life will take place at 3 p.m. on Saturday, May 27 at Cephart Funeral Chapel, located at 1200 Garfield Avenue in Bay City. Rev. William T. Hennessy will officiate and military honors will be conducted by the Bay County Veterans Council.

Friends may call from 1 p.m. until the time of the service on Saturday. In lieu of flowers, the family has suggested memorial contributions be made to Cure Autism Now, Brian's House, or a charity of the donor's choice.

The family would like to thank the staff at the Colomades Assisted Living Facility for the kindness and caring shown to Howard during his 18-month stay.

Friends may meet the family from 4 to 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, May 24 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. An Order of the Eastern Star memorial service will take place at 7:30 p.m. at the funeral home under the auspices of Order of the Eastern Star Chapter #72, Charlevoix.

A memorial service will take place at 2 p.m. on Thursday, May 25, at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. The Rev. Todd Thompson will officiate. Interment will be in Maple Lawn Cemetery in Boyne City.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Northwest Michigan Community Health-Hospice, 220 W. Garfield, Charlevoix, 49720; ALS TDE, 215 First St., Cambridge, MA 02142; Charlevoix United Methodist Church; or Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Wanda Hill

Wanda G. Hill, 85, of Charlevoix, passed away peacefully Saturday, May 20, at Charlevoix Area Hospital after succumbing to ALS (Lou Gehrig's Disease).

She was born May 29, 1920, in Boyne City, the daughter of Hylon J. and Mildred (Dornburg) Heaton, Sr. Wanda graduated from Boyne City High School in 1938, and Cleary College in Ypsilanti in 1939.

On May 25, 1940, she married Hal Hill in Boyne City where they lived until 1955, when they moved to Charlevoix. Wanda graduated from the Petoskey Beauty Academy in 1965 as a licensed beautician. Since 1980, Wanda and Hal have wintered in Gulf Shores, Ala., until Hal's death on March 21, 2003.

Memorial Day activities planned in Charlevoix

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Monday, May 29 is Memorial Day, a day designated to remember all who have died while serving the United States of America.

At 9 a.m. at Brookside Cemetery there will be a wreath laying ceremony at the flagpole, the Genesburg address will be read aloud, taps will be played and there will be a gun salute to honor those who have fallen while in service to their country.

At 9:30 a.m., various marching units including the Coast Guard Station Charlevoix, Coast Guard March Unit, Veteran's Color Guard, Rayder Marching Band and more will assemble on East Garfield Street for the parade which begins at 10 a.m.

The Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library Canine Marching Platoon will also be in attendance.

According to a Canine Marching Platoon press release, more than a dozen dogs of all sizes and breeds will march with their owners in the parade.

"If you do not have a dog, you are still welcome to march with the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library and their dogs," the release states. "The library has established a tradition of carrying signs of the names of Charlevoix citizens who have lost their lives in the service of their country."

Vice-president of the Friends of the Charlevoix Public Library, Mary Snider, will read those names during ceremonies in East Park following the parade.

For more information on the Canine Marching Platoon, Call Val Meyerson at (231) 547-2651.

While Memorial Day services tend to focus on those who have fallen in the line of duty, there were many women like Isabelle Seidel, an army nurse, who helped keep those soldiers alive.

Seidel, who began nursing training in 1939, graduated in 1941 and went into the army in the fall of 1942.

"With the situation as it was, I wanted to see if I could help in any way," she said. "It was the beginning of the war and they were opening hospitals here in the states and in Great Britain."

Through her nearly six years of service to her country, Seidel served in Wales, England, Scotland, France and Germany.

"At the time I wasn't seeing much of Europe because I was busy working and helping with opening the hospitals and serving soldiers," she said.

Seidel first served during World War II and later came back to work for Uncle Sam when the Korean conflict arose.

"My husband was already serving in Europe and I asked to be transferred there," she said.

Seidel, who didn't retire until she was 62-years-old, said she wouldn't want to go back to work for the country at her age, but she wouldn't trade the history she's experienced for the world.

"It was a great experience. I worked at and got to see most of the United States and parts of Europe that I would not have otherwise seen," she said. "I happened to be on duty in the hospital when General Patton died."

General George S. Patton was in an automobile accident in Germany and died on December 21, 1945.

tive that Memorial Day be observed.

"They (soldiers) need all the support they can get, and the people working with them need all the support they can get," she said. "I hope they will soon be able to come home."

Seidel hopes to attend the parade and ceremonies in honor of the dead.

The customers utilizing the pantries are thrilled when they can get fresh fruits and vegetables for their families. If you like to garden but are unable to harvest all you produce, contact your local pantry and see if they might be able to assist you.

When you think about the circle of hands helping other hands that could be created, and the lives that can be enriched through this simple program, it makes you ask, "Why Not?"

For more information or help finding a pantry, call the Manna Food Project at (231) 347-8852. Let's do all we can to make sure all the food grown in the local gardens this year makes it to someone's dinner table.

Nuclear weapons policy

Why was Israel permitted to develop a large arsenal of nuclear weapons without opposition or publicity? Arab nations are prohibited from possessing any nuclear weapons with much publicity. The population of Israel is far less than the population of New York City.

Letter Carriers' Food Drive

Editor:
The 12th Annual Letter Carriers' Food Drive for the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry took place on Saturday, May 13, this year. The Charlevoix community was most generous in giving food for the food pantry.

Under the direction of Kelly Morris, the National Association of Letter Carriers picked up food for the food pantry. Our shelves are full and it looks great.

We certainly appreciate the efforts of the letter carriers and the people who helped us fill our shelves. A great way to "Stamp Out Hunger" in our community.

Coordinator

Editor's note: The following letters were submitted by sixth-grade students at Charlevoix Middle School in conjunction with a class project.

Discontinue use of CFCs

Editor:
Did you know that ultraviolet radiation is invisible rays from the sun? Well, these extremely dangerous rays can damage our skin and can cause skin cancer. Only one object that isn't man-made stops ultraviolet rays — the ozone layer. Just think we're destroying that. I believe that we should discontinue using chlorofluorocarbons because they are destroying the ozone layer.

Without a doubt, the ozone layer is one-third thinner than it used to be. Also, there is now a hole in the ozone layer over Antarctica. This hole is dangerous to people, plants and animals.

The chlorofluorocarbons from factories and other pollutants are to blame for this loss of ozone. For example, many factories that make electronic objects use chlorofluorocarbons in some of their machinery. Then, with other chemicals, and smoke the chlorofluorocarbons are released into the air through smoke stacks.

Some factories have stopped using chlorofluorocarbons. These factories use other chemicals and machines to make or clean their products. Why can't all the factories stop using chlorofluorocarbons?

If we could all stop use of chlorofluorocarbons we could start to save the ozone layer. I believe we should ban chlorofluorocarbons and start saving the ozone layer.

Start school later

Editor:
Are your children too exhausted in class? This might change if we can convince the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education to begin Charlevoix Middle School at the same time the Charlevoix Elementary School students start classes so that we get more sleep.

One of my reasons is that children don't have enough time for breakfast. When we wake up, we usually miss breakfast because we are rushed to school. Even our teachers lecture us about how breakfast is the most important meal of the day.

Also, we don't get enough sleep because we are up late doing homework. A conflict that many people have is that they think children should go to bed earlier, and then they wouldn't have waking problems. But what they don't know is that we come home with lots of homework. Studies show that it's harder to relax and get sleep when your mind is stuck in deep thinking mode.

Another reason is that we will be more alert in class if we get more sleep. We could receive better grades if we get more sleep.

Having more sleep will help the middle school students. So, I hope you will help support me in my suggestion on starting school later.

Charlevoix needs hockey rink

Editor:
Are you a kid sitting at home bored out of your mind? Are you a parent who is worried about your child getting into trouble? Well, having an indoor ice rink in Charlevoix can fight your boredom and stop your worries.

First of all, a hockey rink and team would keep kids out of trouble. For example, it would give young people something to do instead of getting into drugs and gangs. If a kid does get in trouble, he or she may be kicked off the team. Although hockey may be a little expensive, it's less expensive than paying bail money or for counseling.

Also, a hockey team would motivate kids to keep their grades up. An example of this is that the coach wouldn't let you play if you got a C- or below. You can only play again if you get your grade up to a C or above. There was a kid on my team that had his grades drop, but because he wanted to play again, he worked extra hard to get them back up.

Finally, hockey can teach life skills. For example, shaking hands at the end of the game will teach sportsmanship. In addition, losing in hockey would teach you that you don't always win, and that's OK.

In conclusion, having an ice rink and hockey team would keep kids out of trouble, help keep their grades up and teach life skills. Please help in my effort to get an indoor ice rink and hockey team in Charlevoix.

Build outdoor ice rink

Editor:
Are you tired of driving to Petoskey for a little bit of recreational ice skating? The cost of gas is towering now. And skating is a great way to release your feelings. That's why I think Charlevoix should have a beautiful outdoor ice rink.

First, one can assume most people aren't crazy about driving somewhere far for some recreational activity. Not all students or adults have cars. So, if there was an ice rink in Charlevoix, citizens could walk. This rink could also save people money on gas.

Also, we could have a separate hockey rink. Did you know most Olympic hockey players had a local rink for practice in their younger days? In addition, the city could start a recreational league for hockey.

Next, have you ever realized skating is a great way to express your feelings? The fresh, soothing air of Charlevoix will also help relieve stress. Plus, the feeling of joy on skates will help boost a family outing.

In conclusion, having an ice rink could start a fresh, new building block for making Charlevoix more beautiful. So help me in this stand for Charlevoix's charm.

School funding needed

Editor:
I strongly believe the government must give more money to our schools. There are many things schools require that they need money for.

First of all, public schools should have more money for greater variety and higher quality in their cafeteria lunches. For example, the side items are consistently the same at lunch. If the side items were changed every other day, it would certainly make lunch more interesting.

Furthermore, schools deserve a greater inventory of supplies and also higher quality working materials. Many times, like when working on a shop project, we need to share materials like saws. Schools need sturdy, durable rulers and protractors so they don't break or wear down as easily. There should also be calculators with more functions. Students surely should have these things.

Finally, schools require more staff members for recess and the library. Our library is open sometimes only two or three times in one month. This is because of insufficient amounts of staff members. At lunch recess, all of the students are forced to go to the gymnasium. If we had more supervisors, students could benefit with a choice between inside or out.

In conclusion, I strongly believe the government needs to give more money to schools. Schools must acquire this money from the government for lunches, the library, recess, materials and for whatever else they lack.

Move recess out of gym

Editor:
A lot of kids in the middle school don't like lunch recess in the gym. It's very hot in there and kids could get sick.

Many kids in one place isn't healthy, especially in the winter. When fewer kids are sick, it means better grades overall.

Recess in the gym is also defeating the whole purpose of recess. Recess is supposed to get the energy out of kids so that they can listen better in class. In the gym the only thing you can do is talk unless you have one of the few basketballs they have there.

Finally, the last reason is many kids don't like recess in the gym. It's very hot and crowded in there. We just got this new playground equipment and we can't use it.

You may think I'm just a kid but please take this into consideration.

Charlevoix needs arcade

Editor:
Parents, are you tired of hearing, "I'm bored?" Does the thought of your child getting in trouble scare you? Well, I believe we should have an arcade close enough to walk to in Charlevoix because it would be safe entertainment for everyone.

I feel that it's unfair to the families that don't have enough money to get to the arcade in Petoskey. Also, my family has friends that don't own a car, and cannot walk to Petoskey to get to the arcade. Some people even say that it's too far to get to Petoskey.

Kids need more to do so that they don't get in trouble. I see kids hanging around on streets because they're bored. More kids are in the newspaper everyday for minor in possession. An arcade would be a great place for kids to be because it would keep them busy.

Furthermore, the Jungle, the arcade in Petoskey, is too crowded because everyone from Charlevoix and Emmet counties are there.

In conclusion, an arcade would be a welcome addition to our community. Please consider putting an arcade in Charlevoix.

Parents decide hunting age

Editor:
I believe parents should make the decision at what age their kids hunt, not the government.

More than eight states have lower ages than 12 to be able to hunt with an adult and a bow and rifle. Young children hunting with an adult help carry on an important tradition. Also, they're taught safety, patience and responsibility at young ages.

It will give kids an opportunity to spend quality time with their families. Kids who hunt, stay more physically fit and more active. This helps them to stay away from drugs, tobacco and alcohol.

If they can hunt at young ages they would spend less time watching TV and playing video games.

Last, kids who spend time outdoors grow to appreciate fresh air, clean water and learn to help preserve our natural resources. They will learn how to keep the outdoors cleaner.

Overall, I believe that parents should make the decision on what age their kids can hunt.

Doug Kosch buys Village Inn Pizza

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

One of Charlevoix's pizza hot spots was recently purchased by a Traverse City restaurant owner.

On April 14, Doug Kosch, a 39-year-old Traverse City resident, purchased Village Inn Pizza, located at 227 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix.

He bought the business from longtime owner Pat Heinke who also owned a Village Inn Pizza in Elk Rapids, which she previously sold.

Kosch moved to Traverse City from Detroit in 2002. While in the Detroit area, he owned and operated Duke Humphrey's Pub which specialized in Irish and Scottish fare.

In 2003, he started The Boathouse, a fine dining establishment located along the water on Traverse City's Old Mission Peninsula. He also owns J & S Hamburg in downtown Traverse City.

He said his recent purchase was a natural extension of his restaurant holdings.

"The opportunity came up and it seemed like a good fit for me. I have fine dining. I have a hamburger place so I thought, a pizza place, that's what's next," Kosch said.

Thus far he said his decision has been a good one.

"I love Charlevoix," he said.

No major changes are planned. Cosmetic changes Kosch has already implemented include new carpeting and a redesign of the restaurant's logo. He plans to make menu additions including pork ribs and huffalo wings.

"Those items are just a natural fit for a pizza place," Kosch said. "I kind of look at it as this place was successfully ran for 16 years. There wasn't a whole lot new to do, just a few minor tweaks here and there."

One thing he will carry over that he credits for the restaurant's success is its use of fresh ingredients.

"Every day the pizza dough and sauce are made fresh, the cheese is shredded, the lunch meats are sliced and the salad bar items are chopped. We will definitely continue that tradition. It just makes for a good pizza," Kosch said.

Staff manager, Barb Grossbauer, was maintained. Staff levels are currently at five full-time workers and eight part-timers. Additional positions are open for the summer season.

Village Inn Pizza is open from 11:30 a.m. to midnight Monday through Saturday and from 11:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday.

For more information or to place an order for pickup or delivery, call (231) 547-4405.

Wojan Windows saves the day in Katrina relief effort

Wojan donates windows to elderly Hurricane Katrina victims

Local businessman Denny Wojan, owner of Wojan Windows, made a much needed contribution of windows for a home that was being built for hurricane victims in Bayou La Batre, Ala.

WeCareBaldwin, a non-profit organization based in Baldwin County Alabama, was ready to begin construction on their third home when the group's chairman announced a possible delay because the windows they were counting on were still in the state of Washington due to shipping problems.

Pam Smith, a Charlevoix snowbird and a WeCare volunteer, offered the group a possible solution to the dilemma. She called Wojan and explained WeCare's aim and the situation the organization faced. Wojan didn't hesitate to offer help. After a quick check of the manufacturing and delivery schedules, he called back to say that he would have the windows delivered to Alabama in one week. As promised, seven days later, the windows arrived.

The entire build was completed in seven days. The home was built for an elderly couple that lost their home, didn't have insurance, and lacked the ability to go back to work to get back on their feet.

Pam and Don Smith were working with the crew when the windows were installed. They said they felt a great deal of pride to see the windows installed with the Wojan window sticker stating that they had been made in Charlevoix.

Aside from building homes, WeCare has also delivered food, water and Christmas gifts to Katrina victims.

All three homes were built with volunteer labor and donated materials. WeCare has a goal to build 10 homes before the end of 2006.

For more information, call Pam and Don Smith at (231) 547-2125.

Muellers given Governor's Award for Castle project

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Once a modern marvel turned ruins, the newly restored Castle Farms complex in Charlevoix was selected as one of the great historical preservation sites in the nation.

William Anderson, director of the Department of History, Arts and Libraries presented Castle Farms owners, Linda and Richard Mueller, with a historic preservation award on Thursday, May 18 in Lansing.

The Muellers were unavailable for comment, however, director of marketing and shows at Castle Farms, Stephenie Sayre, said the two are pleased with news of the honor.

"I think that it's a great way to recognize Linda for all the time, effort and passion that she has put into restoring this place to its original grandeur," Sayre said. "She (Linda) fell in love with the castle from the very beginning as a teenager when she used to come up and visit. So, I think it's appropriate she's honored after all this time."

She added, "I think maybe this award makes all the hard work and huge capital investment worth it."

The Mueller's have invested over $10 million and five years of work into rehabilitating the Castle Farms complex.

Construction on Castle Farms began during World War I and passed through several owners before it was purchased by the Muellers in 2001.

The castle property has been used for farm exhibitions, rock concerts, a 4-H camp and foundry for an artist before its current use as an event and convention center.

The Governor's Awards for Historic Preservation which the Muellers received, began in 2003 as a way to honor significant historical site preservations. It is given to a few individuals, developers, corporate entities or other government and non government entities which have important historical structures or items.

"Historic rehabilitation efforts transform our downtown areas and neighborhoods every day, creating culturally interesting places for people to live and work and providing a catalyst for economic growth," Gov. Jennifer Granholm stated in a May 4 press release. "This year's award winners all serve as exemplary models of collaboration and commitment to excellence for the historic preservation community."

Charlevoix's Castle Farms is among five other sites named for an award this year which include Traverse City's City Opera House,

People come together at city hall to talk peace

Peace activist, Kate Bassett, introduces herself before giving her talk on, "Poverty, patriotism and peace: Exploring the U.N. millennium development goals and their relationship to the peace process," at the May 20 workshops on the war between the United States and Iraq presented by Northern Michigan People for Peace.

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

About 25 people attended "The cost of war, the price of peace," a series of six workshops on the war between the United States and Iraq on May 20 at Charlevoix City Hall.

The event was hosted by Northern Michigan People for Peace.

Local peace activist, Ellis Boal, presented the workshop, "The politics of the resistance in Iraq and the peace movement in the United States."

"We're going up against a country in the stone age and they're beating us. How could that happen?" Boal said.

Boal noted the conflict in Iraq is not a conventional war in the respect that the U.S. faces guerilla warfare — sometimes incorrectly referred to as terrorism.

"I don't think it's terrorism to strike at a military target," he said. "Is there some military advantage to using terror? It demoralizes the opposition. When the U.S. dropped a bomb on Hiroshima, that was a nonmilitary target. And what was the purpose of that? Terrorism. It demoralized the Japanese people."

Boal gave a brief talk on the history of Iraq to the present day before the attendees asked him questions and discussed the current situation of the war.

"The purpose of these workshops is to educate people, to try and acquaint them with the political facts on the ground," he said. "Knowledge is power, and by people acquainting themselves with the truth of the matter, we feel

People for Peace host workshop series on Iraq war that eventually will force the United States home."

Boal finds the shift in demonstration locations between the Vietnam War and the current conflict interesting.

"Now you find events like this in little towns all over the country. We're doing it in Charlevoix, last month we did it in Petoskey, they've even had events in Traverse (City)," he said. "Whereas when we used to march in the (19)60s, you would only go to Washington (D.C.) or do it in New York or San Francisco. So there's been a democratization of that, and it's much more comfortable — you don't have to get on a bus and go somewhere else to make it happen."

While Boal was never ashamed to speak his mind when it comes to his beliefs, he said there has been a notable shift in the attitudes toward demonstrators.

"You did feel a certain sense of intimidation back then," he said. "There was a lot more hostility against the antiwar people than there is now."

He added, "If someone is against the war, you can have a civil conversation with someone who's for the war, whereas back then you couldn't, or it was difficult."

Boal said the first thing people should do if they're interested in furthering the peace process is to discuss the subject.

"Call your elected officials, bring it up in your church, in the union halls, in your social clubs, your Zontas, your Lions," he said.

Marching is still one of the best ways to get the attention of those in power, Boal said.

"It has a couple beneficial outcomes. For one, it accomplishes the main goal of getting the U.S. out of Iraq, and number two, it gives a sense of empowerment to people that they can take something in their hands (see) there is a solution," he said. "Bringing people into this engages them in the political process. It benefits the community."

Boal said it's important for people to take the time to focus on things that benefit the community.

"Children and jobs are very important. I don't mean to denigrate that for a second, but there is some insularity," he said. "You also need to try to think of things that benefit society."

He added, "I think actions like what we're seeing here today help to bring that as a possibility."

Some of the other workshops were presented by Mark Mantel, whose talk was entitled, "Still shocked and awed—a discussion of the 'Leave my child alone' campaign to inform parents and students about military recruiting in our high schools," and a talk by Tom Beukema entitled, "The urgent need for a United States Department of Peace."

John Rohe spoke about strategies to slow the drive for war, and David Wassenaar's talk was entitled, "The emotional and social costs of war paid by soldiers and their families."

"Basically, I'm just a messenger of three generations who want to be able to preserve all this and keep it intact."

Mary Faculak.
Landowner who sold development rights to conservancy

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

As she stands near the century-old building used by her grandfather as a workshop so many decades ago, Mary Faculak contemplates the weight of what she's done.

The large gray structure anchored in the soil of the 232-acre farm lists in several directions, but has somehow lasted through rain, snow and wind.

"It's a continuous process," Faculak said of tending to her Lakeview Ranch, the property which has been in her family for generations.

There is no coincidence that Faculak chose her now passed grandfather's birthday to host the celebration of preserving her family farm.

"Basically I'm just a messenger of three generations who want to be able to preserve all this and keep it intact," she said. "What you see will always be like this for the wildlife and future generations of this area."

In the last four years the Little Traverse Conservancy has purchased the development rights to 1,728 acres of land in its five county area.

A grant from the Federal Farmland and Ranchland Protection Program in the amount of $200,000 was matched with other funds for a total of $400,000 which the conservancy used to purchase the development rights from Faculak.

The sale was completed in February, said land protection staff member for the Little Traverse Conservancy, Ty Ratliff.

"We'd been working with Mary for a year-and-a-half," Ratliff said.

"The federal grant we had applied for several years ago and received had to be used to buy property of high quality soils and active farmland. We couldn't buy 80 acres of Cedar swamp."

He added, "The land is still 100 percent private, but we have a perpetual conservation easement that will help preserve a farming culture that we're losing at a rapid rate."

While the taxpayers who contributed to purchasing the development rights on Lakeview Ranch won't be allowed on the land, the deer, waterfowl, raccoons, woodpeckers and rabbits of the area will continue to retain their natural habitat.

"Most of us enjoy driving along U.S. 31 past the cattle or the cherry orchards," Ratliff said. "Once you grow houses on it, you can never bring back the farming culture and the crops that it provides."

Ratliff said the conservancy doesn't want to purchase every parcel of land for protection.

"It's a balance. We're not trying to protect it all, just a little part of it," he said.

Also called a conservation easement, those with land desirable to conservancies can enter into a contract to give up their rights to ever develop, split or ask for a rezoning of the property in return for money.

Generally the number of homes and other structures to be built on the land are limited under the contract.

At one time, Faculak's parents raised dairy and beef cattle on the property. Now, she keeps horses and grows fruits and vegetables on the land.

According to a press release from Northern Michigan Farmland Protection, between 1992 and 2002, approximately 494,500 acres of agricultural land was developed into non-agricultural uses in Michigan.

Some, including the Public Sector Consultants, estimate a loss of nearly 2 million acres of Michigan farmland by 2040.

That's a loss of 25 percent of fruit growing areas, a 13 percent decrease of vegetable growing areas and a 36 percent drop in dry bean areas.

Ratliff said, the farmland and open space act being considered in Charlevoix County would be helpful to organizations like the conservancy.

"It takes money to protect land," he said. "Before you get the money, there needs to be awareness in order to generate the support needed to secure the funding."

The Farmland and Open Space Preservation Program in Michigan uses five methods to help ensure preservation of open land. These include the Farmland Development Rights Agreement, which temporarily restricts use of the land in exchange for beneficial tax assessments; the Purchase of Development Rights, similar to Faculak's deal; the Agricultural Preservation Easement, which was created to assist local government in purchasing development rights; Local Open Space Easement, another temporary restriction on the land, between owner and local government which allows beneficial tax assessments; and the Designated Open Space Easement, which is similar to the local space easement, but which is a contract between the owner and the state.

DNR officials discuss cormorant control

By FRANK SOLLE
Special to the Courier

The State House Appropriations Subcommittee on the Department of Natural Resources met to discuss increasing local concern over the presence of the double-crested cormorant and its impact on sports fishing, on Friday, May 18 at the Peaine Township Hall on Beaver Island.

Chaired by Rep. Howard Walker (R-Traverse City), the subcommittee included Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer (R-Bellaire), Rep. Darwin Booher (R-Cadillac), vice-chairman, and Rep. Tom Casperson (R-Escanaba).

Other than Elsenheimer, who represents Beaver Island as part of the 105th District, it was the first trip to the Island for the subcommittee members. Rep. Walker echoed comments of all members when he told the crowd of 40, "I can tell that there is a real sense of community here and that you folks are all looking after each other."

It was that sense of community that brought about this unusual gathering as the Beaver Archipelago has suffered over the past 20-25 years from the depletion of a once world-renowned small mouth bass fishery, along with an equal degradation of a once-strong yellow perch fishery.

Providing the subcommittee and those gathered with background information on that fishery and the presence of the cormorant was Pete Butchko from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wildlife Service (USDA-WIS), the federal agency responsible for overseeing cormorant control.

Using a power point presentation, Butchko highlighted the exponential growth of nesting pairs of cormorants since their inclusion to the federally-protected species list in 1972. A 1,000-fold increase has led to a nesting population of over one million birds.

According to Butchko, it is the Public Resources Depredation Order (PRDO), which went into effect in November 2003, that outlines procedures to be used in controlling cormorant populations. The order gives authority to state fish and wildlife agencies, similar tribal agencies, and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wildlife Service to battle the growing problem.

The Public Resources Depredation Order also describes the methods allowed in attempting to control the cormorant. These include egg oiling, nest destruction, cervical dislocation, carbon dioxide asphyxiation and firearm use. Regardless of the methods used, the order also mandates the protection of other wildlife and endangered species in the process.

Unless the program is extended, the Public Resources Depredation Order is set to expire in April 2009.

Butchko highlighted what is now looking like the beginning of a successful program of egg oiling and firearm use in battling the cormorants in the Les Cheneaux Islands area of the eastern Upper Peninsula. Relying on data collected by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Butchko pointed out that after two years of working to decrease the number of nesting birds through egg oiling and both lethal and non-lethal firearm use, the study shows a decrease in the number of foraging birds. The study also demonstrated a proportional increase in the harvest of yellow perch over the same time period.

"This shows we are headed in the right direction," he added.

Yet, Butchko pointed out two important facts. The first being cormorants are native to Michigan and the second that the birds are here to stay. Butchko also stated the cormorants are not solely to blame for all fish declines, but they are linked to some declines and some natural resource damage.

That statement was backed up by Michigan Department of Natural Resources fisheries biologist, Tom Rozich of Cadillac. Speaking of the Beaver Island small mouth bass fishery, Rozich said over harvest by anglers before the increase of the cormorants played a large role. He also pointed to the fragility of the environment and the damage to a population of successive cold springs may have. Rozich did lay the blame of poor fish numbers recovery on the cormorant.

"Decreasing the number of cormorants will speed up recovery of the fisheries," he said. "Decreasing the number of cormorants equals better stocking survival and a better fishery."

One problem Rozich touched on indirectly is that cormorant control comes under the jurisdiction of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources' wildlife department which does not really want to deal with the problem. So in essence you have a fisheries problem that cannot effectively be dealt with by the fisheries department.

"We do what we can piecemeal," Rozich stated. "But funding and staffing is a problem."

The accusation of over fishing was denied by two members of the audience who claimed to be longtime area fishermen. When asked if he had studies or numbers to back his statement, Rozich replied he did not, saying, "All we have is anecdotal evidence from talking with fishermen over the years."

One of the fishermen, Island resident Bud Rouch, claimed cormorant predation on shellfish depletes food supplies for game fish and therefore plays a large role as direct eating of game fish by the bird.

"There's no way this area was fished out by anglers," Rouch said.

Dr. Nancy Seefelt, Ph.D. of Central Michigan University backed up Rouch's claim by saying there is an indirect impact on the food web by the cormorants, not only on game fish. Seefelt, who has done a number of studies on the local fishery, said much more such work is needed.

Beaver Island Game Club president, Jeff Powers, read a prepared statement to the subcommittee detailing the "disastrous effects" the cormorants have had throughout the Great Lakes.

According to Powers, there currently are 11,000 nesting pairs of cormorants that make the archipelago their summer home. With an average of over three fledglings per nest, by midsummer there may be over 60,000 cormorants in the waters around Beaver Island. Given that each fish consumes 1-1.5 pounds of fish per day, that leads to a consumption of 30 tons of fish daily.

Powers also pointed out numerous

Legislators discuss cormorants' role in island fishery reduction small islands that have been denuded due to the nesting cormorants.

Another reason a local control program is needed is the concern of the local game club that the control efforts in other locations may frighten or chase more birds to the Beaver Island area.

A final, but equally important, concern for the Island game club is the newly established and flourishing walleye fishery on the Island's Lake Geneserath. "This fishery has been a wonderful addition to the recreational opportunities for Islanders and visitors alike," Powers said.

Also present at the meeting was Dick Mole, president of the Great Lakes Lighthouse Keepers, who stressed the need to control the cormorants given the damage and impact the cormorants have had on lighthouses, especially the isolated, offshore lights.

"It's a restoration problem," Mole said.

Chairman Walker thanked all those who attended and participated in the meeting. In closing he pointed out that as chairman of the House Department of Natural Resources Budget Committee he has helped earmark $150,000 of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources' budget to help augment the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Wildlife Service program.

"Our hope is this will help move Beaver Island up in line of control programs," Chairman Walker said.

"We have a good northern Michigan coalition focused on this," Walker said. "It is our hope that we can double the efforts in northern Michigan in cormorant control. We want to keep up the good fight to preserve these fisheries."

Charlevoix skatepark opening postponed

City Council approves city handling of park operations

On May 15 Charlevoix City Council agreed to have the city handle operations at the Charlevoix Community Skatepark which is scheduled to open in early June.

City council voted to go forward with 2006 operations and directed city staff to work with the fund-raising group, Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc. in hiring a supervisor to insure a smooth transition and on-time opening of the park.

Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc. will donate the funds needed to cover the cost of the first season's operations to the city.

The park will be staffed by city employees and a supervisor's position will be created. Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc. board members will assist the city as approved volunteers during special fund-raising events, clinics and competitions at the park.

In making the determination to operate the park, city council members reviewed a 59 page packet submitted by representatives of Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc.

There was some confusion as to how the park would be run and how the operation of the park would be paid for. The primary concern was insuring that funds were available to open a fully staffed park and to make sure that the skatepark did not operate at a loss, costing the taxpayers money. The city-owned park cannot operate at a profit, but any extra funds available at the end of the season will be set aside for long-term maintenance costs.

According to Charlevoix Community Skatepark Inc. board member, Laura Stebe, the skatepark also has the backing of some generous local residents who have offered their continued support of the park to make certain it doesn't become a financial burden to the city.

City council also approved a five-year maintenance plan to be funded by a private donor.

Future funding options were also explored.

The need to establish a recreation authority was addressed by Charlevoix resident, Maurcen LaBlance, Mayor Norman Carlson Jr., said this is being discussed and will be forthcoming.

With park staffing questions having been answered, a early June opening is planned at the park, located off Carpenter Avenue, across from the ball fields. This opening date is dependent on weather.

Stebe said construction is running according to schedule and an official "Grand Opening" party is being planned for early summer.

Rates for park passes will be $3 per day, $10 for a seven-day pass and $75 for a season pass. Scholarships are available.

The park season will run from April through mid-October, as weather permits. Helmets are required and will be available to rent for a $1.

All proceeds will go towards funding the park, employees and maintenance.

Anyone wishing to see a copy of the park's business plan or for more information on the park, call Laura Stebe at (231) 547-4505.

MDOT suspends roadwork to facilitate holiday traffic flow

With an estimated 1.1 million Michigan residents traveling over the Memorial Day weekend, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) will suspend construction on state roads and bridges whenever possible to make driving easier.

Beginning at 3 p.m. on Friday, May 26, and continuing until 6 a.m. on Tuesday, May 30, the Michigan Department of Transportation will open lanes and suspend work on 119 of 172 currently active projects.

The Michigan Department of Transportation is responsible for nearly 10,000 miles of state highways which carry approximately 80 percent of all motor vehicle travel. For the 2006 construction season, the department has posted a 60 mph speed limit in all construction zones that are marked with barrels and cones.

"Safety first, this holiday weekend," said state transportation director, Kirk T. Steudle. "Even though work will be suspended and workers will not be present on numerous projects over the Memorial Day weekend, motorists still need to drive with caution through construction work zones, obey speed limits, buckle up and pay attention."

Steudle noted that work zones are often modified from the normal roadway with lane-width reductions, lane closures, traffic shifts, or other modifications, all of which necessitate lower speed limits and motorist caution.

This year, a new sign, "Where Workers Present 45," means that motorists must reduce their speed to 45 mph where workers are present in highway work zones. The new speed limit change is expected to improve traffic flow and enhance safety in work zones. Specifically, when approaching "Road Work Ahead" signs, motorists should maintain the posted speed limit, look for workers, locate workers, and lower their speed to 45 where workers are present.

Motorists can always check current lane closures on the Michigan Department of Transportation Web site under "Quick Links" at www.michigan.gov/mdot.

Baseball team posts losses headed into final game of regular season

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

The Rayder boys' varsity baseball team fell two games to Harbor Light Christian on Friday, May 19, losing the first game 7-6 and the second 9-7.

The losses marked the end of the Rayders' three-game winning streak, but may have been all the encouragement coach Allen Telgenhof's team needed heading into the post-season.

"We made some mental mistakes that we haven't made for some time, they saw that their lack of enthusiasm really cost us," Telgenhof said.

In the first game, Cliff Jones (2-3) offered a single and a double and Brady Way batted a double and two RBIs to keep Harbor Light within reach.

In the second game, Charlevoix continued to showcase their hitting power as Zach Scharenbroch (2-3) hit a single and a double, Eddie Waldron (2-3) hit a single, a double and walked, Ty Telgenhof hit a two-run single, Kyle Jones hit a double and Travis Jakeway hit a two-run single.

On Tuesday, May 16 the Rayders swept Boyne City, winning the first game 10-3 and the second 7-4.

In the first game, Teuscher pitched his fifth win of the season with two strikeouts, no walks and only six hits.

Eddie Waldron (3-3) batted a double and an RBI and Danny Waldron (2-3) offered a single, a double and three RBIs to help the Rayders to the win.

In that evening's nightcap, Eddie Waldron pitched seven strikeouts and one walk with seven hits.

The Rayders once again displayed their ability to hit the ball well and secure a victory. Jones (2-3) hit a single and a double and knocked in two RBIs, Danny Waldron (2-3) hit a single, a double and batted in two RBIs, Putman (2-2) hit a single, a double, took a walk and brought in one RBI and Logan Niswander brought in one RBI.

Telgenhof credited his team's first conference sweep of the year to continued growth on the mound and overall determination.

"Matt Teuscher and Eddie Waldron were once again our key players. I was really pleased to see how hard everyone played," he said.

The Rayder varsity boys' baseball team will play their final regular season game at home against Bellaire at 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 26.

Kubotan self defense technique workshop

A one day, two-hour, hands-on workshop on the techniques of self defense of the Kubotan will be offered from noon to 2 p.m. on Saturday, June 3, at Northern Martial Arts, located at 05998 U.S. 31 South in Charlevoix.

The Kubotan has become one of the most popular self protection tools of the new millennium. It is small, convenient, relatively simple to learn how to use and legal to carry.

The effectiveness of the Kubotan can be devastating as it deals with striking or slashing at the vulnerable areas and pressure points of the attacker's body. Ideal for law enforcement and security personnel, senior citizens, women, or anyone interested in an effective means of self-protection.

At the upcoming two hour, hands-on working sampler, instructors will teach the techniques of the Kubotan for personal defense.

This course will be professionally conducted by chief master Dave Weatherly, an eighth degree black belt. Weatherly is a 45-year career martial arts veteran of the Korean Martial Art of Hapkido Sun Moo Kwan.

The workshop is open to those ages 12 years and up. The cost is $25 per participant.

For more information, call Northern Martial Arts at (231) 675-4414.

Softball team loses two to Harbor Light Christian

Who: Charlevoix High School softball
What it is: Final regular season game
When: 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 26
Where: Charlevoix High School

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

The Rayder varsity girls' softball team fell twice to Harbor Light on Friday, May 19, losing the first game 8-4 and the second 10-3.

Despite a 4-3 Charlevoix lead going into the sixth inning of the first game, Harbor Light was able to capitalize on a series of defensive errors to pull from behind.

Pitcher Amber Hoffman provided five strikeouts and one walk to keep Charlevoix in the lead for most of the game.

The Rayders' hitting was bolstered by Lauren Mielke (2-2) with a triple, Hoffman (1-4) with a double, and Leah Kelly (1-2) with a triple, to keep the Rayders in the game.

Coach Tony Zimmerman was proud of his team's defense but hopes to see more aggressive play heading into the post-season.

"We played a good defensive game, but our sixth-inning errors really cost us," he said. "We still need to keep our offense working throughout the game."

In that evening's nightcap, strong pitching from Desi Faust, a triple from Kelly (2-3), and a double from Faust (1-3), were not enough to save Charlevoix from their own defensive errors as they quickly fell to Harbor Light.

On Tuesday, May 16, the lady Rayders split their league double-header with Boyne City, losing the first game 12-2 and winning the second 5-4.

In the first game, Desi Faust offered seven strikeouts and only four walks, but the Rayders were unable to overcome defensive errors and a lack of running support.

"We came out flat and could not recover," Zimmerman said.

Hoffman pitched that evening's nightcap, giving up only six hits and two walks while offering three strikeouts.

The Rayders' hitting recovered to give the Rayders the lead with Genevieve Kochanny (2-3) hitting a triple, Hoffman (2-3) hitting two triples and Kelly (2-3) hitting a triple.

Zimmerman remains proud of his team's persistence and determination.

"The girls came out fighting and it paid off," he said.

The game on Thursday, May 18 against Suttons Bay was canceled due to inclement weather.

The May 25 game against Leland has been canceled to allow Leland to make up a league game.

The Rayders currently hold an overall record of 9-11 and a league record of 7-4.

The Charlevoix varsity girls' softball team will play their final regular season game at home against Bellaire at 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 26.

Rayder soccer team claims conference crown

The lady Rayder soccer team claimed the 2006 Lake Michigan Conference crown on May 20, the same way they have won many games this year — with a shutout.

The Charlevoix Rayders defeated the Liberty of Traverse City St. Francis 4-0.

Eighth ranked Charlevoix scored four first-half goals to remain undefeated in the conference at 11-0. Sophomore, Ariel Ramsey, opened scoring, taking a nice pass from freshman KC McCary, making one move to beat the Traverse City defender and rolling the ball into the net to give Charlevoix a 1-0 lead.

A few minutes later, senior Madison Ramsey was taken down in the box and converted on the ensuing penalty kick. Freshman, Meredith Rich, fol-

Tennis team misses qualifying for state finals by one point

By JULIE WITTHOEFT

The Charlevoix High School varsity tennis team placed third at the regional finals on Friday, May 19 knocking the team out of the running for the state finals tournament.

"We finished third, one point out of second place," head coach, Erik Lundteigen, said. "We're looking to come on strong next year."

Out of the 12 teams that competed at the regional meet, Harbor Springs finished in first place with 19 points, Traverse City St. Francis finished in second with 18 points and Charlevoix placed third with 17 points.

"We lost a couple of close matches that could have gone either way," Lundteigen said.

This will be the first time in three years that the Charlevoix tennis team hasn't qualified for the state finals.

Individual results for Charlevoix's May 19 regional final third place finish are:

- First, singles: Matt Novotny beat Boyne City, 6-1, 6-1; and lost to Harbor Springs, 4-6, 6-0, 6-3.
- Second, singles: Dan Swenor beat Boyne City, 6-0, 6-4; and lost to Traverse City St. Francis, 6-3, 6-4.
- Third, singles: Ty Haske beat lowed with a nice chip over the last defender to Madison Ramsey who volleyed the ball past the Traverse City goalie.

The Rayders final goal came with four minutes left in the first half on a nice shot by sophomore Becca Madison from 25 yards out.

The Liberty kept Charlevoix out of the net in the second half but the Rayders were not to be denied the conference championship.

Head coach, Carol Madison, said, "Charlevoix played their best game of the season, defending well, passing well and aggressively winning most of the 50-50 balls."

Senior captain defenders, Stevie

Murray and Lisa Kuebler, along with goal keeper Laura Nitchman, anchored the defense. Nitchman made nine saves in earning the Rayder's tenth shutout of the season. Kuebler earned the Rayder Player of the Game award for her aggressive defensive play and timely passing.

In addition to the players already mentioned, Charlevoix played well throughout the lineup. Coach Madison said Emily Foster, Zita Anderson, Kaleigh Blanchard and Lori Zimmerman all came to play.

Charlevoix, now 13-1-1 overall completes league play at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 25, at Boyne City.

Martial arts instructor travels to South Korea

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Local martial arts instructor, Christopher Demanaeus, brought home more than souvenirs from a recent trip to South Korea.

Demanaeus, a 30-year-old Charlevoix resident, owns and operates Charlevoix Jung Shin Do ("Way of the Right Spirit") where he teaches and practices the Korean martial art of Kuk Sool Hap Ki Do.

In mid-April, he traveled to Busan and Seoul, South Korea with 54 other people from the United States and Canada, through a program organized by the National Korean Martial Arts Association. His aim was to study the culture and integrate his findings into his classroom.

"It teaches discipline and goal setting," he said of Kuk Sool Hap Ki Do.

During the trip he participated in tournament sparring activities, seminars, sight-seeing and other cultural learning experiences.

Demanaeus, a third degree black belt, said he had the opportunity to delve into the Korean language more,

"I try and teach more than martial arts, I try and teach values."

Christopher Demanaeus, Martial arts instructor discovering new terminology and practicing proper pronunciation. A better understanding of etiquette in Korean culture was another major gain from the trip.

"I appreciated most the warmth of the culture — they're receptive, open people," Demanaeus said.

One afternoon during the nine day trip, Demanaeus stumbled upon a small Buddhist temple. He and a friend were invited in to sit and talk for over an hour.

"That was my favorite experience from the trip. I was really impressed by the simple fact that what they had going on was less important than sitting and talking with guests," he said.

He said what he brought home from the trip didn't include materials for his local classroom — but these cultural experiences he can now share.

"I try and teach more than martial arts, I try and teach values. I talked in class about taking time to get to know the people you deal with here in the states or when traveling elsewhere," Demanaeus said.

Jung Shin Do is certified through the National Korean Martial Arts Association.

Enrollment in the school is currently at 40 students, ages 8-45.

The business was established in 1990 by Kevin Janisse. Demanaeus took it over from Rich Wojan in 2003.

The students participate in three children's classes offered each week as well as three adult classes. Of those classes, two in each age bracket are in Charlevoix and one is in Boyne City.

For more information about Charlevoix Jung Shin Do or to register for classes, call Demanaeus at (231) 237-1431.

Rayder Baseball Golf Classic Says Thank You

The Charlevoix High School Rayder baseball team would like to thank all the individuals, businesses, and sponsors that made our first annual Rayder Baseball Golf Classic a big success.

Please show your support to the following businesses and sponsors who either donated prizes or were tee sponsors. Their generous donations show the community, their ongoing support for Charlevoix High School. We would like to thank the following:

First, Antrim Dells Golf Course for being such gracious hosts for the event. The accommodations, the course and the food were great! Secondly, Charlevoix Screen Masters. We look forward to next year's event. If you would like any information regarding next year's event, go to www.rayderbaseball.com. There will be information shortly as how you can participate next year. GO RAYDERS!

Boy Scout Troop 11 embarks on elm tree sale fund-raiser

Boy Scout Troop 11 will be selling elm trees to fund trips taken by the troop.

This is part of a project started 12 years ago between Troop 11 and the City of Charlevoix.

The trees for sale are an American liberty elm, the only true American species available. These trees should not be confused with Asian or European varieties. The American liberty elm was developed, after 40 years of testing, as a species resistant to Dutch Elm Disease, by the Elm Research Institute in Vermont. The trees for the project were selected because of the classic vase shape, disease resistance and vigorous growth.

The goal of the Elm Research Institute was to repopulate elms after the devastation of the Dutch Elm Disease that started in the mid 1930s. This program is called the "Johnny Elmseed Program," and is done as a collaboration between the local municipality and Boy Scout troop.

Many of the trees have been sold over the last 12 years and can be seen on Elm Street, behind the Community Reformed Church on the north side of Charlevoix. Another location where several can be seen is at the First Baptist Church off M-66 in Charlevoix.

The American liberty elm trees for sale are between 6 and 8 feet tall and are 4 years old. The number of trees available is limited.

For more information, or to order a tree, call Tim May at (231) 547-0979.

the commercial district. But in early March, Charlevoix City Council, the body that would ultimately decide the project's fate, postponed its decision pending a determination by the City of Charlevoix Zoning Board of Appeals as to whether the proposed hotel resort is an allowed use in the commercial zoning district.

The zoning board met on Wednesday, April 5 to hear an appeal filed by Bob Grzech, an attorney with the Charlevoix office of Running, Wise and Ford, representing a resident group, which includes Hansen, opposed to plans for the Rivulet Resort. He argues this project doesn't fit the definition of hotel as outlined in the ordinance.

At that meeting the board voted to adjourn, requesting that Doug Mansfield, president of the project's architectural firm, Wells Mansfield, present a copy of the condominium association's bylaws and rental pool agreement.

Grzech argues that regardless of Mansfield's assurances that the units will be rented, the project is residential in nature and thus is prohibited from locating in the city's commercial district.

However, Mansfield argues the 12 units to be built will be available for rent and will operate like a motel as defined in the city's zoning ordinance. Each will be individually owned and each proprietor will participate in a rental pool.

According to the ordinance, hotels must have a central lobby or office area from which users enter and exit supervised by a person in charge at all hours.

The office area for this project is located in the parking level.

Mansfield said there will be an on-call box and a manager in residence seven days a week.

According to information included in the project's revised findings of fact, residents with property near the proposed project also argue that the proximity of the project to their homes could pose a risk to their homes' structure during the construction process. Other concerns include soil erosion issues, light pollution, a potential impact on traffic flow, mechanical noise, trash removal, walls and fencing.

While the resident group opposed to the project has jumped this development plan hurdle they are hoping future plans are to their liking.

"My clients would like to see it developed for residential use. If they can put something in there that conforms to C-1 (commercial district), that's fine too," Grzech said.

Hansen agreed and said, "We think it deserves to be developed. And it deserves to be a residential property of some type. That's the best and highest use."

Whether the Carey-Bandfield group will continue with development plans is unclear at this time. Early this week, a for sale sign was posted at the property.

Acacia decommissioning June 7

By BENJAMIN GOHIS
Staff writer

Over six decades of history will be laid to rest when the Ace of the Great Lakes, United States Coast Guard cutter Acacia is decommissioned at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, June 7 at Coast Guard Station Charlevoix.

The United States Coast Guard Band, directed by Lt. Kenneth W. Megan will play in the Acacia's honor at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 7 at the band shell in East Park.

According to the 15-year Coast Guard veteran who spent two years on Acacia, Lt. Cary Godwin, the Acacia has done her duty and then some.

"(Acacia's) primary mission is buoy tending, but she's been used for law enforcement and homeland security and in the late 1980s she was sent down to the Caribbean for enforcement on Haitian patrols for illegal aliens. And, she does do some ice-breaking, though very little," he said.

In 1948, the Acacia aided cutter Mackinaw in opening a path from Buffalo, the earliest recorded date for such lanes to be opened on the Great Lakes. And, in 1951, the Acacia was used to assist the Rand and the Brown after they collided off the St. Claire river system.

"She also assisted motor vessel Schoonmaker that ran aground near Detroit," Godwin said.

Following the June 7 decommissioning, everyone on the ship will be relocated to different units.

See ACACIA, page 3

When United States Coast Guard cutter, Acacia, is decommissioned June 7, it will be her captain's last command. Commander Keith Bills will officially retire at the end of this summer.

Senior prank damages two classrooms at Charlevoix High School

By JULIE WITTHOFT
Editor

An act referred to by officials at Charlevoix Public Schools, as a "senior prank" will cast a dark shadow over graduation ceremonies this Sunday.

According to Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Dr. John Sturock, during the evening hours of Thursday, May 25, students broke into Charlevoix High School, located at 05200 Marion Center Road in Charlevoix.

Sturock said at this time it's believed one of the students involved used a key to enter the building, but this has not been officially determined in the investigation.

He said those involved clogged sinks in Tim Volovsek's second level science classroom and turned the water on. The flooding water overflowed into Roger Gowell's lower level biology classroom causing ceiling damage and ruining classroom materials.

Sturock said at this time the financial cost of the prank has not been estimated.

"The investigation is ongoing and we will prosecute," he added.

School officials are working in conjunction with officers from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office on the case.

While the perpetrators may face malicious destruction of property charges in the future, Sturock said if they are seniors, they won't be able to walk with their classmates at the class of 2006 graduation ceremony to take place at 2 p.m. this Sunday, June 4. They will however receive their diplomas.

This is the same punishment handed down a few years ago when graduating seniors spilled vegetable oil throughout the halls at the former Charlevoix High School, which is the current middle school, located off Garfield Street.

The perpetrators involved in that instance were also prosecuted.

Last year, Sturock said students spelled out "Congratulations" in whiskey bottles at the school entrance.

"We don't want whiskey bottles at the school's entrance, but it wasn't malicious in nature," he said.

Charlevoix High School principal Gary Grundman said, "We are putting a lot of pressure on a lot of people. They have until Thursday morning to come up with the truth or everyone involved can't march (at graduation)."

Deer runs through Auto Value window

At around 5:30 p.m. on Friday, May 26, officers with the City of Charlevoix Police Department responded to a report of a deer that had crashed through a window at Auto Value, located off West Carpenter Street.

The deer smashed through a front window at the business, which was open at the time of the incident. There were four employees inside.

The deer ran through the store in spite of serious injuries it had sustained from its impact with the window.

Deputy chief of police, Scott Hankins, responded to the scene and used a catch pole to trap the animal and pull it from the building. Hankins was assisted by shift commander Bob Roloff, with the City of Charlevoix Fire Department.

Due to serious injuries the deer sustained from its impact with the window, Hankins destroyed the deer.

No Auto Value employees or customers were injured during this incident.

Officials: No decision made on Acacia replacement

Godwin, who is excited about taking over his new post as commander of the 140-foot ice-breaking tug, Biscayne Bay in St. Ignace later this summer, said leaving the Acacia is also a hittersweet time for him.

"It's a sad moment, but it's also kind of a proud moment too," he said. "We're the last 180-foot buoy tender, and she's in good shape. We love the city and the people of Charlevoix, but with new technology and new ships comes bigger and better things."

"The newer ships are just more capable," Godwin added.

It's yet known whether the Acacia will go to the Coast Guard's main shipyard for sale to another entity or whether she may be used as a floating museum.

The Acacia (WLB-406), which got its name from a lighthouse service ship which was sunk during World War II, was launched on Sept. 1, 1944 and has remained active for 62 years. She is one of the last of the 39 180-foot World War II-era cutter-huys tenders.

The Acacia won't be the only familiar friend leaving its moorings near downtown Charlevoix. The Acacia's commander, Keith Bills, will say good-bye to his men and the Coast Guard in which he's served for 29 years.

Bills, whose wife and two daughters make their home here, plans to stay.

"It's been a great ride," he said. While Bills has loved every one of his nearly 30 years in the service, he got his start almost by accident.

"My dad was in the Navy and that really didn't have a whole lot of influence on me. I was rebellious and didn't have a lot of motivation," he said. "I ended up in California working for a place that made pots."

Bills said he felt lost and decided some discipline might straighten him up.

"I went down to the recruiting station and I was going to be a Marine, but I went down there at lunchtime," he said. "All the recruiters were gone except for the Coast Guard. So, I joined the Coast Guard."

Bills has served an unprecedented four years on the Acacia — unprecedented because the Coast Guard generally limits commanders to a three-year stay at each station or ship.

"They call it (command) arduous duty, but I don't see anything arduous about it," he said. "I'm still looking forward to coming to work every day. It's been most rewarding for me personally."

Bills said many in the service consider any type of command situation to be arduous duty because of the extreme amount of responsibility.

"Throughout my career, the most rewarding thing has been association with the people. I've had the privilege to work with," Bills said. "I think it's most gratifying for me when I get a phone call from an old acquaintance in the Coast Guard. You really make strong friends for life."

He added, "In the service you get a camaraderie you don't get anywhere else."

Bills, who just turned 50, isn't sure exactly what career he'll tackle next, but he will remain active in his retirement from the service.

The soon to be decommissioned Acacia, Bills' fourth and final command, was preceded by his command of the Biscayne Bay, Point Bonita and he was the officer in charge of shore command.

"Being in command is always something I've enjoyed doing," he said. "To be afforded the privilege to have the ability to have so much influence on people's lives — where else can you get that? Nowhere else that I can think of."

In April, U.S. Congressman, Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) announced that the United States Coast Guard had signed off on language in a bill which would retain the cutter Acacia, or if decommissioned as is planned, would replace it with another ice breaking asset. According to congressional sources the bill still awaits the president's signature and there's been no movement on it as of yet.

OPINIONS

Surviving and celebrating 12 years of marriage

Benjamin Gohs
"Staff writer"

Another Memorial weekend has come and gone, and with it, another year with the wife.

I suppose some would observe the big 12 with a trip to Hawaii or a romantic dinner for two, but after the luck we've had with anniversary celebrations in the past, we decided to play it safe and separated for the weekend.

Our fear of matrimonial meriment goes back to that ominous honeymoon, if you call drinking cheap wine while hunkering in a leaky canoe coffin as the National Weather Service warns all within earshot to run for their lives, a honeymoon. Although, once you've had enough of that cheap wine, those lightning bolts don't seem so tough.

When the sun finally graced us with its presence, blushing bride decided we'd rent a canoe. She must have mistaken my hyperventilation and whimpering for joy because the next thing I knew, we were touring Clem's Boat and Bike Rentals.

Being a novice, I impressed upon the shopkeeper my desire not to drown, and Clem suggested his largest canoe, a 12 by 4-foot monster.

"No sir, you won't tip this one," he said in a tone of voice that almost sounded like a challenge.

The wife, being a veteran of lake and river canoe trips, took command of the vessel. Once Captain Bligh seated herself in the front of the boat, she assured me everything would be just fine.

So, you might imagine my surprise when I attempted to come aboard and proceeded to execute the most perfect squealing front flip. Just before we went under, I saw the Captain flapping her arms. It was like watching a mime have a stroke in the middle of a bird imitation.

When I surfaced, Clem was wiping away the snot and tears and trying not to choke as he coughed between his intermittent high-pitched squeals of delight.

The wife later abandoned me and the S.S. Deathtrap on the other side of the lake after I said something I shouldn't have in a moment of supreme panic.

About four years ago, we decided to go back to said honeymoon spot for the annual commemoration — truly a case of clinical idiocy.

We foolishly assumed we could get a campsite at our old spot without reservations, luckily a friendly local directed us to a "rustic campground on a lake."

The first thing I noticed when we arrived at Stereotypical Horror Movie Campground (yes that was its official name) was a guy camped out in a hus with no wheels — come to think of it, I'm not so sure he was camping.

My desire for a refreshing swim in the waters of Lake Itch and Scratch were cut short when I saw school bus guy emptying a portable septic tank into it.

All I can say about the outhouse is, you know it's bad when even the bugs won't go near it.

But, determined to make the best of things, we plugged our noses and unloaded the car. That was when we noticed the absence of tent poles.

Even with school bus guy's donated clothesline, the tent wouldn't stay up. Beaten once again, we packed up and headed home.

Of course, previous years were nothing compared to 2005, when my father-in-law decided it would be a scream to have emergency triple bypass surgery. After all, nothing stokes the fires of romance like major surgery on a loved one.

This year was kind of a bore. On Saturday, the wife called from her sister's house (200 miles away) after locking her keys in the trunk. My son had to crawl through the back seat with a pair of hot-dog tongs to retrieve them. Meanwhile, in Charlevoix, I was barricaded in the bedroom to avoid half a dozen golf ball sized humbees with anger management issues who had infiltrated the living room.

Someday we'll have the worry free trip we've always wanted. For now we're content we made it this long and thankful next year is so far away.

Look down to understand nature's free fertilizer

Roger Knutson
'Ear to the ground'

It's a basic idea of ecology that everything is connected to everything else, but it's often difficult to see the connections.

This spring we have been privileged to see a fine visible example of those connections. Each year at about the time that tree leaves emerge from their buds and enlarge, most trees produce flowers of some kind. These are small flowers, rather than the large, flamboyant ones we cherish in gardens. And they are produced in enormous numbers.

The large, old sugar maple tree in our yard that each early spring provides us with about a gallon of maple syrup, provides for the surrounding lawn as well. It produces uncountable numbers of small stringy-looking flowers just before the leaves emerge. Most of the tiny flowers are excess. Fewer than 1 percent of them will actually develop into those winged maple seeds that spin down to the ground in summer. The remaining 99 percent of the flowers are shed from the tree during some of the spring rains. We most often see them covering the sidewalk and streets after an overnight shower.

Are these excess flowers wasted? Not at all. There's little or no waste in the natural world. The shed flowers on the sidewalks and driveways disappear quickly. Less obviously, those that fall on the lawn are rapidly turned into almost instant compost, feeding whatever plants are growing under the maple. These decomposing flowers provide a burst of necessary nutrients just as the plants are beginning rapid growth. The maple tree is effectively feeding the plants that live near it.

Other trees are equally beneficial in the early spring feeding of nearby plants. Birches, oaks, beeches, elms and almost any other tree you could name shed flowers in the same way and at almost the same time. Flower parts, bud covers, tiny leaves and aborted seeds, along with pollen, are produced and delivered to surrounding vegetation as an early nutrient bonanza each year. In the more natural world of forests, such trees do not feed lawn plants, but whatever is growing in the forest with them. The whole forest benefits from the spring fertilizer shower as much as it benefits from spring rainfall.

In a semi-scientific effort to determine just how much fertilizer a tree might contribute, I collected the shed flowers from under our sugar maple, a Norway maple down the street and a paper birch along Michigan Avenue. I carefully marked out and collected the fallen flowers from a square foot of sidewalk under each tree, carried them home and weighed them. There were two ounces per square foot under the sugar maple, an ounce-and-a-half under the Norway maple and the same ounce-and-a-half under the birch. An ounce doesn't sound like much, but if you do the arithmetic, that equals a pound-and-a-half of instant compost for each four-foot by four-foot area. Even if mismeasured by half and there was only an ounce per square foot, that comes out to 2,700 pounds per acre. If we add in the other small tree parts that are shed in spring, it's easy to consider the discarded parts as a significant portion of the nutrients necessary for the growth of smaller plants, and of the trees themselves.

Letters to the editor

Media coverage

Editor:
When trying to express a thought, idea or opinion, it is often difficult to know where to begin.

The word "opinion" by definition is, "what one thinks true, an estimation or an expert judgment." And maybe how the mainstream media reports the news, absent the hard facts. The mainstream media, including radio, TV, magazines and newspapers, are supposed to be unbiased and report all the facts regardless of the final outcome or consequences. But that isn't the way it works because politics and big money are part of the equation in most of our media. Whenever the media becomes biased by omitting facts or complete stories, to further an agenda, the public is being manipulated, lied to and denied the truth.

For instance, recently the liberal media gave little or no coverage to Canada's Prime Minister Paul Martin and his Liberal Party who were ousted in the country's federal election, bringing to an end the Liberal Party's 12-year reign. Martin's administration gained notoriety for its $2 billion gun registration program fiasco and recent call for an all-out ban on all legally owned handguns. It would appear the Canadian citizens are considerably smarter than their English and Australian counterparts when it comes to caving to the United Nations or the New World Order.

Canada's new Conservative Party government created a committee of three in-the-know gun rights supporters to figure out how best to kill the long gun registry as soon as possible with the help of the Justice Minister and Public Security Minister. Having said the above, if you seek the truth, then believe nothing you hear, see or read until you check it out for yourself and confirm the facts. Should you be one who believes that your vote doesn't matter or will make little difference, you need only look north to Canada where the people spoke and are regaining their right to defend life, property and freedom.

Teddy bear picnic

Editor:
Have you ever been invited to a teddy bear picnic? Until recently neither had I. However, 64 women and children were invited last Thursday, May 18, at the Barnard Methodist Church in Charlevoix. There were teddy bears everywhere. Some were big, some were small, some black, some were brown, white and even green. Some even got awards for being unique with sweaters, or overalls and one even was in a jogging suit.

Dinner was buffet potluck and very good. Some very nice men poured coffee and helped. After, there were teddy songs, poems and stories about the love they bring to children and adults and how hard it is to part with them. It was a fascinating evening. I learned the name teddy bears is connected to President Theodore Roosevelt. But that's another story.

Article response

Editor:
Your article (entitled, "Rivulet developers pull site plan review request," page 1, May 24 edition of the Charlevoix Courier) on the developer's withdrawal of the site plan for the proposed Rivulet development at 115 Pine River Lane correctly quoted me as saying that my clients would like to see the property ultimately developed for residential use or commercial use in conformity with the city's zoning ordinance.

Since my clients were opposed to the proposed development, in part on the basis that its proposed use was residential in nature (and thus prohibited in a commercial district), my statement may have created some misimpression or misunderstanding as to why my clients would now like to see the property developed for residential use.

I would like to clarify that any future development of a residential nature or use would require that the property be rezoned as part of a residential district, which currently exists in that neighborhood. Historically, the property located at 115 Pine River Lane was initially zoned for residential use, but due to a previous rezoning request is currently zoned exclusively for commercial use. My clients would not oppose a request for a rezoning of the property to a residential use. However, they would continue to oppose any proposal for residential use so long as the property remains zoned commercial.

Protecting marriage

Editor:
For centuries, in every civilized culture marriage as the union of one man and one woman has been the building block of society. But it may not be true in America for long unless Congress approves the Marriage Protection Amendment.

Amendment opponents have asked, "How does one couple's gay marriage threaten anyone's heterosexual marriage?" This question misses the point: The goal of gay activists isn't the individual relationship of any two people; it's the revision of national policy to say that gender, especially in child-rearing, is inconsequential.

Think of the Marriage Protection Amendment as a shield between our traditional values and radical judges' intent on forcing their politically correct agenda on our nation. Without that shield, it's only a matter of time until marriage loses all meaning. Social science data indicates children will suffer the most when that happens.

Efforts to pass such an amendment stalled in Congress two years ago, but we have another chance before senators vote in early June to convince them to do the right thing this time around.

Seat belt column response

Editor:
Ben Gohs, I agree with you (column "Click it or Ticket infringes on personal choice," page 4 of the May 24 edition of the Charlevoix Courier). I wear a seat belt because I think it's a good idea, but I do think that requiring the use of it in my car violates what used to be freedom in the good old US of A. My pioneering forefathers (and Patrick Henry) would turn over in their graves.

I remember, over 20 years ago when I picked up a new French intern that I had hired for the summer, he commented that I had not put on my seat belt. I said that it was my business if I chose to hurt myself worse in an auto accident. He said something to the effect that, "But then you would become a ward of the state and everyone else would suffer also." I said, "There's your mistake, what should the state have to do with taking care of me?"

Small hands raise big money

St. Marys Cement Company's Challenger lake freighter will celebrate 100 years of service this summer. The Charlevoix Historical Society will host a program on its century of service, on June 6.

Historical society to host Challenger program June 6

The Charlevoix Historical Society will be presenting a program on the history of the lake freighter Challenger that has been transporting cement from the local plant at Charlevoix's south point since 1967.

The program, presented by Norm O'Neill of Cleveland, Ohio, will take place at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 6 at the Charlevoix Historical Society's Train Depot at Depot Beach. There is no admission charge.

This summer marks the 100th anniversary of the ship's launch as the William P. Snyder on Feb. 7, 1906. Built by the Great Lakes Engineering Works at Ecorse for the Shenango Furnace Company of Pittsburgh, Pa., the Challenger is the first vessel of its kind to reach the century mark while still in active service. Some members of her first crew were born during the Civil War.

Converted to a cement carrier by Medusa Cement in 1967, the Challenger has since been known by the name of successive plant owners as The Southdown/Cemex/St. Marys Challenger.

The Challenger is considered to be a legend by Great Lakes shipping enthusiasts. Many other ships younger and bigger have come and gone in its lifetime while it continues to sail into its second century, one of only about 50 registered ships on the lakes.

For more information about the upcoming program, call (231) 547-0373.

Bowl-a-thon for local man diagnosed with cancer

Charlevoix resident Branden Kanoff, was recently diagnosed with a malignant tumor in his chest. His friends and family have organized a bowl-a-thon benefit to take place from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday, June 4 at the Flight Deck Bar, to help defray his costs of treatment. Above Kanoff (center) is pictured with his mom, Meri Lyn Bennett and father, Gary Kanoff.

A 35-year-old Charlevoix man recently learned that even the strongest, most self-reliant person needs to lean on his friends and family when facing the greatest challenge in life.

On May 16 Charlevoix native, Branden Kanoff was diagnosed with a malignant tumor in his chest.

"I'm very proud and stubborn. I'm very independent. But I know I need help on this. I wish I could handle it myself, but I can't," he said. "I wouldn't be anywhere without my friends and family."

Kanoff is the son of Gary Kanoff of New Mexico and Meri Lyn Bennett of Montague, his sister, Krista Berlage, lives in Charlevoix. He is known by all for his tough work ethic and unwavering loyalty to friends and family. He is currently employed by Great Lakes Golf Site Development of Boyne City where he has worked for five years.

After experiencing shortness of breath and lethargy for almost a year, it was what Kanoff believed to be a heart attack that on May 15 brought him to the emergency room at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Ultrasound testing showed that a six-inch tumor constricting blood flow to his heart and body brought on his symptoms. A biopsy proved the tumor to be cancerous.

"There's a million words for it, but it was shock," the seasoned runner said. "It can happen to anyone. It doesn't matter if you take care of yourself or not."

With the same type of rare germ cell cancer faced by beloved American biker Lance Armstrong, Kanoff has taken the same, "I'll beat it," attitude that Armstrong openly displayed.

"I'm not going to die," he said. "But I'm scared, I don't get knocked down and I've been knocked down. But I will get back up again. This is just another hurdle."

Kanoff now faces four treatments of chemotherapy over the next three to four months, the first of which he'll undergo this Friday, June 2, under the care of Northern Michigan Hospital cancer specialist Dr. Ervin Hire.

The hope is that chemo will shrink the tumor to where it will be operable or non-existent. According to consultations he's had with doctors, Kanoff has a 90 percent chance of pulling through. Within the first month of treatment doctors will be able to gauge his body's response and the probable outcome.

Benefit to offset costs of Kanoff's cancer treatment

While Kanoff is hospitalized, on June 4, his friends, family and well wishers will gather at a bowl-athon they organized under the direction of fund-raising guru Shirley Roloff of Charlevoix.

Roloff, whose son Bryan died of a brain tumor in 1993 at the age of 30, said she is happy to be able to assist Kanoff, who she has known since he was a child.

"Hopefully we are doing something that will make his life a little easier. It's a good feeling to give back to someone else," she said.

The event will take place from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday, June 4 at the Flight Deck Bar, located at 6966 U.S. 31 South in Charlevoix. It will include eight lanes of team bowling. Teams are made up of at least six players, each of who is sponsored by a minimum of 10 individuals or businesses.

While Kanoff has insurance, which will cover a portion of his treatments, he is unable to work while undergoing chemotherapy and hospital bills are hefty.

All proceeds from the sponsorships and other donations that day will be directed to the Brandon Kanoff Benefit Fund at Charlevoix State Bank.

While bowling teams have been established, those interested in attending are encouraged to participate by enjoying refreshments and raffles in support of Kanoff.

Those who cannot attend but would like to make a donation can mail checks payable to Brandon Kanoff Benefit Fund to Charlevoix State Bank, 111 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

For more information about the benefit, call Shirley Roloff at (231) 547-6169.

Castle to host fine art fair June 10 and 11

Artists from all mediums of art will converge on Charlevoix's historic landmark, Castle Farms, for the inaugural Castle Farms Fine Art Show.

The show will take place from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday, June 10, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday, June 11.

The mission of the First Annual Castle Farms Fine Art show is to combine the intimate qualities of an art gallery with the variety and excitement of a fine art festival.

The fine art show is an indoor and outdoor presentation of some of the most respected artists in the country.

The show will stress quality, professionalism, variety and originality. It will also maximize comfort with well-lit booths, wide aisles, tempting food from Grey Gables, and the ambience of an old English castle, all in a "weatherproof" location.

The event is operated under the direction of Ron Beahn, an accomplished artist and respected art show organizer. Since 1995 Ron has served as director of the 35 year old Boston Mills Artfest in Ohio. He also served as the producer/director of the Ann Arbor National Fine Art show in Ann Arbor. Beahn's respect and understanding of both artists and patrons has enabled him to develop a reputation for presenting well organized, smoothly run shows.

Mix-up doesn't wilt petunia planting event

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Fellowship and flowers were the highlights of the annual planting frenzy known as Operation Petunia.

People young and old came from as far away as Oregon, from ages 2 to 80 to help keep Charlevoix beautiful at the annual petunia planting event on May 25.

"I think we had a little bit better turnout than last year," said Keep Charlevoix Beautiful president, Bob Hoffman. "We fed 700 people and we know that some people did not come down and eat, so we probably had more than 700 planters."

For the first year, prizes were given out to the oldest, youngest and farthest traveled participants. "This was first time we gave out prizes. We just tried it to add a little bit of extra interest and to reward the people who helped us," Hoffman said. "We also had gift certificates we gave out through a drawing."

Hoffman said, while there was an abundance of planters on the south side, the north side help was a little sparse.

"We really appreciate the extra effort that individuals made in staying longer to make sure all the petunias were planted on the north side," he said. "Some people stayed so long they missed dinner — and we appreciate their effort and want to thank them very much."

This year's event was successful in spite of an un-mixup that marked planning efforts early that week.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board member, Marrel Staffel, said there was a close call on the planting.

"There was a miscommunication somehow and the new company we got the flowers from this year didn't send them all mixed together," she said. "So the flats were separate, there was a flat of just purple, one of just red and one of just white, and because we like to plant a mix, we had to sort out 60,000 flowers."

Surprisingly enough, Staffel said, it only took two hours during the afternoon of May 24 to get the flora in order.

"I'm guessing around 40 people came to help," she said. "We had a plan and we were very efficient about it — we were all amazed how quickly we were done."

As usual, Staffel said, this year's event was a success.

"It makes the town look nice and it brings people together," she said.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful asks anyone interested to please help by weeding flower beds near their homes and keeping grass trimmed short, which will reduce the number of pesky weeds which take root.

Hoffman, a 15-year veteran of the organization, has been president for five years.

"It's been a hugely successful program, and the feedback we get from people who visit Charlevoix is wonderful," he said. "It's known as the city that plants petunias, and we have won national awards because of it."

In fact, Hoffman said, the group, America In Bloom, will visit Charlevoix this summer to judge the town's beautification efforts.

"We appreciate all the volunteer effort and we spend close to $20,000 a year in petunias and soil and fertilization, and we are looking for donations if anybody is interested in helping us," Hoffman said.

Donations can be mailed to: Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, Inc. P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful license plates are $10 each or two for $15 and can be purchased at Charlevoix Camera located in the Oleson's Plaza. All proceeds from the plates go to maintain Operation Petunia which has been in existence for nearly 25 years.

Carol MacKenzie and Ken Kline of Charlevoix are two volunteers who helped Keep Charlevoix Beautiful representatives mix 1,200 flats of petunias that arrived in solid colors. The group met May 24 at the Mt. McSaubia parking lot for what will go down in the books as the great petunia mix-up.

Students take to the lake to learn about environment

By KRISTINA HUGHES
Petoskey News-Review Staff Writer

The sky was blue as the sun's rays glistened on the water. It was a perfect setting for class.

Class?

Approximately 225 middle school students participated in the Lake Charlevoix Experience, trading in textbooks for first hand experience on Lake Charlevoix. The students learned about natural resource issues focusing on watersheds at stations were set up on the Beaver Island.

Lexie Harding, a Boyne City sixth-grader, soaked in the sun Tuesday, absorbing lessons about invasive species and groundwater.

"It's neat to be out here on the water," Lexie said, sharing her zest for experiments.

"We did testing of the bottomland mud to find creatures," she said. "We looked up the pH, and learned about pollution."

During her afternoon as a junior environmentalist the lessons were well learned.

"It's important to be out here, because if the lake gets polluted too much we can't swim or fish," Lexie said.

She feels lucky to have pristine beaches, rivers and lakes as part of her community watershed.

"This is a natural resource Michigan is lucky to have," Lexie said.

Several volunteers from area environmental groups helped foster a connection between kids and their watersheds. The volunteers shared a "how to" message, encouraging the students to become stewards of their environment.

"Who wants to be scientists?" Sam Williams asked.

The images of heakers and white lab coats were soon replaced with excursions in the wilderness and boating trips.

The kids responded with a resounding "Me, me."

Williams utilized a control and a sample taken by the children from the lake to measure the pH levels. The pH is used to determine an index of the lake's acid level. A pH level of 7 is neutral. A level of 3 is toxic to all fish.

Gerritt Moeke measured the lakes pH at 8.5.

"pH is cool, you get to test the water for acid," Gerritt said sharing more discoveries. "We found a crawfish, a lobster-looking thing and it was cool to see how many species live underwater to hide from predators."

Gerritt didn't mind getting dirty. "It's cool the jobs you can do in the environment. I wouldn't mind getting dirty and doing tests all day," he said.

Like most of his male classmates he was intrigued by the invasive species, especially the sea lamprey, the perfect sea creature for horror movies.

Suzie Dickow, a retired teacher, stood by a most wanted outlaw poster. But instead of mug shots of criminals the poster features cartoonish depictions of invasive species.

"Do you know what invasive species are?" Dickow said.

Some students reply with "aliens," or "they're not originally from here."

Dickow, a member of the Friends of the Boyne River, explained how sea lampreys adapted to survive in fresh waters by living as a parasite killing area fish. Pointing at a pretty purple flower, Dickow explained how purple loosestrife is displacing native plantlife, impacting area food chains.

She also talked about zebra mussels. Dickow was ready for most questions, but Collin Ulvund surprised her.

"How do they breed with shells?" Collin said.

At various stations students learned about watersheds, groundwater, pH levels, and benthic communities, underwater bottom dwelling organisms. The students used secchi discs to measure the clarity of water.

Jennifer Gelb, a restoration ecologist with the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, was teaching about watersheds on Lake Charlevoix. The seemingly endless mass of water was a backdrop to her demonstration on non-point pollution. Using a plastic watershed model, students used salt shakers and food coloring to represent pollutants, nutrients and pesticides. The students used water bottle to represent rain, highlighting the results of non-point pollution.

The wide-eyed students soon made a connection between their actions and the environment.

"Our water is like our blood. Our lakes are our lifeline," Gelb said. "Think about what we do on the surface of the land."

"...Go and be good stewards."

BNI capitalizes on word-of-mouth marketing

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

A group of business owners has teamed up to maximize their profit making potential using an age-old technique — word of mouth marketing.

"I think we have a very strong word of mouth referral system in this town. But it's loose, we're not really capitalizing on it. I think BNI does that," said Jeff Hilligan, owner of Muscle Menders of Charlevoix and president of the Charlevoix chapter of Business Network International (BNI).

A core group of 20 professionals are part of the Charlevoix chapter of Business Network International, a networking organization that allows only one person per profession to join a chapter.

"The idea behind this is people don't do business with people they don't know, like or trust," said Boyne City resident Bill Ulvund, a BNI area director who coordinates chapters in Charlevoix, Traverse City, Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Cheboygan.

The group meets and reviews a 21 point agenda from 7 to 8:30 a.m. Friday mornings at the Charlevoix Public Library, located at 109 Clinton Street.

"It's treated like a business meeting, not a social gathering," Hilligan said. "You give what you get."

At the meeting, individual members give presentations on their business and what they specialize in. This includes 15 minutes of open networking followed by 60 second commercials when members state their name, company and what they're looking for and 10 minute presentations when members educate fellow chapter members. This information is then used by members, equipped with a black book of business cards to offer referrals to those in need of services.

"It really focuses you on your business. It makes you step up and decide what you do best and then promotes your strengths. In the end you see your business grow, through those strengths," Hilligan said. "It's like having a sales force that you train and direct on a weekly basis that believe in and understand your services."

While group members have been building the local chapter since February, the real boost came early this month when a mailing to business owners, about a BNI breakfast, was distributed.

Almost 100 people attended that morning event, 30 of which have since expressed interest in joining the group.

"We were blown away (at the attendance)," Hilligan said. "Now I've potentially got 50 people who all know exactly what I'm doing and they help promote me."

Remaining professional categories that the local chapter has to fill include a chiropractor, a builder and a family physician.

Hilligan stressed that subcategories may also be created.

For instance, he said the group can carry two painters, one which specializes in commercial projects and the other in residential.

However, if the group reaches

Glik's opens Charlevoix location on May 25

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

Young, hip fashion frenzied shoppers have a new source from which to quench their wardrobe thirst.

A new apparel store, Glik's, celebrated its grand opening May 25 at their new location, 113 Bridge St. in Charlevoix, the former site of Trademark.

"We are young and fun and there's nothing like it in downtown Charlevoix. There's a young community that needs to be fueled with brand name sportswear without traveling to Traverse City or Gaylord," said Jim Glik, vice-president of Glik Company.

Glik's specializes in women's and men's name brand clothing and footwear.

The opening of the Charlevoix store boosted the company's total store holdings to 54 located throughout Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Ohio.

Glik said this new location offers a condensed version of a typical Glik's store in other communities.

The Charlevoix store provides 2,500 square feet of retail space carrying brands including Roxy, Billabong, Crocs, Etnies, Element and Volcom, Columbia and Silver.

The group undertook an extensive store renovation which included new wall coverings, paint, carpeting and a dressing room area.

The Petoskey Glik's store, located in the Kmart plaza, also includes a skate shop. Glik said the Charlevoix store, where skateboarding shoes and skateboards are currently sold, may expand to include a full line of skate hardware in the future.

"We'll sell the apparel and shoe side before we get into the hard goods," Glik said.

The store is staffed by manager, Phillip Anderson of Charlevoix, and four other part-time employees. Anderson said three other sales positions will be available this summer.

"Traffic has been really strong," he added.

Anderson is looking forward to continuing the long legacy of success the Glik family has realized in its four generations of retail sales.

Founded in 1897, Glik Company is one of the oldest family-owned apparel store chains in the nation. The company's corporate office and distribution center is located in Granite City, Ill.

Glik said the Charlevoix location will likely be open year-round.

"Business is good in Petoskey. We've always looked at Charlevoix knowing it to be a resort town. Hopefully, we will find a way to run it year-round. That's what we want to do," he said.

Store hours are from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and from noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

For more information call (231) 237-9183.

City submits Cool Cities grant application

By JULIE WITTHOFT
 Editor

Charlevoix city planner, Gerry Harsch, recently threw the city into the running for the state's Cool Cities Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns program.

On May 4, Harsch submitted a Blueprint program grant application to the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, which heads up the program and has its headquarters in Lansing.

"The goal is to do a market study of the downtown area to identify what exists, and what is a good course of action over the next five years to attract appropriate businesses and to look at what kind of appropriate development should take place," Harsch said.

Reasons Harsch stated to support

Charlevoix's need for the program include empty storefronts in the business district, the need to transition from a seasonal community to a year-round community and the stagnation of downtown development on Bridge Street.

Harsch listed a number of reasons Charlevoix should be selected over other applicants including investments made in the downtown area like the Bridge Park renovation, the upcoming Charlevoix Public Library overhaul and the renovation of East Park and the municipal marina. He also stated that job loss from the decommissioning of Big Rock Pointe and the Coast Guard Cutter Acacia make Charlevoix a worthy choice.

According to Karen Gagnon, director of Michigan Cool Cities program, only five applications were submitted during the 2006 application period.

She said the small applicant pool is likely a reflection of uncertainty as to whether the program would continue.

Gagnon said several months ago, the legislature cut $3 million from the Michigan Economic Development Corporation's budget.

"I think people were unsure about the status of Main Street and Blueprints programs," she said.

While the group can award up to 10 Blueprints grants and only five communities applied, Gagnon said Charlevoix isn't guaranteed a slot.

"It doesn't mean it's a lock. But the odds are good, if they have a real solid application," she said.

Grant recipients will be announced in mid-July.

If Charlevoix is one of the city's selected to participate, the city will reap the benefits of two major rewards. Most importantly, city representatives will have the opportunity to work with consultants from the firm, HyettPalma, to develop a five-year action strategy. And Charlevoix will host the suave, Cool City Neighborhood, designation.

According to information included in a press release from the Michigan Department of Labor and Economic Growth, "The program takes a market driven approach toward developing an action-oriented, downtown economic enhancement strategy. The prime objective of Cool Cities Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns is to develop an action strategy that will, over a five-year period of implementation, move your community's traditional downtown toward economic enhancement. Measurable results that will be tracked include the creation of new private jobs and private investment in the downtown."

Creation of the action strategy will include local volunteers and town hall meeting formats conducted under the umbrella of the local Cool Cities Advisory Group which has been designated as the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority. Information will be garnered over a three-month period and compiled in the action strategy plan.

Cool Cities Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns is a 50/50 match grant. Charlevoix city manager, Mike Wiesner, has estimated the total project cost to be $30,000. The local $15,000 match would come from the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority and is included in the group's 2006-2007 budget.

Young professionals needed for 'cool culture'

By JULIE WITTHOFT
 Editor

As Charlevoix's best and brightest prepare to accept their diplomas and head off to college, the City of Charlevoix is embarking on a program that will hopefully some day bring them back.

Early this month, city planner Gerry Harsch applied for the state's Cool Cities Blueprints for Michigan's Downtowns grant through the Michigan Economic Development Corporation on behalf of the City of Charlevoix.

According to Karen Gagnon, director of Michigan Cool Cities program, research her group has conducted shows Michigan has to find a way to do a better job attracting young, educated individuals into our state and into state colleges.

"We have to pay attention to retention," she said. "We know that where young, knowledgeable workers, 'the creative class,' are at is where economic development is strong," Gagnon said.

She explained that the Blueprint program is a planning tool to help facilitate retention by creating overall goals for a community's economic prosperity.

"Do you create places where people want to live, work and play?" she asked. "Where's the youth, where's the diversity, where are your artists?"

If Charlevoix is selected for the program, questions like this will be addressed by the local Cool Cities Advisory Group, which is currently comprised of members of Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority, in conjunction with consultants from the firm, HyettPalma. Results of these discussions will be used to develop a five-year action strategy marketing plan.

According to two young professional Charlevoix natives who returned after college, their reason for coming back wasn't the hope

Young professionals discuss what brought them back

The City of Charlevoix's Cool Cities grant application to have a local market study done, may reveal Charlevoix needs to attract young professionals like Liz Coen (above), a 29-year-old dental hygienist with the local practice, Harry Suckert DDS, and a 1996 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

COOL

to be part of a booming market, packed with high paying jobs.

Liz Coen, a 29-year-old dental hygienist with the local practice, Harry Suckert DDS, is a 1996 graduate of Charlevoix High School. She moved back to town after graduating in 2003 from Ferris State University in Big Rapids, where she earned a degree as a registered dental hygienist.

She said while there are more high paying, professional opportunities in larger cities, she chose Charlevoix as her hometown to be close to her family and far away from the hustle and bustle of city life.

"I know a lot of my patients personally," she said. "Some patients come in and say, 'I've known you since you were 6 years old.' They like to know who's working on them."

Like Coen, Corey Bascom, a 23-year-old assistant working at the local accounting firm, Mason and Kammerman PC, chose Charlevoix over other more populated destinations. Bascom graduated from Allendale's Grand Valley State University in 2005 with a bachelor's degree in finance and accounting.

He said after graduating from Charlevoix High School in 2001, he was open to coming back to Charlevoix or immersing himself in face paced city life. Following four years at the private college just outside of Grand Rapids, Bascom found city living wasn't for him.

"Being close to my family, the small town environment, not having to drive 30 minutes in crazy traffic to get to work — I enjoy that much more than the city," Bascom said.

While the Blueprint action strategy marketing plan likely won't advocate selling Charlevoix as a city slickers paradise, it may find capitalizing on its quaint, quiet pace can attract more "creative class" members like Coen and Bascom.

"Government can't mandate cool. But through a collaborative effort, we can help get folks together to talk about building place and do some visioning. The first step is challenging the current thinking," Gagnon said.

Three local Eagle Scouts honored at banquet

Three local Boy Scouts were honored for having achieved Eagle Scout status, the highest advancement rank in scouting.

On March 19, an Eagle Court of Honor was held which celebrated the Eagle Rank achievement of Kevin Kusina, Robert Shuttler and Ben Castiglione.

The ceremony was held at St. Mary's of Charlevoix with the new Eagle Scouts, their families, friends, and fellow scouts participating.

Kusina earned Eagle Scout status on July 11, 2005 for his "Eagle Service Project" during which he improved the bike path between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

Shuttler earned Eagle Scout status on Dec. 8, 2005 for his "Eagle Service Project" during which he led in the revival and repair of the Norwood Cemetery in Norwood Township.

Castiglione earned Eagle Scout status on Feb. 21, 2006 for his "Eagle Service Project" during which he erected an arbor and landscaped an outdoor area at the First Baptist Church in Charlevoix.

To achieve Eagle Rank a scout must fulfill six requirements in the areas of leadership, service and outdoor skills and earn 21 merit badges. The final step to becoming an Eagle Scout is completing an "Eagle Service Project."

The award is a performance-based achievement whose standards have been well-maintained over the years. Only about 4 percent of all Boy Scouts earn the Eagle Scout rank.

Library and ISD partner to assist infants and families

Stepping Stones to School is designed to help families walk their child toward school readiness starting at birth. Its purpose is to connect families with resources in their communities, and provide fun and educational opportunities for families.

This network of services is available at no cost for all families with children between birth and age five in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District region of Charlevoix, Emmet and northern Antrim counties.

The library is joining Stepping Stones to School Alliance partners including Northwest Michigan

Community Health Agency, the Inter-Tribal Council of Michigan, Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency-Head Start, and Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

Baseball sweeps final double header of the regular season

By KENT LUDWIG
Sports writer

On Friday, May 26, the Rayder varsity boys' baseball team swept Bellaire in their final regular season game, winning the first game 6-5 and the second 15-0.

In the first game, a single and a triple from Eddie Waldron, two RBIs from Shannon Gillespie (2-3), and hits from Matt Teuscher, Kyle DeYoung, Logan Niswander and Danny Waldron kept the Rayders within one by the bottom of the sixth. A single by Zach Scharenbroch allowed Michael Heckendorn to run in the tie, forcing the extra inning.

Eddie Waldron scored on a single from Gillespie to give Charlevoix the winning run in the bottom of the seventh.

Danny Waldron claimed five strikeouts as he pitched seven complete innings, allowing only eight hits, four walks, and two earned runs.

The Rayders continued their aggressive play into the second game as they blanked Bellaire and forced the three inning mercy rule after 15 unanswered runs.

The Rayders offensive attack was fueled by Jon Putman (2-3) with two runs scored and four RBIs, Teuscher (1-3) with two RBIs, Eddie Waldron with two runs, Danny Waldron with two runs, and Gillespie with two runs, as well as a triple from DeYoung, and singles from Heckendorn and R.J. Moore.

Ty Telgenhof was the winning pitcher with three shutout innings, and three strikeouts.

Coach Allen Telgenhof said he's delighted to see his team begin to play more aggressive offense as they head into the post-season.

"It was a nice end to our regular season by sweeping a team with a historically successful program," he said. "Hopefully that will give us some momentum heading into the districts."

On Tuesday, May 23, the Rayders

split their doubleheader against Grayling, losing the first game 9-6 and recovering to win the second 10-2.

The Rayders offense was led by Matt Teuscher (2-3) with two runs, Danny Waldron (2-3) with two RBIs, Eddie Waldron with a triple and two runs, DeYoung with a double as well as singles from Gillespie, Brady Way and Zach Scharenbroch.

In that evening's nightcap, Eddie Waldron pitched a complete six inning game with six hits, one walk and six strikeouts.

Eddie Waldron (2-3) continued his team's attack on Grayling by offering a single, a triple, one RBI, and three runs scored. Kyle Jones (2-3) hit two singles and Gillespie offered two RBIs and a single to help carry their team to the win.

Telgenhof said his team effectively recovered to claim the second game.

"It was nice to see us come back so strong in game two, after taking advantage of a few Grayling errors," he said.

The Rayder varsity boys' baseball team met Kalkaska at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, May 30 at East Jordan for their pre-district game.

Results from this game were not available by press time.

Rayder girls' soccer team ends Lake Michigan Conference season 12-0

The Charlevoix High School varsity girls' soccer team completed the Lake Michigan Conference season at 12-0 shutting out Boyne City 4-0 on May 25.

After several attempts were turned back by Boyne City goal keeper Lindsey Baic, Charlevoix got on the board when Becca Madison, sent a rocket high into the net past Baic off an assist by Madison Ramsey.

Boyne had a good scoring opportunity in the first half, when a direct kick was awarded 20 yards out. Freshman goal keeper, Tammy Potter, made a nice save on the attempt by Baic.

The Rayders made it 2-0 just before the half on another rocket, this time by freshman Meredith Rich, again assisted by Madison Ramsey.

Charlevoix went up 3-0 early in the second, when senior back Stevie Murray, sent a corner to the near post which was headed home by Madison Ramsey. The Rayder's final score came on a nice volley high over the keeper again by Madison Ramsey off a chip by junior, Teresa Potter.

Charlevoix passed the ball well throughout the night, outshooting Boyne 32-4. The Ramblers goal keeping and packed in defense prevented more scoring. The Rayders also received excellent play from midfielders Zita Anderson, KC McCary and Kaleigh Blanchard, and forwards Lori Zimmerman and Ariel Ramsey. Blanchard was awarded the Rayders Player of the Game for her strong play.

On May 26, the Rayders, now 14-1-1 overall, hosted Suttons Bay in their final regular season match.

Results from this game were not available by press time.

A Gold Mine in Bedroom Drawers

NewsWire: People are selling their old scrap gold that is gathering dust for its cash value because gold prices are so high. With the price of gold at a 25 year high (over $650.00 per ounce), it makes sense. ScrapGold.com, a gold recycler, offers free insured recycle kits so people may cash in their scrap with 24 hour service and guarantee satisfaction. They accept broken and outdated items like chains, charms, rings and more. "Everyone has bits of gold just lying around which can be turned into cash" says Richard Zakroff, VP of marketing. "Even old dental gold has value." ScrapGold.com processes over 10,000 recycle Kits per month. People can get a free GoldKit at 1-800-283-4700 or ScrapGold.com.

MAY 2006

In Dedication

Our freedoms, our way of life, our families, and our well being are because of our young men and women in our armed services. The same is true of all of the men and women that served in the armed services before this present generation. All of these Americans deserve our gratitude every day! What I have been doing since last year is, when I see a serviceman in the airport, or when I'm jogging, I always stop and thank them for their service and for protecting me. If it's around lunch or dinner time I take them out for a meal. I hope this year that you will find some time or opportunity to thank these American heroes who will be going in harm's way for you and me.

I thought it more than appropriate to have printed here today a letter sent before the first battle of the Civil War at Manassas, Virginia, by Major Sullivan Ballou, July 14, 1861. He wrote his beloved wife, Sarah, of a premonition that we warriors always have; that we might not be coming back. This letter was discovered by a famous Civil War historian, Ken Burns, when he was putting together his PBS historical analysis of the Civil War. Mr. Burns got it right when he said the letter expressed all of mankind's love and affection for humanity and for goodness. Of all of the letters sent home from war by our troops, this one letter speaks for them all. As the Major writes, even if he does not come back from war, he is still with his Sarah, and still proud to have served his country.

The Sullivan Ballou Letter

(as it was read on the PBS series The CIVIL WAR by Ken Burns series)

A week before the battle of Bull Run, Sullivan Ballou, a Major in the 2nd Rhode Island Volunteers, wrote home to his wife in Smithfield.

Dear Sarah:

July 14, 1861
Camp Clark, Washington DC

The indications are very strong that we shall move in a few days - perhaps tomorrow. And lest I should not be able to write you again I feel impelled to write a few lines that may fall under your eye when I am no more.

I have no misgivings about, or lack of confidence in the cause in which I am engaged, and my courage does not halt or falter. I know how American Civilization now leans upon the triumph of the government and how great a debt we owe to those who went before us through the blood and suffering of the Revolution. And I am willing - perfectly willing - to lay down all my joys in this life, to help maintain this government, and to pay that debt.

Sarah, my love for you is deathless, it seems to bind me with mighty cables that nothing but omnipotence can break; and yet my love of Country comes over me like a strong wind and bears me irresistibly with all those chains to the battlefield. The memory of all the blissful moments I have enjoyed with you come crowding over me, and I feel most deeply grateful to God and you, that I have enjoyed them for so long. And how hard it is for me to give them up and burn to ashes the hopes and future years, when, God willing, we might still have lived and loved together, and see our boys grown up to honorable manhood around us.

If I do not return, my dear Sarah, never forget how much I loved you, nor that when my last breath escapes me on the battle field, it will whisper your name...

Forgive my many faults, and the many pains I have caused you. How thoughtless, how foolish I have sometimes been!...

But, O Sarah, if the dead can come back to this earth and flit unseen around those they love, I shall always be with you, in the brightest day and in the darkest night ... always, always. And when the soft breeze fans your cheek, it shall be my breath, or the cool air your throbbing temple, it shall be my spirit passing by.

Sarah do not mourn me dead; think I am gone and wait for me, for we shall meet again...

Major Ballou was killed at the first battle of Bull Run a week after this letter was sent to Sarah.

So thanks to people like Major Ballou and his wife Sarah, we can feel and appreciate what our Armed Forces are doing for us, and that's why this country will forever celebrate Memorial Day.

With uplifted hearts, we thank our wonderful service people for the meaning they bring to Memorial Day, and we will not forget what they have done for us, and what they are going to do for us.

With appreciation, affection and support,

Bill and Karen Schuiling

Dibble, Michrina share CHS valedictorian honor

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

For the 118th time, the careers of Charlevoix High School seniors will come to an end at a graduation ceremony to take place at 2 p.m. on June 4 in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

The Charlevoix High School class of 2006 includes 93 students — two of which are valedictorians and one a salutatorian.

Valedictorian, Elyse Michrina, is the daughter of Gerald and Laurie Michrina. She will end her high school career with a flawless 4.0 grade point average.

"I'm going to LSSU (Lake Superior State University) to study French and business. I would like to get involved in translating, but I'm going to study business so I'll have a broad range of options," she said.

Michrina was a member of the National Honor Society and the French Club and currently works for Maizon and Jardin in Charlevoix.

Elyse Michrina

"Anything is possible with discipline, dedication and desire. If you're willing to work hard and give it everything, you've got the perfect formula for success."

Shannon Dibble, Charlevoix High School Class of 2006 co-valedictorian

"I'm really excited," she said. "I think it's going to be a fun year."

Michrina will miss the people she went to school with, but she won't miss the early morning hours.

Michrina's words of wisdom are, "Don't slack off in high school, because it will end up meaning something when you graduate."

Fellow valedictorian, Shannon Dibble, is the daughter of Maria and David Dibble. Like Michrina, she earned a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

Dibble, who plans to study pre medicine at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor and eventually hopes to become a radiologist, received the Michigan High Schools Athletic Association Scholar Athlete award this year.

"That was one of my biggest accomplishments," she said. "That and playing at the Brezlin Center (in East Lansing) for the girls' basketball season last year as well as running in the state track meet."

Dibble added, "Anything is possible with discipline, dedication and desire. If you're willing to work hard and give it everything, you've got the perfect formula for success."

Dibble, who competed on both basketball and track teams was the president of the National Honor Society and yearbook editor for two years. This summer she plans to work as a counselor for Jason Otter's School of Basketball, a traveling sports camp.

According to Dibble, the last few weeks have been hectic.

"It's definitely bittersweet. I'm excited to think about college and moving on to the next chapter in our lives, but at the same time there are a lot of things I'm going to miss about Charlevoix."

She added, "I think I'll miss the togetherness of the small community and the small school. I just have so many memories."

Charlevoix High School salutatorian, Benjamin Scheelk, the son of Paul and Becky Scheelk, closed his high school career with a 3.988 grade point average.

Scheelk said he's relieved the busywork will be over with.

"It's gotten really crazy with the open house and exams," he said. "I'm looking forward to making some money and chilling."

Scheelk has his own boat cleaning business and does some landscaping in addition to working for the Charlevoix Public Library.

"I'm going to go to Northern Michigan University in Marquette and major in physics," he said. "I got a full ride Presidential Harden Scholarship."

He added, "I want to be an astrophysicist that specializes in the nuclear sciences — anything to do with space really."

Benjamin Scheelk

Scheelk enjoys snowboarding, skateboarding and water sports. He was on the varsity soccer team for four years and was the captain last year.

He also enjoyed playing on the varsity tennis team and participating in the performing arts program. He was also a member of the French Club and the National Honor Society.

"Lately, I've tutored a girl in second grade," he said. "I really like it. I might be interested in going into the teaching profession sometime."

Scheelk tells his fellow classmates to doubt everything. "Just look at anything that's established with a little bit of uncertainty," he said. "Never take it as it is. Always try to find your own way."

Northwest Academy graduates seven seniors

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

On Friday, May 26 at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, Northwest Academy high school seniors flipped their tassels and donned their gowns in celebration of all they've accomplished and all the future holds.

With a graduating class of seven, Northwest Academy of Charlevoix graduated two salutatorians this year, Channing Potter with an overall grade point average of 3.49 and Kellie Young with a grade point average of 3.45.

Channing Potter, the daughter of Pam and Jim Potter, plans to study at Saginaw Valley State University where she received a full ride scholarship.

"I'm excited to get out of school," she said. "It's summer — hello."

While Potter won't miss waking up at 6 a.m., she will miss the art classes she's enjoyed since she was in elementary school.

"It's going to be so weird not having to wake up and come here every single day."

Kellie Young,
Northwest Academy Class of 2006 co-salutatorian

"I hope to get a business major and an art and design minor," she said. "My goal is owning my own interior design shop."

Potter, who has several jobs including being a daycare assistant and working at Dairy Queen, enjoys books, movies and playing soccer for Northwest Academy.

Kellie Young, also a Northwest Academy salutatorian and daughter of Martha and Gary Young, is a little nervous about starting the next phase in her life.

"I've been coming to school every single day for like ever," she said. "It's going to be so weird not having to wake up and come here every single day."

She added, "I will miss band class and all the band activities most — I'm a band geek."

Unlike Potter, Young won't miss art class.

"I'm not a good artist," she said. Young enjoys playing the flute as well as alto, tenor and baritone saxophone and singing.

Young will move with her family to Virginia where she will attend Virginia Military Institute and study international studies and Arabic.

"I think I'm going to commission and do my four years and then hopefully be an interpreter," she said. "And then I'm going to be a history teacher."

Young has volunteered at Charlevoix Area Hospital for a year.

The words of wisdom Young leaves with her underclassmen, "Don't skip."

Top Beaver Island grads head for mainland

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

The 2006 graduating class at Beaver Island Schools will close the final chapter in their high school careers at a graduation ceremony to take place at 1 p.m. on June 10 at Holy Cross Hall on Beaver Island.

The valedictorian and salutatorian of Beaver Island Schools, which has a graduating class of eight, is John Albin and Krystle Timsak respectively.

With a grade point average of 3.622, Albin, son of Keith and Kristy Albin, plans to head to the Upper Peninsula this fall.

"I'm going to work through the summer and then go up to Michigan Tech," he said.

Albin plans to study either biomedical or mechanical engineering.

Born in Chicago, Ill., Albin has lived on the island since first-grade.

"I like it here. It's really nice and quiet," he said. "I'd like to come back to the island if I could, but it all depends on where I can get a job."

Albin enjoys hiking, boating, soccer, basketball and four-wheeling with his jeep.

"Last year, we won the championships in both soccer and basketball in our league," he said.

Albin advised his underclassmen to keep working hard because it will pay off in the end.

"I'm going to miss the atmosphere of high school," he said.

Beaver Island Schools valedictorian Timsak, daughter of Joe and Sherri Timsak, has a grade point average of 3.542.

"I'm pretty excited, but I'm also nervous at the same time," she said. "It's a little bit of both."

Timsak will miss sports the most, since she has been on the volleyball team since the seventh-grade.

"We got first place in the league this year, and last year we got second place in districts," she said.

Timsak will head to North Central Michigan College in Petoskey to study pre pharmacy this fall.

"I've been accepted to Ferris (State University) and in two years, I'll be transferred there for pharmaceuticals," she said. "Being a pharmacist is my goal. I've always been interested in the health care field."

Timsak also enjoys dancing, reading and living on the island.

"Being on Beaver Island, I like to walk and look at nature," she said. "I think I'm going to miss it a lot when I go away — it's always been home."

Timsak said students should focus now so they will be rewarded later.

Middle school teachers suspended

By BENJAMIN GOHS
Staff writer

Three members of the Charlevoix Middle School staff were recently suspended without pay following an investigation into improper use of instructional time.

According to Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Dr. John Sturock, Jane Garver, an eighth-grade teacher, Stephen Seelye, a fifth-grade teacher and Kim Drost, a secretary, were all given a six-day suspension which started Tuesday, May 30. The unpaid suspension followed a discovery that the three were excessively and frivolously using their e-mail during class time.

"We had some teachers under investigation who basically were wasting time e-mailing back and forth when they should have been working, that's the issue," Sturock said.

Barb Sheets, a local mother of five children, some of which are enrolled in Charlevoix Public Schools, said the sort of behavior displayed by the three suspended staff members is unsettling.

"With the pressures and expectations in education today, coming from local, state and federal curriculum demands, it's hard to believe that any quality or meaningful instruction or learning took place during the (time) of e-mail correspondence," Sheets said. "Teachers, staff and students are required to sign an 'acceptable use' policy at the beginning of each school year, which contains the proper, as well as improper, use of the school's computers. I have to believe that this conduct doesn't fit the 'acceptable use' policy for Charlevoix Public Schools."

She added, "In this day and age, of school choice and declining enrollment due to school choice, schools are in the position of needing to compete and market themselves as a better choice when compared to other districts. This type of behavior, taking place within the instructional time frame of a day, may very well cause parents to pull their students and seek other alternatives for education."

Sturock said, "We have an Internet use policy that everyone signs onto. They violated it and they were dealt with."

The content of the e-mails was not disclosed.

"It was personal, frivolous stuff. The content was not important, (it's) just that they were spending time doing that," Sturock said.

The suspension lasted until the final day of school, yesterday, Tuesday, June 6.

"They were disciplined with time off without pay until the remainder of the school year," Sturock said. "Unless there is a future violation."

Though Sturock doesn't know exactly how long the threesome had been wasting taxpayer money and the student's time, he did say the matter was brought to his attention several weeks ago and that his office immediately began an investigation.

Sturock said the three were busted and brought to his office where they confessed to frivolous use of e-mail during what should have been instructional time.

While Sturock would not disclose what type, he did say it was suggested to the three that they undergo counseling.

"The counseling is an aspect we suggested they take for themselves for personal improvement," he said.

Substitute teachers took over the classes for the absent educators and one of the school's other secretaries ab-

Senior pranksters walk at graduation

By JULIE WITTHOEF
Editor

In spite of their involvement in a senior prank that resulted in an estimated $10,000 of damage to Charlevoix High School, 15 seniors were allowed to participate at the June 4 graduation ceremony.

Charlevoix High School principal, Gary Grundman, gave seniors until June 1 to come forward with information about the prank or be penalized by missing the ceremonial culmination of four years of study.

"I feel the honest kids would be the ones that got punished and the ones that weren't forthright would have walked (at graduation)," Grundman said of the administration's decision.

He explained that the high school administration is working in conjunction with Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office deputy and school

Sturock said the three were hustled and brought to his office where they confessed to frivolous use of e-mail during what should have been instructional time.

While Sturock would not disclose what type, he did say it was suggested to the three that they undergo counseling.

"The counseling is an aspect we suggested they take for themselves for personal improvement," he said.

Substitute teachers took over the classes for the absentee educators and one of the school's other secretaries advised.

Senior pranksters walk at graduation

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

In spite of their involvement in a senior prank that resulted in an estimated $10,000 of damage to Charlevoix High School, 15 seniors were allowed to participate at the June 4 graduation ceremony.

Charlevoix High School principal, Gary Grundman, gave seniors until June 1 to come forward with information about the prank or be penalized by missing the ceremonial culmination of four years of study.

"I feel the honest kids would be the ones that got punished and the ones that weren't forthright would have walked (at graduation)," Grundman said of the administration's decision.

He explained that the high school administration is working in conjunction with Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office deputy and school

If anything good comes out of this, Sturock said, "I think it's conscientious use of the technology. The technology is important and something we all use, but the technology belongs to the school system and you have to use it within the guidelines that are set up."

He added, "I think in a general sense you see it (abuse of technology) pop up in other areas, but I think most people are conscientious about using it."

Sturock said no matter what people do, rumors will always fly when it comes to high profile individuals.

"They're good people," he said. "They made a mistake and we dealt with it and then we moved on."

Sheets, who said several parents have discussed with her that they are considering pulling their children from Charlevoix Middle School, said she and a group of at least 12 concerned parents plan to circulate a petition during the Monday, June 12 school board meeting.

The petition states that they do not agree with the Charlevoix School Board's decision for disciplinary action on Seelye and Garver.

Sheets, who has one child heading into the fifth-grade, read from her petition, "We feel the disciplinary action given to these teachers is too lenient."

Sheets said she may end up home schooling her child in social studies instead of having her in Seelye's class.

Senior pranksters may face felony charges

liaison officer Robert Scholey, to conduct an investigation to get to the bottom of the incident.

"I'm very pleased with the information the kids involved have come forth with," he said. "Through the cooperation and honesty of the kids who did the deed, we know what went on and we will prosecute."

Grundman verified that a senior accessed a key from the school counseling office, who gave it to another senior who had duplicate keys made.

Then, during the early morning hours of Friday, May 26, 12 other students broke into Charlevoix High School, located at 05200 Marion Center Road in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education president, Dennis Halverson, said the school is not equipped with an intrusion alarm system.

According to Superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools, Dr. John Sturock, those involved clogged sinks in Tim Volovsek's second level science classroom and turned the water on. The flooding water overflowed into Roger Gowell's lower level biology classroom causing ceiling damage and ruining classroom materials.

They also rearranged desks in a number of rooms and moved the cafeteria chairs and tables in front of the main entrance doors.

"This was more than a victimization of the building. It victimized the teaching staff and, to some extent, the community. It's a black eye for all of us. At this time of year we should be looking forward to a bright future for these kids. Something like this comes along and puts a damper on the whole thing," Halverson said.

According to a press release from Charlevoix County sheriff George Lasater, the water damage to the building and cost to re-key each of the school's almost 80 doors is

Dennis Halverson,
Charlevoix school board president between $8,000 and $10,000.

"This went beyond a prank. That's $10,000 the school doesn't have," Halverson said.

He added that he believes restitution will be part of a possible conviction to help defray costs and insurance coverage will be considered.

Lasater stated students could face charges of illegally entering a building and malicious destruction of property. Malicious destruction of property over $1,000 is a felony. Illegal entry of a building is a misdemeanor.

In discussing how the incident will impact the students' future, Grundman said, "These aren't kids. By the time they are seniors they are young adults and should know better. That's the most frustrating thing."

In 2001, similar pranks were pulled.

During the night of the senior sleep over at the high school, that took place on Memorial Day 2001, seniors lathered peanut butter on locker handles, rewired the bell system, rearranged furniture and placed pornographic magazines in the library. A master key was also accessed by a student during this incident.

The first day of the 2001-2002 school year was marked by more of the same. Three high school students and one student not enrolled in Charlevoix schools, took between 10 and 15 gallons of used vegetable oil and poured it on the floors at the former Charlevoix High School, which is the current middle school, located off Garfield Street.

The oil cleanup cost was about $2,000. The students were suspended for nine days and prosecuted.

'Traditional values' muddy marriage debate

Benjamin Gohs
'Staff writer'

I hear "traditional values" are declining these days, especially when opponents of same-sex marriage say the nation needs to regain its morality.

But, when Christ preached empathy and love only to be crucified, when Jefferson wrote, "all men are created equal" despite thriving slavery and when men denied women the right to vote, it was done with good intentions by people with traditional values.

Traditions which say, "We'll step on your neck if you don't live the way we do," aren't a good thing.

Race and gender based oppression will always be staples of despots. Heck, five years ago, Alabama still banned interracial marriage. And now we've begun trading sex and color for sexual proclivity as a means of segregating and oppressing. Oh, traditional values are alive and well.

Liberty means immunity from arbitrary exercise of authority; freedom from servitude, confinement or oppression, and the 14th Amendment demands, among other things, no state shall, "deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law."

Yet our government, with help from citizen-tyrants, continues to legislate our liberties via seat belt laws, smoking bans and marriage restrictions.

"The institution of marriage is at stake," cry the autocrats, while the real threats to wedded bliss are abuse, infidelity or arbitrary divorce.

Marriage isn't a club of many members, it's a billion institutions unto themselves. Your neighbor's relationship has no bearing on your marriage, good or bad.

Unless there is a squad of gay terrorists holding heterosexual couples at gunpoint and burning their marriage licenses, you ex-wives and husbands looking for a scapegoat for the 50 percent divorce rate need to look in the mirror.

Ironically, hucksters of hate like the Traditional Values Coalition scorn gays, when not too long ago their Christian brothers were lunch for Caesar's lions.

According to their Web site, "The good news is that no one is born homosexual or transsexual. These are mental conditions that can be treated through religious-based or psychological therapies."

The good news is, no one is born a small-minded bigot, it is a mental condition which can be treated by removing one's head from one's nether region.

These theological totalitarians use media leverage to scare politicians into legislating the condemnation of homosexuals. Oh, you can die for your country, but you'd better hide your pink combat boots, Liberace albums and Barbara Streisand movies or you're out of the military. May.

Yeah, yeah, I know, gays are unfit to serve in the Armed Forces, just like blacks and women were unfit to serve at one time, right?

Some freedom opponents claim "radical judges" want to change national policy. As if oppressive policies shouldn't be annihilated.

Martin Luther King Jr. said, "When you are right, you cannot be too radical; when you are wrong, you cannot be too conservative." But I doubt the traditional values sect would ever listen to an up-pity black man.

Some fear same-sex marriage will open the door to adoption (conservative estimates show 40 million orphans worldwide by 2010) leading some to believe the traditional values clique would sooner see kids on the street, eating garbage and prostituting themselves rather than having two gay fathers.

Some religious groups claim gay marriage is an abomination to God and that it should remain illegal. However, the separation of church and state prevents the government from legislating or promoting one religion over another. They've done a bang-up job so far, haven't they?

To legislate the will of religious groups is unconstitutional no matter how big their majority. And it hurts not only gays, but the 5 percent of polygamist Mormons in Utah and others. Let's try to remember that this country was first colonized by an oppressed religious minority.

Might doesn't make one right, it makes one capable.

I'm not asking people to love thy neighbor, I'm asking them to mind their own business, because letting others live in peace is one of my traditional values.

Besides, the worst that can happen is Fred and George will get married and learn how miserable the rest of us are.

Nurturing father leaves legacy of gratitude

Gayle Gennett
'A look at life'

My dad's voice would boom across the room but his words could be tender when you were injured or struggling with the day's events. He was firm and you knew he was in charge, but if someone had been unfair to you there was undoubting support. Maybe it was the twinkle in his clear, blue eyes or that signature space in his front teeth that appeared when he smiled — it's hard to say what it was, you just always knew that even when you were in big trouble, he still loved you.

I enjoyed the little pleasures of carting grass clippings to a nearby field after he was finished mowing the yard. That same field became the cemetery for all of my assorted pets who passed on through the years. Dad would make certain each little creature on their judgment day was carefully laid to rest in a shoe box lined with cotton. It became a ritual for the two of us to create little funerals for everything from cats to lizards. It seems the simple things are now the big things that I remember best.

As a young child, I looked forward to fall arriving and awakening my senses to the sights and sounds I love the best. When crimson colored leaves turn crisp in Charlevoix, I return to a time where I can smell autumn in the air and see in my minds eye the flames flickering in the leaves that were carefully piled up on the curb by our home. Just minutes before we had worked so hard to gather them and relish in the joys of falling in them as well. I did the falling, dad did the encouraging, "Here's another pile to jump in," he'd say.

Winter would arrive and he would faithfully shovel up the snow in the backyard creating a makeshift bunny hill for us to sled down. A few of those winters, he took on the ambitious feat of creating a skating rink. As small as it was, it was a winter wonderland to me, where I could twirl and tumble. Thank goodness I didn't have far to go to take care of my bruises and cuts — my God given name is Gayle, not Grace.

Only a father could be accepting of his daughter who loved horses so much that at times I would imitate one. I'd run around the backyard, flip my ponytail as if it were a mane and pretend to rear. When a neighbor mentioned my doings, dad would reply, "Isn't it fun to see how creative she is?" Thanks dad, for not letting anyone report I needed psychological attention. Dad took my interest in cap guns, horses and the Wild West into a learning opportunity and taught me how to use a lariat. To this day, I can still swing that rope into a beautiful circle and catch any animal, my husband or a loose grandchild.

I loved to watch him polish his shoes—a simple chore but his method was slow and methodical. I relished in his attention to detail except when it came to homework time. Homework was difficult and having a father with a Roman Catholic upbringing and years taught by the Jesuits, you couldn't get away with plagiarism, incomplete or untidy work. Even to this day I hear his voice when balancing my checkbook, "Remember to line up your numbers before adding."

Time has passed and his bright blue eyes have dimmed with macular degeneration. A mind that could swiftly deduce what ailment you had and what medicine to take has turned to his worrying about remembering to take his own medicine at meals and bedtime. A man who seemed so tall at five foot 10-and-a-half inches has become frail and smaller in size but he's still large in stature to his children. As we grow older we realized that his modeling of dedication to work and volunteering as well as his involvement with the Catholic church, has rubbed off on us in some form or other.

Thanks dad, for being the man you are and the examples you have set. Your life will never be forgotten as it's reflected in your children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Margaret Trudeau sums it best, "It's only when you grow up and step back from him, or leave him for your own career and your own home — it's only then that you can measure his greatness and fully appreciate it." To my father and all fathers who read this, know that you are special and we're happy to have a day to recognize it.

Letters to the editor

Clean up political signs

Editor:

Is anyone else offended by the mish-mash of political signs adorning the windows of a once-attractive storefront at the corner of Bridge Street and Park Avenue?

Posters are scotch-taped every which way and cover nearly all the available window space — hardly in keeping with our proclaimed "Charlevoix the Beautiful" aesthetics.

I was willing to ignore this mess during the spring months, when so much of the town was dormant. But now that the summer season is upon us, it's time to clean it up.

Although city ordinances apply only to those signs affixed to the exterior of buildings, common sense and good taste should prevail. Regardless of how one feels about the signs' political messages, the overall impression is offensive.

The building's owner and occupants do themselves and their candidates no favor by creating this eyesore in the middle of our town.

Skate park support

Editor:

What does the skate park mean to me? To me, it means freedom because it's a place where I can go to have fun, and worry about absolutely nothing that exists in the real world. Since it's illegal on the street, the skate park gives myself and others a place to skate without worrying about getting a ticket from the police.

Also, it's a place where I can have fun with my friends, whether I'm practicing a new stunt, or just goofing around. When I see the younger kids skating at the park, it gives me a warm feeling inside. Why? Because I am proud of these kids doing something that is fun as an individual or group activity, which I feel builds great character. Plus, it keeps them away from doing bad things.

Finally, anybody can come to the park.

It doesn't matter if there a boy or girl, what age they are, or how much skill they have. The skate park is a place to participate in fun activities for kids, adolescents or adults. Unlike other sports, a skater, biker, or blader can feel free to do whatever they feel without having anybody telling them what to do. That's the beauty of this individual sport.

Would those who are against skate parks rather not see kids at a skate park and have them run around ruining curbs, handrails and doing drugs as well as other criminal activity? Or would you rather see them at a skate park having fun with friends and using a special talent that can have a huge impact on their lives?

Roloff memorial success

Editor:

The 12th annual Bryan Roloff Memorial fund-raiser benefit at the Gold Nugget in Ellsworth was a huge success.

Special thanks to Gary and Ginger Mallison for coordinating all the bands — they were awesome. We couldn't have done this without you. Thanks from everyone who was there and many thanks from the Roloff family.

A special thank you to those that donated door prizes. Without your generous donations we could not succeed.

Last but not least, thank you to all the wonderful volunteers who decorated, worked the door and sold tickets throughout the day. There just isn't any way to say just how much you are appreciated.

To all of you that spent the day and evening with us remembering our son Bryan and helping us keep his spirit and music alive, we thank you. We are blessed with so many wonderful friends.

God bless each and everyone of you. Shirey Roloff and family

Congrats city PD

Editor:

Congratulations to the City of Charlevoix Police Department. They recognized that it's 2006 and the days of the Wild West are over.

A wandering black bear was found in our neighborhoods (formerly their neighborhoods) and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources was utilized to tranquilize the visitor, rather than killing him.

Black bears flee from humans, rather than attacking them, if given an avenue of escape. Our police have protected something which helps make northern Michigan as special as it is.

Memorial Day thanks

Editor:

I would like to take the opportunity to thank all the people and organizations that made the 2006 Memorial Day celebrations a truly memorable event.

Numerous individuals assisted in this event. By group I would like to thank the commander and crew of the United States Coast Guard cutter Acacia; the commander and crew of Coast Guard Station Charlevoix; the Rayder Marching Band and its director, Jayne Bennett; Gary Stutzman director of bands at Northwest Academy;

American Legion Post 226 and auxiliary; the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1153 and auxiliary; the Northern Michigan Detachment of the Marine Corps League; Charlevoix Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of all ages; the Friends of the Charlevoix Library and its famous marching canine platoon; and Charlevoix emergency services and law enforcement officers for their assistance. Last but not least, I would like to thank both high schools for the fine speaking voices of Alanna Leslie and Matt Kanine.

We continue to collect names of those serving on active duty in the armed forces for our "Yellow Ribbon" honor roll and the names of those who have died in active service to our nation. Once again, thanks to all these groups and to the community for contributing to our remembrance celebration.

Doan was right pick

Editor:

Charlevoix City Council made the right decision on the appointment of Girard Doan as City of Charlevoix chief of police.

As sheriff, I was able to observe the city's new chief of police while the sheriff's office and Department of Natural Resources were assisting chief Doan and his officers during the recent 'bear incident' in the City of Charlevoix.

Chief Doan was very much in command of the situation and utilized all resources while meeting his obligations to protect the citizens of Charlevoix and also making every effort to capture the bear for relocation without incident.

As sheriff, I'm proud to work along side chief Doan and his officers. They represent Charlevoix in a very positive manner.

Tickets send wrong message

Editor:

How to chase away even more business. On Saturday afternoon I went into town to buy a book at the local bookstore. I could just as easily bought it online but went into town and parked on Autrim where I was the only car on that side of the street. It was a gorgeous day in northern Michigan and I am always surprised at how quiet June can be up here.

There is constant discussion on how to get more business in Charlevoix. Here is one way, don't give out parking tickets in May. Anyone willing to stop and shop should be given a warm welcome. Put an envelope on their windshield with the coming season's schedule of events. Tell them that the city has put a dime in the meter for them because we appreciate their being here. I realize the necessity of meters in July and August but certainly not when the streets are half empty this time of year.

'Thanks' from Camp McSaub

Editor:

I would like to thank Bruce MacArthur and the Charlevoix Area Community Pool Auction committee for their generous donation to Camp McSaub.

They donated $500 so our campers can enjoy a Thursday night swim, free-of-charge, and also contributed $838 to our scholarship fund.

It's wonderful to know that our common goal is to continue to benefit our area youth.

Kenneth and Myrtle Christiansen, of Ellsworth and formerly of Greenville, will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary on June 7.

The Christiansens' children are Gerald and Paula Christiansen of Greenville, Mary Ann and Si Doctor of South Range and Dave and Julie Christiansen of Charlevoix. They have seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

A card shower is planned to celebrate the occasion. Cards may be sent to 13316 Timberline Drive, Ellsworth, MI 49729.

Boy Scouts sell American liberty elm trees to fund trips

Boy Scout Troop 11 will be selling elm trees to fund trips taken by the troop.

This is part of a project started 12 years ago between Troop 11 and the City of Charlevoix.

The trees for sale are an American liberty elm, the only true American species available. These trees should not be confused with Asian or European varieties. The American liberty elm was developed, after 40 years of testing, as a species resistant to Dutch Elm Disease, by the Elm Research Institute in Vermont. The trees for the project were selected because of the classic vase shape, disease resistance and vigorous growth.

The goal of the Elm Research Institute was to repopulate elms after the devastation of the Dutch Elm Disease that started in the mid 1930s. This program is called the "Johnny Elmseed Program," and is done as a collaboration between the local municipality and Boy Scout troop.

Many of the trees have been sold over the last 12 years and can be seen on Elm Street, behind the Community Reformed Church on the north side of Charlevoix. Another location where several can be seen is at the First Baptist Church off M-66 in Charlevoix.

The American liberty elm trees for sale are between 6 and 8-feet tall and are 4 years old. The number of trees available is limited.

For more information, or to order a tree, call Tim May at (231) 547-0979.

Betty Barton to speak at guild meeting

The featured speaker at the June 12 Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild meeting will be Betty Barton, a local philanthropist that works wonders with Petoskey stones.

Barton finds the stones in the summer and in the winter months returns to Arizona where she crafts them into pendants, picture frames and other keepsakes.

All of her handwork is then returned to Charlevoix where she sells her wares and distributes the proceeds to area non-profit organizations.

Barton has announced this will be the last year of her successful Petoskey stone business.

She will speak at the guild meeting to take place at 11 a.m. on June 12 in the classroom near the cafeteria at Charlevoix Area Hospital. Guild members and those interested in becoming a member or volunteering at the hospital are welcome to attend.

For more information, call (231) 547-8651.

Student art to be shared with schools in China

Artwork by Will Jeakle and Natalie Nesburg from St. Mary's School in Charlevoix was recently selected to represent Michigan in Binshou City in the Shandong Province of China.

The Michigan artwork will be exhibited in schools in this eastern province of China.

Thousands of children from across Michigan participated in the Michigan 4-H Children's Art Exchange with China from September 2005 through April 2006.

More than 300, of the thousands of pieces of artwork, were chosen to be sent to Michigan State University in May. Of the over 300 pieces of art, 69 were selected to be sent to Binshou City.

In addition to Jeakle and Nesburg, artwork of the following St. Mary's School students was presented to the selection committee at Michigan State University: Jackson Buday, Gloria Greene, Molly Jeakle, Sabrina Hosler, Nick Plude, Shane Sutherland, Beatriz Ramalho and Emily Zabawa.

Memorial benefit planned for family of Tom Urban

A benefit dinner for the family of Tom Urban, who recently passed away, will take place from 5 to 7 p.m. on Friday, June 9, at the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix, located at the corner of Park Avenue and State Street.

Urban, 57, of Charlevoix, died Sunday, May 21 at his home following heart surgery.

He was born Feb. 18, 1949, in Detroit, the son of the late John M. and Elizabeth (Dicks) Urban. He graduated from Schafer High School in Southgate in 1967, then earned a bachelor of science degree in business administration and marketing management from University of Detroit in 1975.

Urban served in the U.S. Navy Air Reserve during the Vietnam War. On Aug. 5, 1972, he married Cynthia A. Pierce in Chelsea. Being self-employed most of his life, Urban had many different jobs. Most recently, he was the director of operations for Educare Inc., and was also the director of operations of The Garage Sale and Attic Treasures resale shop in Petoskey.

At the time of his death he had no health or life insurance and his wife Cyndi now faces extensive medical bills and other unexpected costs.

The benefit dinner to take place this Friday will assist in meeting the family's needs. The menu will include spaghetti, bread, salad, dessert and a beverage. Tickets are $7 for adults and $3 for children under 7 and are available at the door. Entertainment will be provided by Acoustic Stew.

Those who would like to make a donation but can't attend can do so by writing a check payable to the Tom Urban Memorial Fund and sending it to Charlevoix State Bank, 111 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

For more information, call Fran Tollas at (231) 347-8829.

United Way names new director

Martha Lancaster

Char-Em United Way has announced that Martha Lancaster is the agency's new executive director.

Lancaster will direct United Way's fund-raising activities and support to non-profit agencies in the Charlevoix and Emmet County region.

"We are very excited to have Martha on board," said Tim Petrosky, president of United Way's board of directors. "She has skills in community organizing and fund-raising, as well as a great knowledge of our local community. With her leadership, we anticipate increasing our fund-raising goal for the 2006/2007 campaign, and consequently, the amount of funds that we are able to distribute to local health and human service agencies."

Lancaster was formerly director of community services and director of major gifts at Planned Parenthood Northern Michigan. She previously worked at the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council, Burns Clinic, and the University of Michigan hospitals. She has a masters degree in health services administration from the University of Michigan School of Public Health.

Char-Em United Way conducts work site and other fund-raising campaigns to raise funds to support many local health and human service agencies. It also coordinates the emergency food and shelter program which assists local shelters and food pantries.

Char-Em United Way is currently seeking volunteers for its upcoming campaign, as well as nominees for the board of directors.

To get involved with Char-Em United Way as a donor or volunteer, call (231) 237-9551 or e-mail charemuw@sbcglobal.net.

Obituary

Robert Sayers: Dec. 15, 1922 - May 31, 2006

Robert E. Sayers, 83, of Cincinnati, Ohio and a former longtime Sturgis resident died Wednesday, May 31 at the Cottingham Retirement Community in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Bob was born Dec. 15, 1922 in Grand Rapids, to the late Earl and Marie Sayers. The family settled in Three Rivers where he graduated from high school with the class of 1940.

He attended Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, until 1942 when during World War II he enlisted in the U.S. Navy. He served as a lieutenant junior grade seeing action in the South Pacific until 1946. He returned to Michigan to attend Michigan College of Mining and Technology where he graduated in 1948 with a degree in mining engineering. He worked in the mines in Butte, Mont. until he returned to Three Rivers where he served as county surveyor for 40 years and later owned his own surveying and professional engineering business in Sturgis.

Bob and Jean (Huffman) were married on Dec. 23, 1951 in Three Rivers. They lived in Sturgis until he retired in 1986, when they moved to Charlevoix. While living in Sturgis he was a member of the Michigan Land Surveyors Organization and served on the State Board of Licensing and Regulation during both Gov. Millikan and Gov. Blanchard's terms in office. In Sturgis he was a member of the Sturgis Rotary Club where he was a life member and received the Paul Harris award.

Bob and Jean had two sons, Michael (Nancy) Sayers of Ann Arbor and Douglas (Julie) Sayers of Cincinnati, Ohio; five grandchildren, Aaron (Robin), Sandra, Kathryn, Samantha and Spyder.

He was preceded in death by his parents; a grandson, Luke; and two brothers, Kenneth and Vincent.

In accordance with his wishes cremation has taken place. A memorial service will be held at a later date at the Rosenberg-Schipper Funeral Home in Sturgis.

The family suggests those wishing to make a memorial donation in Sayer's memory, consider the Hospice of Little Traverse Bay or the Vitox Hospice Health Care Corp. of Ohio, 11500 North Lake Dr., Suite 400, Cincinnati, OH 45249.

Memorial service

A graveside committal for the remains of Martha C. Taylor, a former longtime resident of Charlevoix, will take place at 10:30 a.m. on Friday, June 16, at Brookside Cemetery. Pastor Neil Turner will officiate.

Kimberly Agnello named Courier summer intern

By JULIE WITTHOEFT
Editor

This summer, the Charlevoix Courier has extended an internship opportunity to summer resident, Kimberly Agnello, who will be tackling general assignment reporting for the paper.

"I can use more writing experience. I think it will be difficult but I'm up for the challenge," she said of the internship.

Agnello, 19, of Punta Gorda, Fla., is living in Charlevoix this summer with her father, Ron Agnello, and stepmother, Cathy Agnello.

She was born in Charlevoix and lived here for 10 years before relocating to Florida with her mother, Lisa DeGroot, and sister, Susie Agnello. Since then, she has returned each year to soak in the summer sun.

"I love the water and being with my family," she said.

Kimberly Agnello

"I work hard in the summer so I can focus on school without having a job," she said.

Agnello is a junior, majoring in journalism at Florida State University in Gainesville, Fla. She earned Florida's Bright Future's scholarship and was awarded tuition-free enrollment there.

Her experience in the field includes published articles in Performance Magazine, a publication of the College of Health and Human Services through Florida State University's alumni association, and articles published in the Charlotte Sun Herald.

"Writing comes naturally to me, but it's still a challenge. If it was easy, I wouldn't enjoy it," Agnello said. "With writing, there's no one right way to do it. There are so many avenues to be creative."

Agnello's future plans include earning her bachelor's degree and working to establish a full-time reporting position.

Her first article for the Courier appears on page 13 of this week's edition.

Salmon return to Trout Tournament board

By KIMBERLY AGNELLO
Special to the Courier

The 22nd Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament is set to kick-off this weekend.

The tournament, which is scheduled to take place June 9, 10, and 11, is hosted by the Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament Association. Participants will fish for brown trout, steelhead, lake trout and salmon.

"It's a great tournament," said Dean Mikulski, a member of the committee hosting the tournament.

Mikulski is joined on the committee by his son, Christopher, Dave Juilleret, Shannon Reynolds, John McDonald and Gary Spencer.

Despite the decline in trout population, Mikulski is confident this year will yield some decent-sized fish.

"The fish seem to be healthier this year, especially the salmon. That's good," he said. "It's a trend we've seen lake-wide."

Since the reports have been so good, the tournament decided to reintroduce its salmon division, which has not been part of the event for about three or four years.

"The warmer temperatures we've seen will mean some great fishing, especially for steelhead and salmon," Mikulski said. "It's perfect for steelhead fishing."

Even though pre-registration via mail ended on May 23, anyone is welcome to sign up for the event.

"We generally have great participation," he said. "It's really great because the guy with the small boat has just as good a chance of winning first place as the guy with the big boat."

Mikulski said previous years have had anywhere from 500 to 800 participants.

Tournament headquarters will be set up in the East Park between the bandshell and the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce from noon to 6 p.m. on June 6 and from noon to 8 p.m. June 7 and 8 in the bandshell.

Entry fees are $25 for adults and $10 for kids ages six to 14. Children five years and younger are free, but they still must register.

Each registered participant will receive a membership identification card, a hat and a fishing lure.

"The whole theme of the tournament is fun-oriented," Mikulski said. "It's especially good for families."

Mikulski encourages the public to participate in event. He added that the weigh-ins which take place at 8 p.m. on June 9 and 10 in East Park are exciting.

"People are surprised to see what kinds of fish we can catch from the lake," he said. "It's quite interesting."

On Saturday, June 10, about 250 rainbow trout will be placed in the pond in East Park as part of a Big Brothers Big Sisters fund-raiser in memory of Joe "Sloppy Joe" Maltese.

For $2, children can fish for the rainbow trout. What they decide to do with the fish after that is up to them.

"Sometimes the kids take the fish home to eat for dinner, and some just walk them right to Round Lake and set them free," Mikulski said.

The tournament award ceremony will begin at 1 p.m. on Sunday, June 11 in East Park.

Cash prizes will be presented to the top 10 finishers in each division.

The 2005 Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament category winners were (from left) Greg Musselman who won the steelhead division with a 9.98 pound fish; Gary Beer who won the lake trout division with a 16.6 pound fish; and Brady Way won the brown trout division with a 5.26 pound fish. The tournament kicks off this Friday and will include a salmon division.

The largest fish in each division will be mounted courtesy of Jeff Lutz of Lasting Memories Taxidermy.

A special trophy will also be awarded for the largest overall fish caught during the tournament, and the first place lake trout winner will be given the Rex Blanchard Memorial Trophy.

Even if participants don't place in the top 10, more than $3,000 worth of prizes will be given out during a drawing at the end of the tournament.

Participants can win anything from camping gear to fishing gear.

The drawing will also feature a canoe raffle.

PARENTING

Library partners with pups to promote literacy

Julie Witthoef
'Kids' corner'

Editor's note: The parenting page follows the school calendar and will resume publication in September 2006.

See Spot read?

A new program at Charlevoix Public Library looks to advance literacy in young readers by pairing kids with dogs for one on one reading sessions.

The local program which is currently in the planning stages, is an offshoot of Reading Education Assistance Dogs which was started in Utah and has blossomed into a widely successful literacy campaign.

"They've seen so many great results in kids growing confidence in reading and enjoying reading," Charlevoix Public Library children's activity coordinator, Chris Hauke, said of the Utah program which now includes 60 dog/owner teams.

Like the Utah reading assistance model, the Charlevoix program will bring trained, certified therapy dogs with their owners into the library to read with children.

According to Hauke, the program will be launched in conjunction with the opening of the new library facility at 220 Clinton St. During the

"These are kids that may feel low self-esteem, that aren't real confident with their reading skills. Through the program, they'll have a non judgmental dog that will listen to them without correcting or making fun of them"

Chris Hauke,

Charlevoix Public Library children's activity coordinator five-week program to be offered on Saturdays, children will sign up for a time slot of 15 to 20 minutes during which they'll choose a book and curl up with an adoring listener — a dog.

"These are kids that may feel low self-esteem, that aren't real confident with their reading skills," Hauke said. "Through the program, they'll have a non judgmental dog that will listen to them without correcting or making fun of them."

Last week Cast, a stray adopted three years ago from the Little Traverse Humane Society by Charlevoix resident Wendy Perrett attended a story hour to offer the Courier an inside look at how the program will function.

Cast was trained through obedience classes and went through a series of programs to become a certified therapy dog through Therapy Dogs Inc. He has visited the residents of Boulder Park, but Perrett said last week was his first time working with children in a reading program. Cast cuddled with twin four year olds and listened attentively. Perrett was pleased with his demeanor and plans to practice with him more prior to starting the program.

"I think he'll work well. He loves children," she said. "It takes a laid back, calm dog — not fearful, not the last hit aggressive and not too excitable."

Charlevoix Public Library is looking for mellow dogs with a sweet disposition to join this literacy effort.

The library will offer information and workshops for interested dog owners to learn the health, personality and training their pet needs to be part of a therapy dog team.

Pet owners who feel their pooch would be a perfect fit for this local literacy initiative can get a taste of what it takes at an owner/dog seminar provided by June McManus of Pine Meadows Dog Training Center to take place at 7 p.m. today, Wednesday June 7, in Traverse City. The cost is $20 per dog. For more information call 1-877-276-6215.

Dog owners interested in learning more about this program, may contact Chris Hauke at the library (231) 547-2651 or visit www.therapyanimals.org.

Cast, a trained therapy dog, sits and reads with his owner, Wendy Perrett of Charlevoix and adoring readers, four-year-old twins, Elise and Luke Stuck. A program being planned for the new Charlevoix Public Library aims to increase literacy by bringing in trained dogs to read with children.

Summer featured events:

Each month the Parenting page has brought readers a taste of one special Charlevoix event that families can't miss.

Because this special page follows the school schedule and will take a summer break along with students, the final events lineup offers a three month breakdown of Charlevoix happenings for kids of all ages.

First stop, the 22nd Annual Lake Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament. While some kids fish in the tournament, others get a taste of reeling in the big one in East Park.

During the afternoon of Saturday, June 10, about 250 rainbow trout will be placed in the pond in East Park as part of a Big Brothers Big Sisters fundraiser in memory of Joe "Sloppy Joe" Maltese. For $2, children can fish for the rainbow trout.

Then, next weekend, on June 17, take the tots back to East Park for a Taste of Charlevoix. While mom and dad enjoy delectable delights created by area chefs, kids can dance to live entertainment, bounce on the moon walk or watch boats and wildlife in Round Lake.

Add a little learning into the bouncing and fishing equation at the Seventh Annual Summer Used Book Sale at Charlevoix Public Library on June 24.

With a busy June behind you, listen your seat belts, July ushers in a flurry of summer fun.

July is packed with events like the Street Legends Classic Car Show on July 15 in East Park; the 76th Annual Venetian Festival to take place July 16-22; and the Horton Bay July 4 parade.

In the midst of the madness, don't forget Thursday nights in East Park when hands will play at 8 p.m. in the open air band shell.

Parents planning for the return to school will be happy to hear August is relatively quiet in terms of kid related festivities in Charlevoix. One opportunity that can't be missed to broaden their understanding of the arts is the 48th Annual Waterfront Art Fair to take place Aug. 12 in East Park.

Our advice for August, hit the beach and soak in some sun. Charlevoix is home to some of the most amazing beaches in the state.

• Depot Beach, located off Mercer Boulevard. Volleyball, picnic pavilion and playground.

• Ferry Avenue Beach, located off Stover Road. Popular Lake Charlevoix park with sand swimming area, volleyball and basketball courts and concessions. Lifeguard on duty.

• Lake Michigan Beach, located south of the pier off Park Avenue. Lifeguard on duty, sand beach, playground, picnic pavilion, concessions.

• Mount McSaubach Beach, located off Mount McSaubach Road. Offers sand dune trails and pristine beach on Lake Michigan.

'Must reads' from library director Valerie Meyerson

The following is a list of age specific books selected by Charlevoix Public Library director Valerie Meyerson for June reading.

Jan Yolen, "This Little Piggy and Other Rhymes to Sing and Play."

Ages birth-5

Jan Yolen has gathered our favorite children's rhymes and songs and added suggested movements to make playtime fun for both parent and child. Pull your baby or toddler into your lap, open anywhere and have fun. Especially silly are the "bounce them on your knee" rhymes. Will Hillebrand's playful illustrations colorfully enhance the text and give the reader plenty of animal characters to discover and talk about. For all those songs you can't quite remember, a CD is included with the book.

Gina Wilson, "Grandma's Bears."

Ages 2-7

This is a delightfully illustrated story of a grandmother who shares her cottage with bears. Grandson Nat is on his first sleepover at grandma's. By playing with and comforting the shy bears, Nat quickly forgets his own unease at being away from home, and settles in to enjoy the stay. A wonderful bedtime book to for you to cuddle up with someone special.

Diane Stanley, "Bella At Midnight."

Grades 4-8

Set a strong girl in a fantasy realm of knights and wars, give her challenges and add a dash of Cinderella and you have Bella. Raised by a kindly blacksmith with a prince-for-a friend, Bella's happiness is invaded by the dangerous world around her.

Prince Julian betrays her, her "real" father, a dastardly knight who abandoned her in infancy, demands her return, and Bella herself is caught up in a terrible plot.

Bella, disguised, sets out on a journey protected only by her godmother and three enchanted gifts to face her destiny.

Renaissance reflections

Charlevoix Area Hospital hires new general surgeon

A new general surgeon has been hired to join the staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Experienced physician, F. Thomas Day, MD, recently joined doctors Marc E. Lane and Craig D. Wendt in their Charlevoix-based surgery practice.

Day comes to the area from Bon Secours Hospital in Grosse Pointe, where he performed a variety of procedures.

"I enjoy the flexibility and diversity of a small hospital," Day said. "There's an opportunity to help a variety of patients, from those needing routine surgery to more complex treatment."

Calling his move to Charlevoix "a perfect match," Day said he looks forward to applying his personal philosophy of general surgery — "Doing ordinary things with extraordinary care."

Day is a graduate of Notre Dame and earned his medical degree from Wayne State University School of Medicine. He completed his surgical residency at Sinai Hospital in Detroit and Virginia Mason Medical Center in Seattle, Wash. He began his career under the mentorship of his father, a surgeon with whom he practiced for 15 years.

He and his wife Nancy are making their home in Charlevoix. Day's son, Tom, is a student at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

Day began seeing patients at the Charlevoix office, located at 14700 Park Avenue, on June 5.

Castle Farms

FINE ART SHOW June 10th & 11th, 2006 at 10 a.m.

Admission $5 per person;
12 & under free

Hosted by Charlevoix's Historic Landmark — Castle Farms

Artists from all mediums of art will converge on Charlevoix's Historic Landmark — Castle Farms for the inaugural Castle Farms Fine Art Show slated for Saturday, June 10, 10a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, June 11, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The mission of the First Annual Castle Farms Fine Art show is to combine the intimate qualities of an art gallery with the variety and excitement of a fine art festival. This offers the art lover an ideal viewing and buying opportunity in a comfortable, beautiful, and acclaimed historic facility.

The fine art show is an indoor and outdoor presentation of some of the most respected artists in the country. The Castle — serving as a convenient, elegant atmosphere — is dedicated to bringing the highest caliber of fine art and fine crafts to Northern Michigan all at reasonable prices.

The show will stress quality, professionalism, variety and originality. It will also maximize comfort with well-lit booths, wide aisles, tempting food from Grey Gobles, and the ambience of an old English castle, all in a "weatherproof" location.

The conscientious and creative staff of Castle Farms presents the Castle Farms Fine Art show. The event is operated under the direction of Ron Beahn, an accomplished artist and respected art show organizer. Since 1995 Ron has served as director of the 35 year old Boston Mills Artfest in Ohio. He also served as the producer/director of the Ann Arbor National Fine Art show in Ann Arbor. Ron's respect and understanding of both artists and patrons has enabled him to develop a reputation for presenting well organized, smoothly run shows.

The Castle Farms Fine Art show aspires to be a uniquely comfortable, stimulating experience for art lovers — the perfect place to buy thoughtful, one-of-a-kind gifts of art.

Jean Joseph Monfort
Los Angeles, CA:

Jean Joseph Monfort began painting in 1973, inspired by the passion of folk art. With a background in oil painting, he takes the simple, common place activities of daily life and creates an art that while fantastical evokes a deeper story. His work exposes a formidable talent. Monfort's precise technical skills can be found through the use of light and color in nature scenes, seeming to breathe life into his paintings, almost pulling the viewer down a dirt road at sunset, barefoot toward a turquoise sea.

Jean came to Los Angeles in 1982, and the next year began showing his work, with exhibitions at UCLA and California State University, Long Beach. His work has also been displayed in exhibitions of black artists at the Fox Hills and Hawthorne malls. Monfort now lives in Los Angeles, where he paints about 10 hours a day.

Karen Vernon
Brenham, TX:

"My paintings are an exploration of color, the capturing of light across the surface of man-made and natural objects. I find a fascination in the manner in which light diffuses and creates the spectral life on surfaces. The action and reaction of pigment and color on the surfaces on which I paint equally intrigue me. Each painting, whether oil, acrylic, or watercolor, is a fascinating adventure into the discovery of color and its vibrant interplay."

Mary Lou Ozbolt-Storer
Maple Valley, Washington:

Marylou Ozbolt-Storer left her weaving loom behind in 1987, developed her first line of hand sewn merino wool coats and never looked back. Her signature style boasts large blocks of color with contemporary geometric and linear symbols appliquéd throughout.

Marylou has thoroughly enjoyed creating new designs and keeping her work fresh. She is inspired by modern painters like Miro, Kandinsky, and Picasso, as well as Japanese calligraphy, Southwest and Northwest Native American blankets and totem patterns.

Chuck Robertson
Linville, NC:

Robertson is one of the country's best-known master bird carvers. He uses basswood for his sculptures, meticulously carving and painting the wood to create works of amazing realism. "I feel that the level of detail I incorporate into my work contributes to its appreciation," he says. "My goal is to capture the excitement of a moment in nature. That can vary from a favorite bird perched in a tree to a hawk pursuing its prey."

Robertson exhibits his work at the most important wildlife art shows in the country including the Southeastern Wildlife Exposition in Charleston, S.C., and the Waterfowl Festival in Easton, Md., where he was selected to create the 2003 Masterpiece Carving. He has won numerous awards, and his work is in private, corporate and public collections in the United States and Europe.
